> -A few days since, at Hornellsville, N. Y., Elijah Jordan, while half crazed with liquor, stabbed John Manhart, who had also been drinking. Manhart died three days after the affair. Now, to say nothing of the life thus sacrificed to liquor, just think for a row will cost the decent tax-payers of Steuben county. There are the examination and inquest over the dead man, the arrest, imprispnment, indictment, trial and perhaps conviction of Jordan. Then comes a long string of applications for a new trial, writs of error; stays of proceedings, and so on. When all these fail, there is a strong attempt made to obtain a pardon, or at least a commutation of sentence from the Governor, and that at tempt failing, the county is at last called upon to pay several hundred dollars to the sheriff for strangling a human being according to law. And all this comes from allowing some worthless person to sell liquor. Leave out of sight the two lives lost, and think a moment whether it pays.

A New Hotel and an Old Landlore. two has heard of Sol Bunnel. And everybody who is acquainted with Bunnel i aware that he knews how to keep a hotel as weil as the next man and a great deal better than most men. It is because we are ourselves well assured of his proficiency in that line, by many months, continuous experience, that we feel peculiar satisfaction in chronicling the fact that he has at last become the keeper of the hotel known up to this time as the Cone House, but hereafter to be called the Bunnel House. That to be called the Bunnel House. That Ton, detailing what were stated to be the cir-house should have been always a credit to cumstances of a most brutal outrage committhe place, but from the manner in which it has been kept it has not been, and we are hands which can and will make it what i should be-a first-class hotel. Mr. Bunnel takes possession of the house under such a favorable arrangement that he is enabled at once to make many needed repairs and improvements in it; and for the past week the workmen have been busy gettingthings to rights. When they get through the house will be completely finished, in the house will be completely finished, in thorough repair, and a model of neamess and attractiveness. As for the table, every body knows that Bunnel is an excellent caterer and a generous provider. He has entered it in this wife, his wife, his young son, and it will be for his interest, as we know it will be his pleasure, to make it the best hotel ever kept in Tioga county. We hope he may find increased reputation and profit there, and, we heartly commend the Bunnel House to the favor of the traveling public.

The Parish Guide is a monthly publication devoted to the parochial interests of St.

James Episcopal Church, Mansfield. It is on both sides. It is a block 578 feet long and but two buildings remain.

Such a publication can be made very useful in advancing the work of the Church.

The Elmira Advertiser of last Thursday contains this item: "Two men, whose names of water, they were saved, and with them is a scentain its cause of water, they were saved, and with them is a scentain its cause of water, they were saved, and with them is a scentain its cause of water, they were saved, and with them is a scentain its cause of water, they were saved, and with them is a scentain its cause of water, they were saved, and with them is a scentain its cause of water, they were saved, and with them is a scentain its cause of water, they were saved. The Elmira Advertiser of last Thursday on tains this item: "Two men, whose names were unable to learn, are reported as having been found frozen to death in the neighborhood of Lawrenceville, Pa. They have in the woods getting out logs."

The J. F. Rusling is continually doing good things for Lawrenceville. His beauties and beautiful by the herculean by the girls, rise, and had himself half risen to ascertain its cause; but, hearing nothing by the girls, rise, and had himself half risen to ascertain its cause; but, hearing nothing to ascertain its cause; but, hearing nothing further was heard, until the girls came into the hall. So far, then, the cridence against the rascals was too slender. So stood the lowing will be found substantially correct: Gibson proposed to the uncle of the girls, to immediately apprehend the villains. He, on the contrary, was very anxious to prosecute two young men went on their business to Edgecombe's four miles west of this place, and there told of the affair, and said they did it, alleging, however, that they thought the girls belonged to the house.

The statement, that the younger girl is sick and not likely to recover, in consequence of her injuries, is simply and purely fictitious—not a syllable of truth in it. I myself saw her at the breakfast table, apparently in good health, the next morning. Tendays subsequently to the affair, the man returned on his way back. The girls were with him, in good health. He and his wifed declined to do anything about the matter; Mr. Gibson persisted, and the depositions of the girls were finally taken. From these depositions it appears that the girls are respectively, thirteen just past, and fifteen next June. They are quite well grown. So now stands the case.

In conclusion, let it be remarked, that, if a common-sense silence had been observed by those to whom the above facts were necessarily reads.

a common-sense silence had been observed by those to whom the above facts were necessarily made known, those two young scapegraces would have been apprehended long ago; but the brains of fools lie entirely in their ears and tongues. And the press, equally indiscreet in matters requiring secresy, seems to delight in nothing so much as to sow on every wind facts the successful issues of which require to be kept behind the curtain. Such pruriency in ears to hear and tongues to talk ruins many a case. In this case, somebody couldn't keep a secret without blistering his tongue; and so told it to the Agitator—the Agitator, to the world. the AGITATOR—the AGITATOR, to the world.

Now, Mr. AGITATOR, I hope that, willing to tell the truth as it is, you will have the kindness to publish this statement, as I give it. I am responsible for what I say. I have been a boarder in this house constantly since the 12th of September last; and I know that Mr. Gibson strives to the best of his ability to keep an unexceptionable house. The above was an ill affair that might have occurred in any house; but, as a rule, the chaste have no need here to fear for their chastity, nor the sober for their sobriety.

In the foregoing statement, I have only put into a clear light facts already heralded to the world. I would not prejudge the guilty; nor would I extenuate their crimes. Only the notoriety already given to this case the Agitator-the Agitator, to the world, hey claim a securior of the fourth was occupied. So, the sum of the part of the building was occupied by Graves Bros., printing office, and office of the Blossburg Register. These young gentlemen will receive the sympathy of every citizen and their brethren of their capital in the enterprise, and had been running only about eighteen months, and had built up a fine business. They lose everything. Loss $1,500; no insurance, and nothing with which to start anew.

A. Reddied, law office, contents mostly saved, loss to be some other points in less essential will be disclosed. Till then, let the sword of justice sleep in its scabbard.

It would seem to the eve of "common-sense" ample time to set the wheels of justice in motion, even if one of the dirty offenders was 'a rich man's son.' About sixty of the number converted are by the fact that the story was made public? offense? Were they not aware that their be known, on the morning of February 4th, ceedingly that their names are not to this day known to us, so that we can give them to the public; and our readers must have remarked, as a singular circumstance in the case, that our correspondent is careful not to mention the names of the offenders. Whether the omission is accidental or intentional we don't know; it is certainly significant. The "two young men from Addison" had a copy of the Addison Advertiser of Febu-ary 26 was handed me, and my attention been already brought before the girls and called to an article credited to the AGITA- charged with the crime. They had already been already brought before the girls and told of the affair four miles from Knoxville and confessed that "they did it," according to Mr. Sayles. It is certain that the statement in the AGITATOR conveyed no information to them. How, then, is it pretended that the publication of the fact aided their or MR. J. M. GIBSON, as well as that of the uncle and guardian of the girls.

In such cases, and in all cases, the simple unvariashed truth is what every sensible person wishes—the truth and nothing but oga county, or of Steuben, by such a supposition, and we think Mr. Sayles will not. Is it possible that these two young men counted ors than their own native hue.

Let us, then, attend to the facts in this son, because they thought the girls belonged til the landlord might be impelled by public in

THE subscriber offers to the farmers through the county the Egyptian Corn, which upon trial was found to ripen if planted even the last of July. It is estimated, from its very prolific qualities, to yield 150 bishels per acre, and weighs, by measure, 65 pounds to the bushel. This corn was produced from some procured direct from Mr. Jones, our Consular Agent, directly on his return from Egypt. It needs no different culture from that of other warteties, and in the South two crops can be raised on the same ground in one year. It grows in the form of a tree, and 34 ears have grown upon one stalk—average from 5 to 16 ears. For domestic use it is unparalleled. When ground and properly bolted, it is equal in color and fineness to wheaten ilour. As a forage crop, by sowing in drills or broadcast (for early feed,) there is no kind of corn-so well adapted to mich cows, and nonethat will yield half the value in stalk or corn.

It can be successfully grown in any State.

Thems:—In order that all may receive seed, we have reduced the price to one dollar a package. Any person who will get up a club of five, will receive a package gratis—15 packages for $20; 100 for $30. One package will contain enough to plant the following season from 20 to 30 acres; also, directions for planting it.
