Are—The Mulctoe Bough.

There was an old doctor that wore a white hat;
He made pills of Free Love and Free Farms and all that.

Patent pills of pig-iron and copper and wool,
And expected in cure Free Trade with 'em, the fool.
And first to be seen, like a quack at a fair,
This Chappequack mounted an edgor'a chair,
With one paut in one boot, and he away out one tune,
That the pill for all ill was his daily Tribune.
Oh, the Tribune old pill!
Oh, the Greeley old pill!

Then he politics tried, and sought as Republican To feed at the public crib, drink from the public can. Bill Seward and Weed took him in as a partner, But the share that pill brought wasn't what be was The state state plus or order to want to the state of the state of the upper political crust.

For this he called all southern Democrats knaves, and he hated them more than he loved their poor siaves.

Oh, the political pill!

Oh, the Greeley old pill!

So he cut the concern; and to farming he went: What he knew about farming wasn't worth a red cent. He grew broom-com to get the broom handles for lumber, lumber.
He planted a cow, and milked a cow-cumber.
But although in his farming things looked rather mixed, lis in politics soon got himself snugly fixed by not knowing, when Tammany Hings were in vogue,
A Ropublican subt from a Tammany rogue.
Oh, the farming old pill!
Oh, the Greeley old pill!

When the plague of secession broke out this quack cried.
"Oh, this plague may kill some one; the Union must olide."

So the Démocrats said, "You're the doctor we want:
Doctor Lincoln was killed, but our death is this Grant
His practice with Kuklux is thorough and bold,
And he leaves the big robels all out in the cold.
Help, Tammany friends in Republican ranks!
Come, Greeley, Doclittle! We'll take even Hanks."
Oh, the Tammany pill!
On, the Greeley old put!

Then Seymour and Behnont and honest Bill Tweed, Schurz, Sumner, and sore headed Fenton, agreed, To follow the war path no more, but instead To bury the hatchet—in Doctor Grant's head; And while dying Domocracy's blood was yet warm, Let Greeley prescribe his new pill called Reform; Baform poor Denocracy wooh her feet. Reform poor Democracy upon her feet; Reform himself into good Doctor Grant's seat. Oh, the reforming old pill! Oh, the Greeley old pill!

Democracy lay on her Baltimore bed,
No mortal could fell whether living or dead.
Doctor Greeley appeared, and said, "My dear friend,
My ends will be served by postponing your end.
Just exitle your stomach to settle my pfl."
And take me down quickly, for I am the bill.
Belmont abuts her syes, and one Burr holds her ness,
A giap opens has mouth, and down Greeley goes.
Oh, that Baltimore pill!
Oh, that Greeley old pill!

Now Greeley is swallowed, the question must be, How with such a weak stomach the pill will agree, with a patient so sick, such a pill cannot fail. To agree just as Jonah agreed with the whale. With griping and groaning and groaning amin, she'll bear it because she must bear it, and then, The last effort of nature, the last of hor will, In November she'll throw up the old Greeley pill. Oh, that Baltimore pill!

Oh, the Greeley old pill!
