BY J. G. HOLLAND. Peace in the clover-scented air, And stars within the dome: And underneath, in dim repose, A plain, New-England h Within, a murmur of low tones And sighs from hearts oppressed,

THE HEART OF THE WAR.

Merging in prayer, at last, that brings The balm of silent rest !

I've closed a hard day's work, Marty,-The evening chores are done; And you are weary with the house, And with the little one. But he is sleeping sweetly now, With all our pretty brood; So come and sit upon my knee, And it will do me good.

Oh, Marty I I must tell you all The trouble in my heart, And you must do the best you can To take and bear your part. You've seen the shadow on my face, You've felt it day and uight; For it has chilled our little home, And banished all its light.

I did not mean it should be so, And yet I might have known That hearts that live as close as ours Can never keep their own. And we're fallen on evil times, And do whate'er I may, My heart grows sad about the war, And sadder every day.

I think about it when I work, And when I try to rest, And never more than when your head Is pillowed on my breast; For when I see the camp-fires blaze, And sleeping men around, Who turn their faces towards their homes And dream upon the ground.

I think about the dear, brave boys. My mates in other years, Who pine for home and those they love, Till I am choked with tears. With shouts and cheers they marched awa

On glery's shiring track, But, ah 1 how long, hew long they stay ! How few of them come back ! One sleeps beside the Tennessee,

And one beside the James, And one fought on a gallant ship And perished in its flames. And some, struck down by feil disease, Are breathing out their life; And others, maimed by cruel wounds, Have left the deadly strife.

Ah, Marty ! Marty ! only think Of all the boys have done And suffered in this weary ward Brave heroes, every one ! Oh! often, often in the night, I hear their voices call "Come on and help us. Is it right That we should bear it all?"

And when I kneel and try to pray, My thoughts are never free, Eut cling to those who toil and fight And die for you and me. And when I pray for victory, It seems al ost a sin

To fold my hands and ask for what I will not kelp to win.

Oh! do not cling to me and cry, For it will break my heart, I'm sure.you'd rather have me die Than not to bear my part. You think that some should stay at house To care for those away ; But still I'm helpless to decide If I should go or stay.

For, Marty, all the soldiers love, And all are loved-again; And I am loved, and love, perhaps, No more than other men. I cannot teh-I do not know-Which way my duty lies. Or where the Lord would have the build My fire of sacrifice.

I feel-I know-I am not mean ; And, though I seem to boast, I'm sure that I would give my life To these who need it most. Perhaps the Spirit will reveal That which is fair and right; So, Marty, let us humbly kneel And pray to Heaven for light.
