Solomon Ray.

A hard, close mai was Solomon Ray; Nothing of value he gave away; Ho hearded and saved. And he pinched and shaved. And he more he had the more he craved.

The hard-carned dollars he tolled to gain Brought him little but care and pain; For little he speak, And all that he lent He made it bring back twenty per cent.

This was the life of Solomon Ray. The years went by, and his hair grow gray; His checks grow thin, And his heart within Grow hard as the dollars he worked to with.

aver. "I know," he shouted, "what sardines are is well as you do, or any other member of the board. I'vo eaten enough of them in my life, They are easily prepared. Just take two pieces of bread, and put a piece of ham between them, and your sardine is made."" His honor sat down amid a roar of laugh-ter. He'd got things, such as sardines and sandwiches, kinder mixed up in his mind.

It was a great many years ago, at a camp meeting, that Brother Higgins, a good man but passionately fond of dogs, camo, in one day accompanied by a black-and-tan hound. Somebody asked him to address the congre-gation, and the mounted the stand for the purpose, while his dog sat down upon his haunches immediately in front, looking at his master. In the midst of the discourse, which entertained us much, another dog came up, aud after a few social snifts at Broth-er Higgins's dog, began to examine the hind leg of the latter with his teeth, apparently for the purpose of ascertaining if it was ten-der. An animated contest ensued, and one tor the purpose of ascertaining if it was ten-der. An animated contest ensued, and one of the congregation came forward for the purpose of separating the animals. His ef-forts were not wholly successful. He would snatch at the leg of Higgins's dog, but before his hand got there the yellow dog would be on that side, and would probably take an in-cidental and cursory bite at the deacon's hand. Brother Higgins paused in his dis-course and watched the deacon. Then he ex-claimed, "Spit in his eye, Brother Thompson, spit'in the nound's eye!" Brother Thomp-son did, and the fight onded. "But I just want to say," continued Mr. Higgins, "that outside of the sanctuary that dog of mine can eat up any salmon-colored animal in the State, and then chaw up the bones of its ancestors for four generations without turning a hair!

There is already a large, commodious, three story hotel, most elegantly furnished, in successful operation, and, I should judge, having a fair run of custom. Its guests are accommodated by stages every two hours, to and from the village, during the day time. The road to the village and for thirty miles the other way is one of the most level and pleasant drives to be found anywhere in the country.

ton and Albany Railroad, a fat, good-natur-ed droll fellow, whose jokes have become quite popular on the road. His name is Bill. A few mornings since, while in the perform-ance of his duty of changing baggage, an ug-ly little Scotch terrier got in his way, and he gave him a smart kick, which sent him over the track yelping. The owner of the dog soon appeared in high dudgeon, wanting to know why he kicked his dog. " "Was that your dog?" asked Bill. "Certainly it was; what right have you to kick him 9" is aid Bill "No, he's not mad, either," said the own-er.

An old negro stretched upon a board and slumbering, with his feet pointing to a glim-mering fire, opens one eye and gets a glimpse of them as they stand in the obscurity. Mis-takes them for two little niggers and cries: "Git fum 'fore me !" and relapses into sleep. After a while opens the other eye, and still seeing the intruders says: "Git from 'fore me, I say! I kick you in de fire if you don't -I will, shuah !" and again he snores. His dreams not being pleasant ho soon opens his eyes, and still seeing the little pests he draws up his foot for the threatened kick, but is nlarmed to see the enemy advance upon him: "Wha-war you comin' to now? Ho, my own two feet, shuah !" A reporter for a western paper, speaking

A roporter for a western paper, speaking of a certain fair creature, remarked that "the profusion and color of her hair would lead one to look upon it as though it was spun by the nimble fingers of the easy hours, as they glided through the bright June days, whose many sunny rays of light had been caught in the meshes, and were contented to go no farther." This is better than saying the girl's hair was red.

A traveler was talking of having seen, in a foreign country, bugs so large and power-ful, that two of them would drain a man's blood in a night. Sir John Doyle, to whom this was addressed, replied, "My good sir, we have the same animals in Ireland, but they are there known by another name-they call them humbugs."

Of its founder, Mr. Sim mons, I can only say he does not seem to be governed and actuated so much by a deter-mination to make money in the matter, as he is to erect a monument to his own memory, while living, by rendering such assistance to honest, industrious young men as will en-able them to build up comfortable homes for themselves and families, and to lay broad and deep the foundations of such an institution of learning as will give him the name of 'Philip Brackstory' you in publishing this ee in writing, and you in publishing, this description of what one energetic, high-tone
