kept thriving from the shell to the butcher's Fowes in Oughands.—A correspondent of the Former's Home Journal thus writes on "The public has yet to learn the full advantage of keeping poultry. Few seem to ap reciate what they may do among trees in orchards. Let any one try them in an or-chard of a quarter of an acre, where they may be kept by a picket fence four or five teet high; put in say 125 fowls, and observe the result. They will avoid annoyance in the garden, of which so many complain, while they work among the trees, doing just what is needed, and destroying everything that can injure the fruit trees in the shape of bugs, worms or other insects, and lay a large number of eggs, which are a cash article, to say nothing of the chickens, which pay well for raising at the present time. I have about one hundred foods which have rave about one hundred fowls, which have worked admirably among my trees, keeping the ground in good condition, keeping oil the insects, and promoting the growth of the orehard. I am satisfied that we have yet to learn the full benefit which may be decayed from the property and the property of derived from the proper management of fowls; and it is quite possible that the method that I have suggested may offer. the: best way of getting our apple orchards in good bearing condition."

PURE-BRED AYRSHIRES.—The following are the characteristics of a pure-bred Ayr-shire: An Ayrshire calf is small, having a clean muzzle and small head; thin forequarters; with broad loin and hind-quarters, which renders parturition easy for even two-year old heifers. Their color should be red, with white spots, sometimes flecked with red, or else with red spots; usually the dark prevails on the legs. Roan, pure white, white chine, or line back or white face, are inadmissible. The red may be dark, even to a brown, but never black, although the original Scotch kine were black and white. They are extremely nervous, requiring the most gentle treatment; intelligent and shy of strangers, and brook no insult. They are easily kept, thrive upon short pasturage, and will produce more milk, butter and cheese, upon the same quantity of food con-sumed, than any other distinct breed.

THE APPLICATION OF BONE DUST.—Why is it needful that bone dust should, in some form or other, be added to our soil, in order to keep it up to its full work in producing crops? The obvious answer is, that we must replace what we have removed in the crops,

That much is thus carned entirely off the farm may be thus shown: Every cow whose milk is sent off the farm, should give about two thousand five hundred quarts of milk, which will contain about sixteen pounds of phosphate, which is equivalent to thirty pounds of bone dust. Each will produce a calf, which, going off the farm, will take with it twenty pounds of bone. From this we see that, independent of the loss from the imperfect preservation of the manure and urine we take from the land at least tifty pounds of bone material to each cow, which in some form or other, must be replaced, or land will lose some of its fertility. It is this fact which has given rise to the idea that a milk dairy is very hard on the land. Such is, undoubtedly, the case. It is more exhausting than a butter dairy, where the milk all remains on the farm, and only the lutter is removed to the city. only the butter is removed to the city.

There are other forms in which this loss may be replaced, except the direct application of bone dust, but that an equivalent must be given for all that is actually removed, no one will deny for a moment.

VEAL LOAF .- Three pounds of veal cutlets, a quarter of a pound of salt pork, chopped very fine. Three Boston crackers, rolled fine; three well beaten eggs, one wineglass of claret or currant wine, half a cup of tomato catsup, five ripe tomatoes, if in season, or a teacup of canned tomatoes; one onion chopped fine, if not disagreeable; juice and chopped peal of one orange, or lemon, which is the most palatable; one small teaspoonful each of pepper, cloves, sweet marjoram, sage and sait. Mix these all very thoroughly with meat, and mould into a loaf. Place in a dripping-pan, cover the top with cracker crumbs, and bake three hours. While baking keep some butter and water hot on the side of the range, and baste the loaf with it, often and very thoroughly.—
Let it stand in a cool place till the second day before cutting. Excellent as a relish for

A REFRESHING BEYERAGE -Dr. Walter held the old man while some men fished out Lewis, in describing the precautions against cholera adopted at the General Post-Office in London, says: "The men employed in sorting letters and newspapers suffer much trom thirst, especially in hot weather, and consequently drink much water while engaged in their duties. Although the Post-Office is supplied with excellent water, much diarrhypa was nevertheless the result of diarrhea was, nevertheless, the result of this practice. To remedy this the officers, this practice. To remedy this the officers, clerks and men of all classes have of late been supplied from the medical department with a most agreeable drink, which not only assuages the thirst, but has, moreover, strong antiseptic and anti-diarrhoa properties. It is called orangeade, and is thus composed: Take of dilute sulphuric acid, concentrated infusion of orange peel, each twelve drachms; syrup of orange peel, five twelve drachms; syrup of orange peel, each twelve drachms; syrup of orange peel, five thid ounces. This quantity is added to two gallons of water. A large wineglassful is taken for a draught, mixed with indee or less water according to taste. The officers of this with phases. coank this with pleasure. It is being con-sumed in large quantities daily, and I am convinced it will be the means of warding off a great deal of sickness." CORN FODDRR.—Mr. Alexander Reed, sof Lock Haven, Clinton county, Pennsylvania, Lock Haven, Clinton county, Pennsylvania, reports that his practice is to cut up his cora as late as he can and avoid frost. After husking, the stalks are bound and carefully shocked till cured, then stowed in the barn. They are prepared for feet as follows: Each morning and evening the quantity needed to for one feeding is cut with a "power cutter," put in a tight box with a mixture of meal bran sprinkled in; boiling water is then poured on, and the box closed with a tight lid, so as to shut in both the heat and to steam. That steamed at night is warm in steam. That steamed at night is warm, in the morning, and that in the morning when fed in the afternoon. Mr. Reed states that, prepared in this way, the cows eat all the butts, a ton will produce more and much better milk for butter than a ton of the best hay prepared in the same way.

Why Butter Won't Come. _ "J. M. B.," Why Butter Won't Come.—"J. M. B.," Quasqueton, Iowa says his experience is, that if cows go too long without salt, the churning takes them twice as long, and when this happens with him, the boys are scouled and sent for the salt-box, and next time the butter comes in reasonable time.

One pound of green copperas costing seven cents, dissolved in one quart of water, and poured down a water-closet, will effectually concentrate and destroy the foulest smells. On board ships and steamboats, thout hotels and other places, there is nothing so nice to purify the air. Simple green copperas, dissolved under the bed in anything that will hold water, will repider a hospital, or other place for the sick, free from unpleasant smells. For butcher's status. pital, or other place for the sick, free from unpleasant smells. For butcher's stalls, fish-markets, slaughter-houses, sinks, and wherever there are offensive putrid gases, dissolve copperas and sprinkle it about, and in a few days the smell will pass away. It a cat, rat, or mouse, dies about the house and sends forth an offensive gas, place some dissolved copperas in an open vessel near the place where the nuisance is, and it will soon purify the atmosphere.

You sek a little too much, Cap:
I don't see how we'll agree,
For the thing looks mighty different
To you than it does to me.
Those Johnnies fought us well, Cap:
I know that—I told 'em' so,
And shook their hands when they stacked their arms At the front, seven years ago.

They led the Democrats before the war, They led the Democrats before the war,
And they want to do it again;
God help the North with offices filled
By Davis and that sort of men!
You can't win the game without the South,
You know very well you can't,
And must count the cost of Southern votes

To help you in beating Grant. I find no fault with the times, Cap. I find no fault with the times, Cap.
For money is easy and tree,
and plenty of odd jobs going
For a played out "vet" like me;
And the country scome to prosper,
The debt is has being paid;
I don't think a change for litter
Could very well be made. I know they find fault with Grant, Cap.

know they find tault with Grant, cap, and They say he loves borres, and smokes;
But then, an angel from beaven
Wouldin't suit that sort of folks,
I have looked at the master careful,
And find that the trouble grows
Can't lead him by the nose, I never liked Horace Greeley,
And I tell you fair and aquare,
Ged never made such a man as he
To fill the President's chair;
For he failed in the hour of trouble,
When the things looked a little dark.
And such a captain as that ain't fit

And now it sounds mighty suspicious.
To here those fellows rant.
Call him honest Uncle Horace
And all that sort of cant;
Why, it sin't hard to remember
How Greeley used to blow,
And called them thieves and traitors,
Not a dezen years ago. Not a dozen years ago. There's oldy one t'ing more, Cap.

That I have got to say,
I won't help to put into office
The leaders who wore the gray;
For the graves are in between us,
Of the boys who wore the blue,
And died in fighting those rebuls
Now voting along with you. The North will never shake o'er, Till the crimson hands of the leaders

Thit the crimson hands of the leader

I hope and trust you can't—
But the soldier's you you'll never get

The Chicago Tribune makes this anxious inquiry: "What does Mr. Greeley represent?"
The answer must depend a good deal on the time to which the interrogatory is intended to relate. By referring back a few months to its files, the Tribune will find that Mr Greeley, at that incompressing the representation of the control o ley, at that juncture, represented the idea of an "inspired harlequin." At present it would be safe to say that Mr Greeley represents the idea of a garrulous old politician who is crazy to get into a big office. —Chicago
