Gravesteen & Hale's advertisement next week.

P. A. STEBBINS & Co's new advertisement. A new branch of business is advertised.

The Treasurer's Sale of Unseated and Seated Lands, in this county, commences on Monday of next week.

The extra amount of advertising has crowded out our usual amount of reading matter. Bear with us patiently, it will be but for a week or two longer.

MINIMUM REGISTER THERMOMETER, May, 1862.—23d, highest, 57°; 26th, lowest, 32°; 1st, 5th, 11th and 14th, average 43°. Apples blossomed, 23d; lilacs, 26th; cherries, 10th; plums, 13th; pears, 15th; Siberian crab, 18th. Rain- ed 1st, 2d, 3d, 13th, 18th, 21st and 31st. Frosts were slight, not doing any material injury, and occurred on the mornings of the 4th, 7th, 8th, 24th, 25th, 29th, and 30th. The month favored us with 16 bright clear days and 5 more of only thin flying clouds—draping thickies in mourning only ten days during the time. K.N.I.

The Tribune of last evening says, in speaking of the battle at Richmond: "The divisions of Gens. Sedgwick and Richardson were passed over the river, driving the enemy back with the bayonet, and literally covering the ground with his dead." We believe this Gen. Richardson's division is the one in which Capt. Jones' company is stationed.

We have the following from Capt. Graves of the loss of Potter county in the late conflict between the Rebels and Gen. Banks: It is more than probable that many of those put down as missing will get into camp safe:

"I herewith send you a list of the wounded and missing in the action at Winchester, on Sunday, May 25th, 1862. Undoubtedly several of these will yet come in; N. Brockway came into camp while I was writing this, he was taken prisoner but got away from them and came to the river at Harper's Ferry. We are now encamped near Williamsport, Md. We left Strasburg Saturday morning at 4 o'clock, our baggage and supply trains in advance, also the sick from the Hospital at Strasburg. At Newtown, ten miles beyond Winchester, a party of Ashby's cavalry charged on the advance and took the most of the sick and several ambulances and baggage wagons; the sick were without arms. We arrived at Winchester and encamped—laying on our arms all night. During the night the pickets kept up a constant firing. At 4 A. M., they opened upon us with round shot and shell from twelve pieces of cannon. They also had thirteen infantry regiments in line; we had but three and four pieces of cannon. The 1st Brigade, Gen. Banks, was on the left with us. Col. Gordon's Brigade was on the right. Their force was overwhelming. We retreated back to the river at Williamsport, distant 36 miles. Got here about 10 P. M. of Sunday. J. H. GRAVES.

THE FIGHT AT RICHMOND.

News from Gen. McClellan is up to yesterday noon, and is highly important. During a tremendous thunder-storm on Saturday about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, the enemy made a bold effort with greatly superior numbers to turn the right flank of the Union army, which was on the Richmond side of the Chickahominy, not far from the river. Gen. Casey's division, forming the first line of our advance, received the attack, and, in the words of the dispatch, "gave way unaccountably and disunitedly." This created confusion, of course, and the guns and baggage were lost. At this juncture General Kearney and General Hentzleman brought up their divisions when a furious battle raged, with no further advantage to us than holding the enemy in check. As soon as possible, the divisions of Gen. Sedgwick and Gen. Richardson were passed over the river, and drove the enemy back with the bayonet, literally covering the ground with his dead. Thus ended the work of Saturday. Yesterday morning the enemy undertook the matter again, but were everywhere repulsed. One of their Generals (Pettigrew) and a Colonel named Long were taken prisoners. Gen. McClellan says our loss is heavy, while that of the enemy must have been enormous. Most of our men fought nobly, and several splendid bayonet charges were made, the 2d Excelsior Regiment making two. It appears that the Rebels tried the same game as at Pittsburg Landing, and with something like the same result. Falling upon our right with a force of probably ten to one, they hoped to turn the position, and throw our army into a panic, which would give them an easy victory. It was doubtless a most desperate attempt, but fortunately a failure.

EVACUATION OF CORINTH.

Dispatches from Gen. Halleck, dated Friday were received by the War Department on Saturday. He says the enemy's works at Corinth were very strong. On that morning, the Rebels destroyed an immense amount of public and private property and army stores. The roads out of the town are thickly strewn with the arms and haversacks of Gen. Beauregard's ditch-hunters, and it is pretty certain that his whole force is utterly demoralized. About 2,000 of them have been taken prisoners, among them nearly the whole of the 13th Louisiana. Not a few of them were deserters. The Rebels began to run on Thursday night, and went southward until they were stopped at a bridge burned by the Union skirmishers, when they were pushed westward toward Grand Junction, to get down the New Orleans Railroad. Rumors current among the citizens of Corinth state that Richmond had been evacuated, and Memphis was almost deserted. That precious traitor Van Dorn has a considerable force of Indians in his command, in Beauregard's army.

We have our special dispatches from Corinth to Saturday afternoon. On that morning General Pope marched into the place, finding none but women and children to greet him. The Mayor came out to meet him, and made a formal surrender. The Rebels had carried off everything, even the letters in the Post-Office. They went moving westward toward Grand Junction, Bragg holding the rear guard with 10,000 men. The people say there were never more than 60,000 men there at once, and for most of the time not near so many. They assert that Beauregard was there in person.

A brief dispatch from Cairo to Chicago says that a refugee from Arkansas reports Little Rock in the hands of the Union troops, and the flight of the Legislature. The Governor had fled from the State, and was supposed to be at Jackson, Miss. This news seems probable, as we had but a few days since intelligence that the Union forces were but a short distance north of Little Rock, and that the place was quite undefended. Arkansas may be captured once more as a Union State.

Gen. Banks is rapidly recovering the ground lost by his retreat. The enemy are as rapidly falling back, probably alarmed at the prospect of finding McDowell or Fremont, or both, in their rear. On Friday morning four companies of Rhode Island cavalry re-possessed Front Royal, driving out the Rebels, taking six officers and 150 privates, recapturing 18 of our own troops, and losing but eight killed, five wounded and one missing. Martinsburg and Strasburg are abandoned by the enemy, and his forces are now back near their quarters before they assailed Front Royal. On Saturday, the 5th New York cavalry passed through Martinsburg, and several miles beyond, where they found the enemy's cavalry, captured several prisoners, and re-took an American flag.

On the 3th ult. the Provost Marshal at Ship Island, with a detachment of troops, made a visit to Biloxi and destroyed the telegraph communicating with Ocean Springs and New Orleans. He found considerable latent Union feeling, but the persistent lying of the Rebels—who insisted that their army had whipped the Yankees at Corinth, and was steadily driving them North—prevented any open demonstration. All the able-bodied men were being drafted, care being taken to get any who might be suspected of Unionism.

Fugitives arrived at Norfolk on Friday, direct from Richmond, say that the Rebels are 200,000 strong, but are on half rations and filled with discontent. Davis is going to make the streets run with blood before he surrenders. There is very little dependence to be placed in these stories, or indeed in any stories told by fugitives. They either invent fictions complete, or distort a few facts into wild romance.

Communication has been established between Gen. McClellan's army and our gunboats in James River. The Galeta is badly cut up by the Rebel battery, and must go into dock for repairs. A refugee from Memphis states that the Rebels have been obliged to abandon their gunboats for lack of coal. The boats' guns have been taken to Fulton and Randolph. At Fort Wright the Rebels have constructed a bridge to facilitate their retreat, in case of the capture of their works.

There is soon to be a grand Union demonstration at Norfolk. Nearly 2,000 citizens have already taken the oath, and large numbers come in daily. Should the sentiments of the proposed meeting be favorable, we may expect the port to be opened to trade very soon.

Major General Dix has gone to Fortress Monroe to take command of the Department of Virginia, and Major-Gen. Wool, report says, is to command at Baltimore.

There was a report at Norfolk on Friday that the Rebels either had abandoned Petersburg or would soon do so.

The Response.

Governor Curtin, countermarching the order for three months' Volunteers, "congratulates the people of Pennsylvania on the information, received from the War Department, that the emergency which seemed to the Government of the United States so imperatively to demand their immediate service, no longer exists, and would also commend the patriotic zeal and alacrity manifested in every section of the Commonwealth, to meet it." Up to Tuesday, when this Order was given, about TWENTY THOUSAND Volunteers had already been offered from Pennsylvania! New York started off several Regiments in one or two days Massachusetts was mustering by hundreds and by thousands—and had not the emergency been so promptly met, doubtless, by this day, Two Hundred Thousand more Volunteers would have been found with their faces toward Washington! Such a sublime patriotic devotion—such a spontaneous uprising of the people at the end of a year's war and the opening of the warm and harvest season—must convince the Rebels, and all Europe, that the friends of the Union are in earnest for its entire, complete preservation!

Recruiting for the First Union Regiment of Maryland—so cut up at Front Royal—is going on briskly at Baltimore.

The Rebels and England acknowledge at last, the "sufficiency" of the Southern blockade.

The Grandfather of Gen. Halleck still lives, near Utica, N. Y., one hundred years of age.

The following concerning the escape of Orlando J. Reese, of this place, we find in the Tribune of last night:

Commissary-Sergeant Reese of the 46th Pennsylvania was cut off by the enemy at Middletown. He returned to Strasburg and concealed himself in the woods. At daylight on Sunday morning he heard the reveille beat by ten rebel regiments, who, an hour later, left town and took the turnpike up the valley toward Woodstock. This force did not participate in Sunday's fight, and probably went to Harrisonburg to intercept Fremont's army from coming to our rescue. Reese left his hiding place and was pursued through the woods 15 miles by some Rebel cavalry, passing on his way two wounded men of the Connecticut 5th.

Gen. Seigel is in Washington and is expected to take a command on the Potomac.

Fight at Richmond.

Our loss in the two days' engagement in killed and wounded will amount to about 300. A great number are missing who will probably return, having strayed away.

All of the enemy killed and most of the wounded fell into our hands. Gen. McClellan arrived at the battlefield on Saturday evening, where he has remained ever since, directing all the movements in person. His presence among the troops had a most splendid effect. Four separate charges with the bayonet were made during yesterday. In one instance the enemy were driven a mile, during which one hundred and seventy-three Rebels were killed by the bayonet alone!

Col. Miller of the 81st Pennsylvania and Col. Ripley of Pittsburg were killed.
