discoursed in this vein, in a double-leaded editorial: "It is an understood and confessed fact, and needs no concealment, that were there even a remote pres-pect that a straight-out Democratic ticket could be elected, the Saltimore/Convention would sooner put up his Satante Majesty for the Presidency than Hor-see Greeley. To make him the Democratic nominee would be an act of political stultification so extraor-dimary as to be gigantically grotesque. It would be impossible for an honest Democratic to look his fellow in the face without laughing at the absurdity of his stitude before the public. "Nor would a nominstion increase the chances of Mr. Greeley's election. A Democratic ticket is pre-sumptively defated, whether it is headed by Greeley, or General Hancock, whether it is headed by Greeley, or General Hancock, whether it is neaded by Greeley, it has never consented to do before—go outside itself for a candidate and platform of principles which will unite the opposition to the present objectionable Ad-ministration.
