POTTERHEOURNAL m. w. Mc marney, Proprietor

 $\substack{\text { nine } \\ \text { onis } \\ \text { sis. mornthe } \\ \text { cont }}$

 eeference.
 Blanks, and Job Work of all kinds, at tended to promptly and faithfully.
. BUSINESS CARDS. Free and Acepted Ancient York Masons EULALA LODGE, No. B42, 17.1 . M.
 JOMV S MANN,

 He adjoning Counties. O. T. ELLLSON, PRACTICNG PHISHAS, Coudernnt, Pa,

 $\frac{\text { Coudermar, }}{\text { COLILSES SMITH, }}$ COUDERSPORT HOTEL, B. F. GLASSMIRE, Proprietor, Corner O$\frac{\text { He Lithers Stable is also kept }}{\text { H. J. OLIMSTED }}$

 Whiller. . . ....... c. mitans ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW, HARRISBURG, PA.
 Pension Bounty and War Claim Agency.
登enisions, bounty, and anrearse of pay obtaine

 HOWARD ASSOCIATION, treatment-in reports of the HOWARD A sociation-sent by mail in sealed Iett

A LITTLERAICER
H. br orpaies c. кera

Wha bis mangled last remains Oh, thit outer things than trains, Took us to neigbuoring city;

"Why 1 thougt you only mant, Yet you seem lon deanh intent-Bare you sole my heart to break i

MAREMERIDEN. "Come, Mark Meriden! don't settl down itato an old grandfather beiore your Hine-a pretly wife's a prety thing, Marh, and a: prety bouse is a pretty littie of life."
Mark Meriden stood at his desk, gir.
ing a last look at his books, while Beo Sadford-the roguish-the merry-the songsingiog the Ben of all Beess, was thu furging on him the claims of a pro. jeced frotic that evening. Now, Blen arinkle of hid blue eye, and a world of waggery in the turn of his head, and pair of broad roguish diupples that went mar ingly; because I haie an odd facy tha I should lite the pieasure of Mrs. Mer den's compans better this evening "Hang Mys. JTeriden-beg pardon Mark-hang mysslf fo: saying so-bu oie don't hike to see a fine fellow burie oie don't hike to see a fine fellom buried alire ! - come take a real wake up with us." us." "Thank ydu, Ben, but I baren't been asleep, and don't necd it. So I'll go hone and see and dinn't need it. So l'll go hon fife, and thereat he turned resolute step homemard, as a we was Mark Mleriden ?" You would not bave askcd, god reader, if fou bad lived in the town of appeared on the outside of bis name of fits most Tastionable shops.

rounded by those harige ensignia of, grace and fashion so that young belles need not aad ashion so tat youag belles need doo bave their eses turned of from bebioling it. Everstifn in the tastoful establish. ment told of o well arranged busioes, from all sorts of people. ${ }^{\text {.p }}$ Mark's shop became the resort for high ton-the fash. ionabic exchange, and pre promenade of beauty and \#ealth Fho came there to be en lightened as to the ways and means of disposing of their surplus revenue-to sec and be seen. So attentire, polite, tod considgrate was Mark, so profound his bows, of bright his yes, 50 nonecep. tionable Lis whiskers, that it might have honable his whiskers, that it might hare proved a dangerous resort for ladies; had not a neat, tasteful house going ap in the neighborhood been currently reported as the future residence of an already Mrs.

Meriden, and in a ferr months the house Meriden, and in a ferw months the house, neatly finished, and tastofully furnished, received the very lady who called herself to that effect, She mas as truly refneed and lovely a wooman as and lovely a woman as ever formed the centre fo forerina a domestic borquet, and Mark might juitly be pardened for har ing as good again an opinion of bimself for having been fortuate enourh to se cure her.
Mark had an extensive circle of busiNark had an extensive circle of busi-neas and pleasure acquaintances, for he haean one of the social companionable sort, whose money geaerally foand it was out of hic pooset in very fair he ras given to clabs, ofeter euppers, $\left\lvert\, \begin{aligned} & \text { and now and then a wine party, and va- } \\ & \text { rious other social privileges for elevating } \\ & \text { oue's spirits and depressing cne's cash } \\ & \text { that abound in enligbtened }\end{aligned}\right.$

 ones, which on greater or sualler occaanns, would amount to a sum so consid erable. Mark looked about him - the erable. Mark looked about him-the morld ras |ging well-his. ${ }^{\text {besiness ma. }}$ chinery moving in exact tough and time warl thought not, and thertfore as he woomeward be stepped iuto the bobeller's and orcered sone boolsboabseller's and ordered some books of superb engravigs for Mrs M friden, and spoke to a gardener to send sowe exctics, for whica le bad heard ber express an admiration some eveurings before.

$\qquad$in early manhood, there would ofterer b found such records as the folloring frou the Congreyationalist: In one of our inamad town were, a few years sioce, five boys, apprentices inmany different stores., Bya eimilarity ofcome very intiaate and in age revival beat sch beforo the world, and went dut to labor in the vinegard of the Master. Insabath and mission schools they, faithful, zealons, earnest workers, theirthe weekly church peetings; the pritcast$d$ with wordd of despondent, were gheer espective pastors looked to them, eve on their youthfula tion in every goood Ford and work, and did not look in raid some orn industry for support, and inand sisters with the meagre salary of clerrss under age, yet from a sense of duty theyive one tenth of their inconene to the Lord and God has testified in experience that he will Lonor thosd who honor Him.Without hoopes or inf fuential friendp, eso bas attained añ entiable position io busi-ness circles and id tooiety.
One is a highly esteemed merobautone of our cities, ghose hast is eror de vising liberal things, responding to evervising liberal things, responding to ever call made in bebalifor the poor and needAs he once femathed to the writer, ", can't help giriug there is so much pleasAnother is an active, energetic businestire in the Church and Sabbath schooldisbursing freely of his own . Eubstance ad the trusted almioner of others' bouctad the trusted almoner of others' bouct The third is the caskier of a bank i Wisenrisconsin, of whop a well-known West rissionary writes thus: "Noble soubat he is: Your tomn has sent out noodaiiy example tells as much as agy that now.,Wese oforth is a partner in the banking ceavy business résponsibilitiès restand held in respect and confidence b the Street fraternity; be bas attainedmost laborious effort. In the churcnd Sabbath school he is a a faithful, devoted laborer. The other is also a businessman of rare probity, strinking from no conscientious to the last degree, and eve diligent in basiness, ferving the Lord.The enviable pqition these ones poor and peoniless boys now sustain shows theseattereth and yet ipercaseth,", avd proves that godliness is profitable even in thi y their pled dei but in many casess, p Great power for the Churoh and fo loes men, and it if a beentiful sight to witness an extended business carried on ith reveronce we spraik it

