Lawrenceville April 9th, 1973. A LAST FAREWELL.—The number of the l'ioga News for the 3d instant completed the first volume and terminated the existence of that journal. The paper was founded and has been published during the past year by Mr. S. J. McCulloch, a young man who, we understand, yet lacks several years of reaching his majority. But in spite of his youth and inexperience, the News has reflected no little credit upon its manager as an editor little credit upon its manager as an editor and a printer. Indeed, the sheet has always been a model of typographical beauty. It has always been a welcome visitor to our table, and we shall long miss its bright and cheerful face and short, crisp paragraphs. Mr. McCulloch does not discontinue the News because he has grown tired of the business or is dissatisfied with its rewards, but solely because he has been crushed out by a combination of men at Tioga, after having ed in the last News, and which will be found decidedly spicy reading:

To the Editor of The News.—Sir: "A. L." in his last communication, caused somecents." It has called forth open, down-right demonstration. The arrow which sped from his quiver has sorely wounded them. And oh! what wrath was aroused! So amusing was it, to the lookers-on, as greatly to endanger the safety of their buttons. We sincerely advise "A. L." to remain incognito, a while longer, or smothered wrath may burst forth, in demonstrations similar to those which appeared on a certain snowy direct from the manufacturers, we are enabled to compete successfully, with any dealer in Southern New York, or Northern Pennsylvania. In most cases, there is quite a decline in prices from last year, and we are

Some worthy citizen, of this goodly town, most honorable gentlemen, too, (in their own estimation), by some means got the idea in their heads, that "A. La!" in his communication, meant them! and meant, also, to insult them. Strange idea, most strange, aye, passing strange, that such an idea should have entered even the vestibule of the souls have entered even the vestibule of the souls of these "Innocents," guileless of harm. But that the idea did enter, yea, found a lodgment, proves conclusively that they were the guilty ones. An indignation meeting was therefore called, to take into serious consideration what should be done. They assembled together in grave deliberation; a champion was selected, well worthy the honor, for had he not, with others of his honorable brothers, met with indignity? Who, then, so worthy as himself, to revenge their

then, so worthy as himself, to revenge their indignities?

Well was it, for this honorable body, that a wise head bore rule among its members. With wisdom, sagacity, and penetration, quite deficient in his brother members, he quite dencient in its brother members, he saw that to reply was but to say, "we are guilty, there's no denying it, try we ever so hard." With thoughts so wise, so deep, stirring the soul within him, he arose, and with a dignity and grace peculiar to himself, he thus held forth: "Most honorable gentlemen of this most honorable body, see you thus held forth: "Most honorable gentlemen, of this most honorable body, see you not that we are hit, though, undoubtedly, 'tis true, that you are more deeply wounded than myself, but that we are hit, is a fact too plain to be denied. Your calling this meeting, even, is proof-positive of the fact, a thing which would never have been done had you not been something more than a very little deficient in the 'upper story.' To reply, however, is acknowledging the fact to the whole community, and we would be a little ashamed to do that; moreover, the Agitaashamed to do that; moreover, the AGITA-TOR (which is an abomination to us), might get hold of it, and then what a triumph among our enemies! Oh, calamity most dire! Now take advice, be wise, go about your business, for, be assured, silence on our part is wisdom." Yours,

"A. L's" FIRST COUSIN. Editor of The News .- Dear Sir: As this is to be your last issue, I feel inclined to say a few "last words," and also a farewell, as you are so soon to leave town. It is sad to think of leaving the old home, around which think of leaving the old home, around which so many memories cluster—some happy, and many very sad. May you and those dear to you be blessed and made happier by the change, is the earnest wish of many friends.

Your paper has been a pleasant visitor, the past year, and will be missed among the number that come weekly to bring the news from the different parts of the world. I doubt if the Tioga county Express will be any more welcome.

By the way, I hear the Tioga press has been taking a "trip around the world," and when last heard from, was at some wayside port, "awaiting orders." My opinion thing," now they have got it. My opinion is, that the company will invest, before they get to running, as much as to have bought out the News.

I came across a couple of verses in a leading monthly, which will bear to be digested by some of Tioga's brave ones: Well, how shall I help to right the things that are going wrong?

And what can I do to hurry the promised time of peace? The day of work is short, and the night of sleep i And whether to pray or preach, or whather to sing a

I think some people forget He was here before the came; --It's a little for His glory, and a good deal more

We regret to learn that Mr. McCulloch ontemplates retiring from a line of business n which he has, so far, met little material encouragement and plenty of opposition in quarters where he had a right to look for aid. Of course he will leave Tioga, and seek a more genial field of labor. Wherever he goes, and whatever he does, we wish him abundant prosperity and happiness. We know he will deserve both.
