Another friend at Port Alleghany details his treatment of the bugs as follows: I had a visit from the potato bug about the samo time you did in Wellsbore. I had just received two barrels of Nova Septia quick lime plaster, and took one bushel of the plaster and one bushel of hard-maple ashes, plaster and one bushel of hard-maple ashes, mixed them and put a handful on each hill. Three days afterward I made a thorough search and found only three bugs where the plaster could not hit them. Try it for yourself. It will save your cabbage from the binck bug, and vines from the yellow bug.

Pleasant indeed it is for me to meet you to-

of this opera by the graduating class of the State Normal Musical Academy of Mansfield. But although the heat was oppressive, the reward was ample.

As for ourselves, we were dissappointed by the performance, and we think the audience showed the same feeling, but the dissappointment was a happy one. We are sure we express the general sentiment of the people of Wellshoro whea we say that they were surprised by the proficiency shown by a party of young amateurs in rendering so ambitious a piece. That proficiency showed not only natural aptness, but careful training at the hands of a competent instructor.

Of course we don't pretend to criticise the musical part of the performance, for, unfortunately, our own musical education has
