STATE CONVENTION.

The Union State Committee have issued the following call for a State Convention:

The loyal citizens of Pennsylvania, without distinction of party, who desire cordially to unite in sustaining the National and State Administrations in their patriotic efforts to suppress a sectional and unwholesome rebellion against the unity of the Republic...

C. P. MARPLE, Chairman of the Union State Committee.

The following resolution was adopted by the Committee:

Resolved, That it be recommended to the loyal citizens of Pennsylvania, without distinction of party, to organize in each election district of the State a Union League...

MUSCLE WILL TELL.

For that mobile revelator of the undercurrents of thought and passion, the human face, the race has abundant cause to be grateful. Men carry their characters upon their faces.

This generation is witnessing a return of the "times that try men's souls." A then, the monarchic influences of the Old World are combined against us...

We have been led to these reflections by the varied facial revelations following the receipt of news of supposed disaster to our army on the Rappahannock.

There was another class, and, thank God, a comparatively small one, who received the tidings with brightening eyes, and faces radiant with a secret joy...

Now, which of these classes, judge you, represents the sterling patriots of the country?

Here is a fact which may have some slight bearing upon the question: It was in the Spring of 1861—in fact, in the afternoon of the 19th of April—when the telegraph announced the mobbing of Massachusetts troops on their transit through Baltimore...

All our wounded left on the other side of the Rappahannock have been brought over. While in Rebel hands they were treated as well as they had reason to expect.

carried a more marked badge of defeat on their faces than the four evil prophets before-mentioned. Those prophets of evil soon after cast their lots with open and armed rebellion.

And the faces of these men were illumined always in degree as the prospects of the country seemed dark, and we mentally marked them as false traitors before they opened their lips.

You may say that these were a nobler breed. So they were.

BUT MUSCLE, FACIAL MUSCLE. WILL TELL!

Now, every man will draw his own inferences; we drew ours. And we never hear a man belittling every effort of the Government, or prophesying evil continually; or smiling when outspoken patriots grieve over disasters that most sometimes come...

THE RESULTS.

Hooker re-crossed the Rappahannock with his entire army, and occupied the old encampments, without the loss of a wagon or an ounce of provisions. He has taken one more gun than he has left.

Gen. Stoneman's expedition was the most daring and successful cavalry raid during the war. When Stuart rode around McClellan's army, he did no damage beyond stealing a few horses.

Death of Stonewall Jackson.

Richmond papers admit the death of their favorite partisan General, Thos. J. Jackson, on Monday last, after having his left arm amputated. In the recent battles, he was shot through the right hand and left arm—the Rebels say, by their own soldiers, accidentally.

The death of Stonewall Jackson in the East, and Earl Van Dorn in the West, deprives the Rebels of two noted leaders.

A Cairo dispatch says that Adjutant Gen. Thomas has organized ten regiments of negroes, and expects to organize ten more.

Since the retreat of the Rebels from South East Missouri, no new developments have occurred to indicate the designs of Price or the leading Rebels for a further campaign in Missouri.

Richmond papers of the 14th are received at Fort Monroe. They contain a Charleston telegram of the 12th reporting that the Unionists are unusually active, and have built formidable batteries on Folly Island...

Gen Hunter writes to Gov. Andrew in high praise of the colored soldiers now in service at Port Royal; they are hardy, brave, patient and obedient; with a few intelligent blacks from the North to aid them, they might make extensive and important incursions into the most densely populated slave regions.

Gen H. G. Berry, who fell in the late battle of Chancellorsville, was buried, with Masonic honors, at Rockland, Me. A large number of the most distinguished citizens of the State participated, among whom were Vice President Hamlin and Gov. Coburn.

LATEST WAR NEWS.

By steamers we have New Orleans dates to the 10th inst. Letters and papers contained nothing direct from Gen. Banks, and it is, of course, to be inferred that he is all right.

Gen. Banks has issued an order proposing the formation of an entire Army Corps of Blacks, to be called the Corps d'Afrique. In consequence of further disturbances in places of amusement about national airs, Gen. Sherman had ordered that programmes shall be submitted to him before publication...

The Rebel telegrams represent that Gen Grant is actively employed in Mississippi. The Richmond Enquirer of the 14th publishes dispatches from Jackson, Miss, stating that 1,000 of Grant's cavalry entered and burned Crystal Springs...

Skirmishing commenced at 9 o'clock in the morning, and at 1 p. m. the battle opened heavily. Reinforcements were then arriving so rapidly to support the Union troops that the Rebels fell back through Raymond, making a stand at Mississippi Springs...
