KATIE LEE and WILLIE GREY

Two brown heads with tossing curls, Red lips shutting over pearls Bare feet white and wet with dew. Two eyes black and two eyes blue, Little boy and girl were they, Katie Lee and Willie Grey.

They were standing where a brook, Bending like a shepherd's crook, Flashed its silver, and thick ranks Of green willows fringed the banks; Half in thought and half in play, Katie Lee and Willie Grey.

They had cheeks like cherries red; He was taller—'most a head; She, with arme like wreaths of snow, Swurg a basket to and fro, As she loitered, half in play. Chattering with Willie Grey.

Pretty Katie," Willie said-And there came a dash of red Through the brownness of his check-Boys are strong and girls are weak, And I'll carry, so I will, Katic's basket up the hill."

Katie answered with a laugh, You shall carry only half And then tossing back her curls, Boys are weak as well as girls. Do you think that Katie guessed Half the wisdom she expressed.

Men are only boys grown tall, Hearts don't change much, after all, And when long years from that day, Katie Lee and Willie Grey Stood again beside the brook Bending like a shepherd's crook-

Is it strange that Willie said-While again a dash of red Clossed the browness of his check-I am strong and you are weak; Life is but a slippery steep, Hung with shadows cold and deep

Will you trust me, Katie dear? Walk beside me without fear? May I carry, if I will, All your burdens up the hill?" And she answered with a laugh, "No, but you may carry half."

Close beside the little brook, Bending like a shepherd's crook. Washing with its silver hands, Late and early at the sands, Is a cottage, where to-day Katie lives with Willie Grey.

In a porch she sits, and lo! Swings a basket to and tro, Vastly different from the one That she swung in years agone; This is long, and deep, and wide, And has—rockers at the side!

Sponges---What are They.

Sponges belong to the lowest class of aninials; a creature which may be said to form the first link in the great chain of aves led 300 comrades, skillfully, brately and life which ends with man. The microscopic protozoon is by no means unfrequently to be met with in stagnant waters and vegetable infusions. It is a minute semi-fluid mass, presenting scarcely any exidence of distinct organization, even of the simplest kind. When the creature, in the course of its progress, meets with a particle capable of affording it nutriment, its gelatinous body spreads itself over and around the precious morsel so as to envelop it completely. The substance thus taken into this extemporized stomach undergoes a sort of digestion, the nutrive material being extracted, and the indigestible part being, as it were, squeezed out of the body. Of the mode of its reproduction nothing Jet is known, save that it undergoes multiplication by self division, and that portions separated from the mass, either by cutting or tearing, can develop themselves into independent beings. This living speck of jelly which can get along without legs, and which convert any portion of its substance into a s.omach, may be regarded as a type of protuzua. In the living sponge the skeleton, usually compased of a fibrouf network, strengthened by spicules of mineral matter, is clothed with a soft flesh. Most sponges are strengthened by calcarous or siliceous spicules, and the variety of forms presented by these bodies is almost endless. In the ordinary sponge, spongia officinalis, the fibrous skeleton is almost entirely destitute of spicules, but in the curious and beautiful sponge of Barba-The following facts, called from the does the catife network of fibres is com-
