Mr. E. J. Jones of Blossburg, is the general agent for the sale of the Domerest & Co's. Spool Thread Rack and Bobbin Winder, a very ingenious attachment to the sewing machine. This rack sells at sight to those owning machines. Andrew Foley has them for sale.

Veterinary Surgeons all over the country are recommending Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders for the following troubles in horses:—Loss of appetite, roughness of the hair, stoppage of bowels or water, thick water, coughs and colds, swelling of the glands, worms, horse-ail, thick wind, and heaves.

NEW BOOKS.—Many of the latest and best publications of the day have recently been added to the Circulating Library, and are now ready for all lovers of good reading. If you want to get the use of good books at a merely nominal price, just drop in at Hastings & Coles, and take a look at their collection.

BINDING.—We are now packing another large invoice of binding, such as magazines, files of newspapers, &c., which we will send to the city on the first day of May. Parties having binding to be done will find specimens at our Bookstore.

E. B. YOUNG & Co.

Wellsboro, April 3,-3t

We call the attention of our farmers, and especially of our dairymen, to the business card of Messrs. R. S. Bailey & Son, produce commission merchants of Philadelphia. The senior partner is well known in Wellsboro, having been engaged in business here about ten years. We believe the house to be upright, honorable and prompt, and recommend it to the confidence of our producers.

A friend of ours who is chief clerk in the Governmental Dispensary, says that no medicine chest is now complete without Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. We always supposed it was prescribed by law; if it is not, it ought to be, for certainly there is nothing in the whole materia medica of so much importance to the soldier and the sailor as Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

For a neat Boot, Balmoral or Gaiter, go to Charles Searle, next door to B. T. Van Horn's ware-rooms. Select stock newly arrived. Will not be beaten on price or quality.

Next week a new stock of first class work, spring styles, will be offered.

Hides, calf skins and pelts wanted, for which the cash is waiting. C. W. SEARS.

The new M. E. Church in Mansfield (D. V.) will be dedicated to the service of Almighty God, Thursday, April 18th, 1872. Preaching at 11 o'clock a. m., by the Rev. B. I. Ives of Auburn, N. Y. and at 7 o'clock p. m., by Rev. Dr. Buck of Wellsboro, Pa.

The Ministry and Laity of Troy district, and the former pastors of this church are specially invited to be present.

W. D. TAYLOR.

Mansfield, March 27, 1872-4w.

Spring has come at last, and the trout season is already upon us. It becomes every lover of the "gentle art" of trapping the speckled beauties to be fully armed and equipped as the angling code directs. And we know no better place to find whatever a fisherman needs than at Hastings & Coles. That firm have a very large and fine assortment of rods, baskets, lines, hooks, flies, and everything else in the fishing line, which they propose to sell at the lowest prices at wholesale or retail.

Notwithstanding the recent great rise in Hardware (from 20 to 50 per cent.,) J. Schieffelin, Jr., Tioga, Pa., has resolved to sell his old stock, amounting to $7,000, at an advance of not more than 10 per cent. for heavy or shelf goods, for cash. Agricultural Implements will be sold as low, and in some case lower than last year. One of the best Mowing Machines in the market for $85, warranted; Grain Drills, Plows, (8 kinds,) Harrows, Cultivators and Shovel Plows in same proportion. Farmers will do well to take a look before buying. April 3,-2w.

H. C. Perry's Emporium of Fashions, is the only resort in Steuben county, that we have any knowledge of, where gentlemen love to go shopping. His stocks of Cloths, Cassimeres, and Vestings are always attractive, and comprise everything that man needs for adornment, service or comfort—the "nobbiest" neckties, the "snowiest" collars, the "purest" linen, etc., are always on hand. Leather and canvass traveling bags which none can beat. The "outer" man is decidedly "transmogrified" when a body puts on a suit cut by Jo Scott, and made at Perry's Emporium of Fashion. Corning, N. Y.—Democrat.

A CARD.—The AGITATOR of January 31st, 1872 contained a statement over the signature of J. B. Hardy stating that on the 28th of November, 1871, Mr. G. S. McKinney was tried before a committee of the W. M. Church of Charleston for telling a falsehood, found guilty and expelled. Since the matter has thus been brought before the public, it is due to Mr. McKinney and his friends that an explanation of that charge should be given equal publicity. The trouble arose in this way: Some time in October last Elder Scudder and wife went to McKinney's house to visit, arriving there about noon. They had their dinner there about 2 o'clock p. m., and went away about 4 o'clock without their supper. McKinney was afterwards accused by Scudder of saying to some other person, "Now you come and make us a visit, and we will try and do better by you than by some others that were there a short time ago, for they were dissatisfied." McKinney denied that he said this. Scudder said others heard him say it. McKinney then said if they said he said it, he would admit he did, but that he did not remember saying it. Then Scudder brought the charge of falsehood against McKinney before the Quarterly Conference. That Conference consisted of J. B. Hardy and his son-in-law George Robertson and Frank Scudder, the son of Elder Scudder, who brought the charge in this matter. These three men proceeded to try Mr. McKinney when he was necessarily absent in Wellsboro on business, and could make no defence. Afterwards Mr. J. B. Hardy went to Mr. McKinney's house when Mr. McKinney was not at home and talked to Mrs. McKinney, who had just got up from a fit of sickness, in regard to her husband and the charges against him in a manner not at all to his (Hardy's) credit. As to the donation to Mr. McKinney, it was attended by many members of the W. M. Church and other churches, and by some who belonged to no church, there being about 200 persons present in all. WILLIAM CLARK.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 10, 1872.

Home Affairs.

Briefs.

—April showers are now in order.

—Hon. John I Mitchell arrived home last Friday night.

—Our new Depot and Freight House, are progressing finely.

—Wickham and Ferris have moved into their new store in Tioga.

—Judge Harry Morgan of Wysox died recently at the age of 82 years.

—The Presbytery of Steuben county, is to meet at Corning Tuesday, April 16th.

—Rev. Mr. Potter, of the Diocese of Massachusetts, preached at St. Paul's Church last Sunday morning.

—Our friend W. A. Stone returned from Harrisburg last week. He looks as long for this world as ever he did.

—The people of Tioga propose to erect a new hotel this summer on the corner of Main and Wellsboro streets.

—Mr. Jas. Austin, of Charleston, has our thanks for several cakes of superior maple sugar—the earliest of the season.

—Gen. A. S. Diven of Elmira, has been elected Vice President of the Erie Railway, a post he has filled once before.

—The gale last week Monday came near blowing the sides off the old bridge at Tioga, but they were finally secured by chains and saved.

—Immense flocks of pigeons passed over Wellsboro last Monday morning, flying eastward. In a few days our woods will be full of them.

—There was an adjourned term of Court in this village last Friday, for the hearing of motions and arguments, bringing numerous legal gentlemen to town.

—Gen. George J. Magee was in town last Friday looking very little changed since the time we both went to school at old "Haverling Union" in "the days that are no more."

—A young man named William Toby, reached Addison a few evenings since on the Express at 8:30 p. m., and died at the hotel at 11 p. m., of spotted fever. He lived in Tuscarora on the Elkland road.

—The Bath Courier quotes us as saying that the old head of that journal was "admirable," What we did say was that it was "admired," i. e., by the senior of that concern,—a distinction with a great difference.

—The Jenkins lot on the corner of Main and Wain street was sold a few days ago to Messrs. Wright & Bailey for the sum of $3,000. We understand the purchasers intend to erect a brick block on the lot.

—The Register says that a female child about ten months old was recently found on the door-steps of Mr. E. S. Horton's residence in Blossburg, and that the parties who left it were arrested, but released again without punishment.

—Our County Commissioners visited the County House last Friday morning, and found everything in as good order as possible at the breaking up of winter. The establishment has recently been quite generally whitewashed.

—The wind storm last week did considerable damage all around this region. At Painted Post, Steuben county, it took the tin roof off the new school house; at Corning it started the roof on Payne & Sons' office, and at Bath it toppled over a tall chimney on the 1st National Bank.

—The dwelling house of Labash Schimp, on Wetmore hill two miles from this village was entirely destroyed by fire last week Monday, together with a part of the furniture and some grain. The fire caught from a box of wood ashes. Mr. Schimp had no insurance, and his loss is about $800.

—It's just as we supposed. The new head of the Steuben Courier was adopted in the absence of the senior partner of that establishment. We felt sure of that the minute we set eyes on it. And now that "old navigator" is trying to persuade himself that the change is for the better, though he wouldn't have made it.

—The Tioga News of last week has the following notice of Judge Williams's recent lecture at that place: "An unusually large audience gathered at the Presbyterian church, on Tuesday evening, April 2, to hear the Hon. H. W. Williams, of Wellsboro, lecture on 'Now, or the Present Tense.' It has seldom been our good fortune to listen to so eloquent an address. We wish we might often have an opportunity to listen to the Judge."

—The entertainment given by the students of Miss Dartt's department of the Graded School last Friday evening at the Court Room attracted a very full house. The exercises were creditable to all engaged, and were highly appreciated by the audience. At their close Rev. Mr. Karcher made a few remarks, expressing the deep interest and gratification with which he had listened to them. We understand it is Prof. Winters's intention to give an entertainment by the different departments every few weeks during the term, and it is hoped they will all be as well attended as this first one was.

—The junior editor of the Bath Courier speaks rather flippantly of that "old navigator of all" who sailed about in an ark some time since, while all the rest of the world "took water." Our young friend should remember that while that old party was an "antediluvian" he was the most sensible, enterprising, and successful man of his day and generation. No doubt, at that time he could have "doubled Cape Horn" or any other horn with perfect ease. It was only when he became a postdiluvian—one of the genuine, modern, "red-hot" sort—that he found a "horn" he couldn't double with any sort of safety. On full consideration, we decidedly prefer the antediluvian style.

THE BURGEN CASE.—The court room was crowded last week Monday by an audience eager to hear the testimony on the examination of John J. Burgen, charged with the murder of Lewis Culver. The examination was before A. S. Brewster, Justice of the Peace, of this village. The attorneys for the Commonwealth were District Attorney Strang and J. B. Niles, Esq., while the defendant was represented by Mr. M. F. Elliott and Walter Sherwood, Esqs. The testimony given was much the same as that on the inquest, of which we published a full report last week. No new points were developed in the case, and the defendant did not enter into his defense to any great extent. At the close of the examination Mr. Elliott asked the Justice to commit the defendant for manslaughter, so that he might be bailed without further examination by the Court; but the Justice concluded, as the information was for murder, to make a commitment for that offense.

On Wednesday the defendant was brought before Judge Williams on habeas corpus, and it was decided that he should be admitted to bail in the sum of $10,000. Up to the present time, however, he has not furnished the required bail, and is still in confinement under Sheriff Fish's charge.

A POOR APOLOGY FOR A MAN.—We heard a story the other day in which a being that wears trousers figures in so despicable a light that we could hardly credit the account, if it did not come to us on unquestionable authority.

It seems that in Armenia, Bradford county, there lives a man by the name of F. Biddle, having a wife and two small children. Mr. Biddle has no very near neighbors. One day about three weeks since, while her husband was away from home, Mrs. Biddle discovered the house to be on fire in the roof. Hastily wrapping up her little children she laid them down out doors, and went vigorously to work to save what she could of the property. While thus engaged, a team came along drawing a load of logs and something on top that looked like a man. Mrs. Biddle at once appealed to this object to help her put out the fire; but it replied that its team was tired and hungry, and it was anxious to get home to take care of them. And so the load of logs, the team, and the bifurcate object passed by on the other side, and the woman continued at her unassisted work. But, happily, the husband just then returned, and by his exertions the fire, which had been burning slowly, was quenched, and the house was saved from destruction.

We don't give the name of the man who drove that team, though he richly deserves to be published in all this region, for we have no doubt he is ashamed enough of his conduct by this time. If he is not, then nothing less pointed than a pitch-fork will ever penetrate his hide.

"Moral Reform" in Wellsboro.

Dear Agitator:—Recent unmistakable indications in our midst seem to have convinced every one that our community is sorely in need of a "moral reform" movement, especially in behalf of our young men. All are ready to admit that "something ought to be done" to save a large portion of the "rising generation" from demoralization and ruin.

But the question is, what ought to be done? and how is it to be done?

Some are laying great stress on our educational interests, and seem to think if every child in the boro' could be compelled to go to our graded school for eight or ten years before reaching early manhood or womanhood, the proposed end would surely be accomplished; and accordingly they insist that, in view of the issues involved, there ought to be no limit to taxation, for every dollar spent is the best possible investment of the citizens' money. Others hold up temperance as the grand panacea of our social ills, and would have us rest assured that if we could but have absolute prohibition, our town would soon become a terrestrial paradise.

Now, I believe in education, and I believe in temperance; but I am none the less convinced that not a few (and some among us) who aspire to be leaders of public sentiment are simply trying to "make brick without straw." In the very gentlemanly language of one of their number, they may not care the snap of their fingers about this or that class of men; but if they know aught of the testimony of history, aught of the universal experience of civilized nations, they must know that no community, however liberal its provisions for intellectual culture, and however stringent its laws with respect to morality, can afford to do without the conserving power of religion. I do not mean a whining cant or a hollow sanctimoniousness, but a hearty recognition of the fact that it is only by rooting our life in something deeper than graded schools and Orders of Good Templars that the young are to be saved from the worst forms of ignorance and the worst species of intemperance. Let every parent show his or her faith in the immortal spirit enshrined in our children, in the eternal interests entrusted to our guardianship, and the social life of our entire community will soon be pervaded by a sentiment that will lift up the young out of their present demoralization, instead of dragging them down still lower in spite of free schools and orders of temperance.

But how are the parents to be reached, and roused to a sense of their responsibility? I answer unhesitatingly—not meaning to except my own,—it seems as if our churches ought to be turned to vastly more account in this way than they have been, hitherto. It may be true that the very ones we would wish to touch and awaken seldom, if ever, enter them. But let us see if we who represent the churches are wholly free from blame. Our community is certainly taxed heavily enough for religious purposes; and yet very often of a Sunday evening one of our places of worship could easily accommodate, in respect of space, the four different congregations. Why? Because by one portion of the community our churches are too much looked upon as good enough expedients to make us all right for the Great Hereafter, and as having very little to do with our highest well-being here and now; while by another portion they are regarded as "venerable institutions in which to sing dogma" is far above practical christianity and a manly facing of the living issues of our own times—so sadly "out of joint." In other words, on all hands there seems to lie a suspicion that our churches have too little in common with the crying needs of our struggling feverish life-in-the-day.

Now, how is this impression to be removed, so that all, and especially those who most need the help of religion, may be brought within the reach of its influences? The only way, it seems to me, is by using our churches for the creating of a moral and religious sentiment that shall permeate the whole community—serve as a leaven to leaven the whole mass of our people of whatever age. But this cannot be done by complacently pursuing the even tenor of our way, and consoling ourselves with the reflection that if men will go to hell, it is their misfortune, not our fault. Is it right for us to adhere to our past church methods in this boro', when with four ministers the devil is proving more than a match for us all?

But what method would I have us try? My plan is this; as already remarked, often one of our places of worship would easily hold all our Sunday evening congregations. I am, of course, fully aware of the beauties (!) and advantages (!) of the endless divisions which our boasted Protestant freedom brings with it; but surely there is enough on the practical side of christianity to serve as a platform on which all friends of "moral reform" and decency of life can come together. For the bearing aloft of any distinctive denominational or sectarian banner, the half of Sunday seems quite sufficient. Let us, then, instead of our separate second services, hold a union meeting in which the honest convictions of all, whether orthodox or heterodox, whether churchman or sectarist, shall be respected; the great aim of, which shall be the practical discussion and enforcement of this or that duty, the showing up and rebuke of this or that vice; and thus, by the concentrated effort, and influence, and power of all who have the practical morality of our people at heart, let a sentiment be engendered and a moral atmosphere created that shall save the young from profane and obscene language on the part of their elders, from the disregard too often evinced for gentlemanliness and honor, and uprightness in business—save families from the terrors which drunkenness and brutality bring upon them,—in short, make this already civilized as well as truly christian town.

Having already much exceeded the space asked for I would only add that in such meetings the laity could have a hearing as well as the clergy. Christian courtesy and charity would be the rule to be observed alike by all. The meetings might be held in our town hall, or in the court house, or in one of our churches.

What say you, brethren of the clergy and laity? Faithfully yours,

JNO. K. KARCHER,
Rector of St. Paul's Church.

ITEMS FROM LAMB'S CREEK.—Mr. Editor:—It has been so long since I've seen a local in your columns from Lamb's Creek that I thought no one was writing from here at present, and I would send you a few lines. There have been several changes in the business part of the community during the past fall and winter.

Mr. Flowers has removed his steam saw mill about 12 miles further up the creek, enlarged it, bought a new boiler and engine, and lately we've been hearing the steam whistle summoning its workmen daily.

A new dry goods store and grocery combined was started by W. F. Lamb and C. J. Ripley, but is now carried on by Mr. Ripley. The post office has been removed from Mr. Flowers grocery to this new store.

The Frelic Brothers are doing a larger business than they have any previous year since they began lumbering. They have put a new dam across the river to raise a pond to hold logs in, beside completing icebreakers, a race, and making improvements in their mill.

Some are already preparing to build, and others contemplate building as the season advances.

As in neighboring towns, there have been more sickness and deaths within three or four months than is common, though the sick ones are now nearly all improving, and we hope for a healthier time with warmer and more settled weather.

The Millville Census has proved a failure. I will write about by-and-by which I will endeavor to give you an account of. WATCHMAN.

A Voice from the Children of Wellsboro.

Good Mr. Agitator:—Are you a champion of children's rights? If so, then let us have that first of all rights,—the privilege of speaking for ourselves. Mr. ——, you, and the School Board, and Mr. Winters, and our parents, are in league against us, to deprive us of that small portion of peace and liberty which we have. You [illegible] we are weak and helpless, and public opinion is against us. We cannot resist; we can but submit. But before we have our hands bound and are marched off to prison, we will make our protest, if it is not of any avail.

At the school-meeting the other night, Mr. Winters proposed to have an examination every two or four weeks at the Court House, which he urged our parents to attend. Now, do you suppose this [illegible] But no one thinks of asking that! This is not the only time we have been marched away to exhibitions and examinations, like lambs to the slaughter.

At the time of the Fair last year, did we not toil up a dusty road, with a hot summer sun beating down on us, preceded by a band of soldiers, with a fife screeching, and an old drum banging, in order that you might be refreshed by the [illegible] contemptuous forms and shining faces?

Were we not marshalled again and taken to Bowen & Cone's Hall, where we had to perform all sorts of exhibitions, amid crowds and houses looking on? Don't you see us [illegible] stare at us so you put us out? Oh, we cannot begin to mention all the times we have suffered at your hands!

And now our parents will compel us to go to school this new term, and Mr. Winters will make us go to the Court House to be examined, and we shall go on suffering as we have.

Never mind! When the millennium comes we children won't be persecuted any more!

Railroad Meeting at Mainsburg.

Pursuant to public notice a large and enthusiastic meeting assembled on the evening of March 29th, 1872, to take into consideration the proposed railroad from Elmira to Mansfield. Organized by electing John Fox President, J. B. Strong Vice President, and J. M. Clark Secretary. After listening to a number of able addresses, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, The question of a railroad leading from Elmira [illegible] is now and has been for some time past, and is now most unanimously canvassed and discussed, with a view to its early construction, and

Whereas, The consummation of such an enterprise would be of vital interest and importance to our citizens, provided it should be determined to run it through our midst, therefore

Resolved, That we, the citizens of Mainsburg and Sullivan in public meeting assembled, do declare that we will most heartily and earnestly co-operate with our neighboring towns in efforts and measures to further and consummate said enterprise.

Resolved, That in view of the fact that Sullivan Township is unsurpassed by any territory of its area and limits in northern Pennsylvania, or southern New York, for its productions of butter and cheese, grain and stock raising; also in view of the fact that but a short distance south of Mainsburg lie the immense and exhaustless bituminous coal fields as yet undeveloped and unworked, and easily accessible by railway; also the incalculable value of the fine stone quarries lying on three sides of Mainsburg, we in our judgements deem it to be not only feasible, but practicable and of the utmost importance, to both our people, and the citizens of Elmira, and the owners of the contemplated road that its route should be through this place; that the difference in the distance between this and any other route is slight and of no material consequence, and the grades full as easy.

Resolved, That the general business advantages and business of the contemplated road, by directing its course through this place instead of any other route, would recompense the builders and owners of the road a score of times for the additional expense, (if indeed there should be any) on account of additional lengths of lines or distances.

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed by the chair to confer with the directors and others interested in the construction of said road, for the purpose of calling to their attention and presenting the above facts set forth in the above and foregoing resolutions, and that they be instructed to report the result of their conferences and labors at our next meeting.

The following named gentlemen were appointed a committee to consult with the people of Elmira: [illegible] and J. M. Clark.

On motion, it was resolved that this meeting adjourn to meet at the call of the President.

JOHN FOX, President.
J. M. CLARK, Sec'y.

A REMARKABLE MAN.—William W. Hawthorn, Esq., died at his residence in Millsboro, Washington county, Pa., on Sunday morning, the 18th of February, aged about seventy-five years. He was afflicted with rheumatism, which affected his extremities so seriously as to deprive him of the use of both legs and hands for eight years. His legs were drawn up against his thighs, and his right arm and hand contorted into everything but a natural position. The flesh on those limbs gradually shrivled away, [illegible] and body continued to grow into all the proportions of a well-developed man. For the purpose of locomotion he was confined in a box in which constantly lying on his back, he attended to all kinds of business for the last sixty years. He acquired a common English education, and taught school for a number of years [illegible] was serving his seventh term as a justice of the peace, having acted in that capacity for nearly thirty-five years. He used the pen with his left hand, and wrote a very accurate and legible hand. In 1853 he was awarded a contract for carrying the United States mail, on Horse-back, between Elmira and Waynesburg and also another route, which we have forgotten, and at the expiration of the first term he was awarded the contract a second term. He kept a number of horses and faithful employes, but he superintended the whole business himself, [illegible] riding in both directions, spring and fall, Pittsburgh, Washington and Waynesburg, with only a small boy for company.

At the age of twenty-three or twenty-five he eloped with a Miss Wilson, and [illegible] ried without the consent of her friends; but she being of suitable age for matrimony no trouble ensued. His wife proved to be a valuable helpmate for [illegible] peculiar situation, and has lived to see [illegible] him twelve or thirteen children.

He possessed a giant will and mind, and an iron constitution, and by dint of indomitable energy and economy, he accumulated quite a respectable amount of property. Compelled, as he was, to remain continually in a recumbent posture, he wrote with his paper on a small board placed across his breast, and by the necessary habit of keeping his head [illegible] muscles of his neck acquired sufficient strength to enable him to hold his head in that situation for hours without apparent fatigue.—Brownsville Clipper.

SPEAKING of Advertising Agents, the publisher of the Youths' Gazette, at Minneapolis, Minn., says: "We have tried Geo. P. Rowell and Co., No. 41 Park Row, New York, and can rely upon them."

AVOID QUACKS.

A victim of early indiscretion, causing nervous debility, premature decay, &c., having tried in vain every advertised remedy, has discovered a simple means of self-cure, which he will send free to his fellow-sufferers. Address, H. REEVES, 78 Nassau st., New York.

Jan. 1, 1872.

A VOICE FROM THE PULPIT.

Rev. D. S. Tenney, Pastor of the Free Baptist Church, Somerville, Vermont, writes: "I had suffered for many years from Chronic Diarrhœa and Colic, becoming much reduced that I was at times unable to attend to my ministerial duties. I had been treated by several physicians, both Allopathic and Homœopathic, but with no permanent results. While on a visit to Scranton, Pa., I experienced a very severe attack, and by the advice of some of my friends procured a bottle of MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS. The effect then produced gave promise of an ultimate cure, and on my return home I continued its use. I have taken six bottles and am cured. It is truly a valuable remedy" Sold by druggists generally.

Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, California.

Advertising alone does not produce success. The thing which is advertised must have intrinsic merit, or long-continued advertising will eventually do it more harm than good. If you have anything which you know to be good, advertise it thoroughly, and you will be sure to succeed; if it is poor, don't praise it, for people will soon discover you are lying. To Omaha, connecting with the great Pacific Roads. 2d, To Lincoln, the capital of Nebraska, and all that beautiful [illegible] Railroads, filled with R. R. lands and homesteads. 3d, To St. Joseph, Kansas City, and all Kansas points.

The roads are splendidly built, have the best bridges, finest cars, the Miller platform and coupler, and the safety air break (to prevent the loss of life that is every where else happening), Pullman's sleepers, Pullman dining cars, large and powerful engines (to make quick time and good connections), and are in a word the best equipped roads in the West. So that if you desire to go [illegible] safely, quickly and comfortably to any point in Southern Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, or on the Pacific Roads, be sure you go "By way of Burlington."

All who wish particular information, and a large map, showing correctly the Great West, and all its railroad connections, can obtain them, and any other knowledge, by addressing General Passenger Agent, B. & M. R. R., Burlington, Iowa.

C. C. Mathers's Cheap Cash Store.

All hail! creation far and near;
Of Mathers's Store you soon shall hear;
Let peeling Drums and Cannons' roar
Proclaim the news from shore to shore;

Mathers's stock is now complete;
He has good goods and sells them cheap.
He trusts no one, but sells for cash,
And sell so cheap some think him rash.

Some said he would break in a short time,
But if he does then this don't rhyme;
For he sells heaps and sells them right,
And has his cash for all at night.

Of Boots and Shoes so very cheap,
I'll take a moments time to speak;
Delighted too you can't but be,
With prices and the quality.

He does his business on the square;
That is, he does it right and fair.
He says at once just what he'll do,
And what he says is right and true.

I cannot stop to enumerate—
I have bargains both good and great.
My stock is plentiful, cheap and fine,
Especially in the Dry Goods line.
