are entirely inadequate. 'Inflamation of the membranes of the brain and spinal cord' may be made to mean something in intelli-gent families; but as there are no 'spots, either before or after death, everyone ready to inquire, why call it 'spotted fever?'
Petecchial spots may often occur in this, as in all low forms of disease, but if present they are the result of a condition common to all diseases of low type, and do not de serve to give name to such malady.

"Some cases commence by a sudden attack, the patient being noticed, at first, as having some grave malady; in other cases the access is more gradual, the disease not being established and recognizable under three or four days. Pain, and especially pain in the head, is one of the first and most constant symptoms of an attack. It is increased by motion, and is generally referred to the neck and head. Pressure does not generally increase the pain referred to in the back and neck, but as most of the cases have been in children, it has not been easy to determine the amount or location of the pain; pain in other parts of the body is oft-ener complained of. Vomiting is often present from the outset of the disease. Delirium comes on early, in severe cases, and partial or complete unconsciousness is often soon added; a peculiar unconscious, frequently-re-

eye-balls is an almost constant symptom; the pupil varying, at times dilated, again nor-mal or contracted. Tonic contraction of most well-marked cases, and in some instan-ces a complete general convulsion is an early symptom. The urinary and alvine secretions are normal, so far as common observation extends, no special examinations hav-

The respirations are sometimes increased, but in many cases not obviously changed.— Broughitis, with hurried respiration and cough, frequently appears as a complication or as a consequence of the disturbance of nerve action. The pulse varies greatly in the same case at different times. At first it may not be changed; it may be some slower than natural, or it may be very rapid, 160 per minute; it is often noticed as irregular. The heat of the surface is also liable to the same variations.

"The cases thus far observed have either died early, within a few days, or appear to be slowly recovering, no permanent disabil-ities, no deafness, or blindness, or paralysis, resulting. The proportion of deaths to cases cannot yet be determined accurately, but it seems probably that recovery is the rule, and that nearly all cases which survive the first outset of the disease will recover."

Hanging Baskets.

No floral ornament is more graceful or charming than banging baskets, well-filled and in a thrifty condition. There is scope for a wide range of taste and style in the material of the basket itself, as well as the plants with which it is filled. If one lives within reach of a good green-house, and can afford the moderate; expense involved, the least troublesome method of obtaining a hanging hasket is to order one ready filled. The Cincinnati Commercial says: "An from a dollar and a half to six or eight dollars, according to the materials and contents. All the care that the purchaser need exercise is to see that the plants contained in the basket are such as are adapted to the local transfer of the confidence game on at least cation it is destined to occupy, in respect to temperature, sunshine, etc. It is also necessary that all the plants contained in the essary that all the plants contained in the same basket should have similar conditions of growth If a Coleus, Begonia, or Tradegraphic is planted in the same basket by a Congressional appropriaof growth If a Coleus, Begonia, or Tra-descantia is planted in the same basket with a pansy or Chinese primrose, it would prove a failure, for the first three require a degree of heat which would be speedily fatal to the latter. A judicious florist would, however,

The material of the ready-made baskets is generally wire, terra-cotta, or rustic work.—The wire baskets, lined with thick, soft moss, are much the prettiest, but require more care in keeping well watered, as there is constant evaporation from the entire surface. But no one need be deprived of hanging baskets by reason of inability to obtain them ready-filled from the florist. With no expenditure except that of a little labor, directed by taste and skill, articles have been produced which surpass in elegance of appearance the choicest productions of the green-house. Half a coconnut shell; a superannuated wire dish cover; a china bowl swung up in a netting of crocheted zephyr; a wooden bowl covered with rustic branches; any shallow affair which will hold from a pint to a half peck of soil, and can be conveniently suspended, will answer the purpose. The steel springs of a discarded hoop-skirt furnish the material with which a variety of baskets may be fabricated. If a dish of any kind is used, always see that ample provision is made for drainage, by means of a hole or holes in the bottom.

For contents, the forests, fields and roadsides furnish an inexhaustible variety.— Plants of dwarf, compact habit, are necessary for filling up the centre, and those of a trailing habit to hang over the sides. For the latter purpose, Moneywort, Nasturtium, Lobelia crinus, are all neat and pretty.— There is a little creeping plant with a square stem, rounded, kidney-shaped leaves, and blue flowers, called Gill, which is regarded as a weed in the country, but which flour-ishes nicely in hanging baskets, and is some-times sold by city florists for that purpose. Some of the prettiest baskets we ever, saw were home-made, and filled with forest plants: Trailing Arbutus, Wintergreen, Partridge berry, the barren strawberry, and directly in the centre a strong rhizome or "root" of fern. The latter continues, dur-ing the entire season, to uncoil its rich, feathery fronds, in striking yet harmonious contrast with the bright green foliage, delicate bloom and brilliant berries of its trail.

At a recent farmers' discussion in Scot land, on the improvement of stock, one of the speakers gave the following good advice: "As it is a general recognized maxim that the exterior form partakes more of the conformation of the sire than the dam, and as one sire will to some extent improve the whole of each year's stock, while a female gives but one superior beast, I would say procupe superior males at whatever cost; and should they be too expensive for the size of the farm, let two or three farmers join in the purchase and keep of one animal."

A correspondent tells us how he saved a tine peach tree, and gathered bushels of fruit: Every peach, for years, seemed as if stung by some insect; and though the tree bloomed well in the spring, the number of peaches was small. I dug a trench around the trunk of the tree and filled it with hard wood ashes, and covered them with the earth removed. Then the tree was loaded with fine fruit,

A little story comes from Detroit which has a severe moral for those parents who are wont to disregard the fears of their children. A father and mother went away in the evening and left their little four-year old boy alone, although he begged pitcously to be taken because he was afraid of the wolves and bears. They came back and found the child had become insane from fright, and is likely to be a moping idiot for the rest of his days.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lines. such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption. Among the great discoverice of modern science, fow are of more real value to mankind than this effectual remedy for all diseases of the Throat and Lungs. A vast trial of its virtues, thronghout this and other countries, has shown that it does surely and effectually shown that it does surely and effectually control them. The testimony of our best citizons, of all elasses, establishes the fact, that CHERRY PROTORAL will and does relieve and cure the afflicting disorders of the Throat and Lungs beyond any other medicine. The most dangerous affections of the Pulmonary Organs yield to its power; and cases of Consumption, cured by this preparation, are publicly known, so rémarkable as hardly to be believed, were they not proven beyond dispute. As a remedy it is adequate, on which the public may rely for full protection. By curing Coughs, the forerunners of more serious disease, it expess unnumbered lives, and an amount of suffering not to be computed. It challenges trial, and convinces the most sceptical. Every family should keep it on hand as a protection against the early and unperceived attack of Pulmonary Affections, which are easily met at first, but which become incurable, and too often fatal, if neglected. Tender lungs need this defence; and it is unwise to be without it. As a safeguard to children, amid the distressing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of childhood, Omerky Pectoral is invaluable; for, by its timely use, multitudes are rescued from premature graves, and saved to the love and affection centred on them. It acts speedily and surely against ordinary colds, accuring sound and health-restoring sleen. No saved to the love and affection centred on them. It acts speedily and surely against ordinary colds, securing sound and health-restoring sleep. No one will suffer troublesome Influenza and painful Bronchitis, when they know how easily they can be cared.

Originally the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, no cost or toil is spared in making every bottle in the utmost possible parection. It may be confidently relied upon as possessing all the virtues it has ever exhibited, and capable of producing cures as memorable as the greatest it has ever effected.

Oorning, Feb. 28, 1872.

He trusts no one, but sells for cash, And sell so chesp some think him rash. Some said he would break in a short time. But if he does then this don't rhyme; For he sells heaps and sells them right, And has his cash for all at night.

He does his business on the square; That is, he does it right and fair. He says at once just what he'll do, And what he says is right and true.

I cannot stop to enumerate-
