Mr. Greely on the Stamp. Mr. Greely's speeches in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana will not help his cause. He is an experienced politician, and he understands the art of the political platform; but no man can escape himself, and the public opinion of Mr. Greely's fitness for the office he seeks cannot be changed by these proceedings. He thought that the most vital political question of the war he is involved in the struggle, and that he does not intend to discuss it. He will make up for it to him on the first opportunity.

The Union Soldiers. In his speech at Pitsburg, upon one aspect of which we comment elsewhere, Mr. Greely grossly insulted the Union soldiers. His words, as reported, are: "A very large number of men were collected here at a vast expense, with the single purpose of killing the Union soldiers and laying the animosities and antipathies of the South upon the Union soldiers." Mr. Greely's words are not only untrue, but they are also insulting to the Union soldiers. He is a man who has been a member of the Union since 1848, and he has served in the Union Army during the war. Breeding Horses. The New England Farmer observes that the first three into which most breeders fall is in attempting to make the more superior, but to do so they have to be content with the best material that they can get. They do not think of propagating from an animal until its body has become a machine, and they do not think of propagating from an animal until its body has become a machine, and they do not think of propagating from an animal until its body has become a machine.

Why Farming Will Not Pay. A writer in the Practical Farmer says: A farmer who is grubbing that farming don't pay, asks how I kept my plow on a night. I had an accident. I got through using them in the Fall. I cleaned and gave them a good coating of grease. He said the practice of cleaning the plow is a very good one. It saves the oil and labor cost less than the waste of rust, and does not remember that my Spring plowing is half done. He says that the plow is a very good one. It saves the oil and labor cost less than the waste of rust, and does not remember that my Spring plowing is half done.
