

the evangelization of India, in connection with the consecration of men, means, and effort, were brought out, accompanied by facts...

Prayer for Colleges. The General Assembly feeling habitually the importance of a truly pious, as well as a numerous and highly educated ministry...

parents and friends call upon God, on that day, when they are sure of the sympathy and co-operation of thousands in Israel!

Commissioners' Funds. The distance from the majority of the Presbyteries at which the General Assembly, of this year, is to meet, renders it highly necessary that liberal collections should be made...

EASTERN SUMMARY. BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND. The bridges between Boston and Cambridge have long been a subject of complaint, because of the high rates of tolls...

particular, has encouraged him to higher professions and greater encroachments. The Archbishop deserves a fitting rebuke from the people of New York, who expend so much yearly to relieve the wants, misery, and wretchedness, and to punish the crimes of many of his most devoted adherents.

results have been reached probably unequalled in this city. 1. Near Twenty and Green Streets, a plain church has been built costing $8,000. It has a pastor, one hundred and thirty members, and a Sunday School of six hundred, of whom four hundred are usually present, filling the room.

The day has been observed, for years, by different denominations of Evangelical Christians; and with growing interest, as the benefits resulting became more and more obvious. We trust that Presbyterian churches will all be opened, and be well filled with earnest supplicants; and that pastors' tongues will be eloquent in giving instruction, and in uttering the desires of anxious hearts in their approaches to a throne of grace.

But there is a class of "helps" to whom we would address a word—Scriptural helps—the Elders. These are they whom the Lord has appointed specially to aid the pastor; to work with him. In such a day as this the call to them for a full service, is very urgent. Let them give themselves to the work.

And not only the distance of the meetings, but its being called two weeks earlier than usual, makes promptitude in the collections necessary. Let the subject be fully noted by pastors and Sessions.

The Treasurer of the Presbytery of Ohio, in sending us the following note, shows his forethought: "Resolved, That the Treasurer of Presbytery be directed to call the attention of the churches to the importance of contributing to the Minutes of the last meeting of Presbytery."

William S. Tuckerman, the mail robber, has had a preliminary examination at New Haven. The bail for appearance for trial on the 23d inst., was fixed at $20,000, which he was not able to give, and was consequently remanded to prison.

It will be remembered that we stated some time ago, that New York and Brooklyn had been divided into districts, and that every Evangelical Church had one district assigned to its care, for systematic visitation. This work is now in progress with the most gratifying results; nearly every family in these two populous cities will be sought out by some Christian.

Ecological. Three pastoral relations were dissolved by the Presbytery of New Brunswick, at its last meeting, on account of falling below, viz: that of Rev. WM. SCRIBNER, of the church at Red Bank, N. J.; Rev. J. H. CARROLL, of Jamesburg, N. J.; and Rev. J. KIRKPATRICK, Jr., Third church, Trenton, N. J.

From what I communicated on the Prussian non-observance of Sabbath, and some other things, in this country, you will see, though it may pain your readers, how the emotion is strong on the subject. The young Princess knows better; and this scene might have been spared her, and ought to have been forbidden. Alas! how much is yet to be learned by so-called Protestant nations, and how do custom and fashion override God's own unalterable law.

The character of our Colleges, for usefulness or otherwise, depends upon the character of the students, and the character of the students depends, in a great measure, upon that of the teachers. This is emphatically true, with respect to the young men's intellectual character. Few pupils will reach a higher standard of scholarship and of effort, than that required by the Professors. Hence the Professors should be models of intellectual activity; and should firmly require the labor necessary to the highest education.

And the moral and religious character of the students depends scarcely less than the intellectual, upon the character of the teachers. If the teachers are irreligious, then carelessness, skepticism, and scorn of religion, will prevail among the pupils. If the teachers take the ground that they were appointed to teach the sciences, and to "let religion alone," if they feel that their work is done when they have communicated a certain amount of knowledge, or aroused a spirit of intellectual exertion, their influence will be adverse to evangelical piety.

But if the teachers look upon themselves as appointed, not merely to communicate knowledge, but to develop power; not to make linguists or mathematicians, but men thoroughly furnished unto every good work; if they know that, to this end, they and their pupils must seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, since men can be made perfect only in Christ Jesus; if they hear the voice of the Saviour saying, "Take these young men and train them for me;" their moral and religious influence will be powerful. The course of instruction will be pervaded by the religious element. Education, in all its parts, will be conducted on religious principles, and under the promptings of religious feeling. The Bible will thus be the text-book of the College.

Such are the men who should occupy the professorial chairs in our Colleges. For such men should the Church earnestly seek, when she is selecting the educators of her sons. That such men may be raised up to train the rising generation, she should fervently pray.

College teachers are set for the falling or rising of many young men. Hence they should be sustained by the prayers of the Church. Having a more intimate relation to their pupils than the pastor has to the people of his charge, they have, at least, an equal claim with him upon the prayers of those who desire the prosperity of Zion. They should be made the subject of prayer in the public assembly; in the social meeting; at the family altar, and in the closet. We pray thus continually offered for the sanctification of teachers—for the spirit of wisdom and of gifts to rest upon them—would not the character of our Colleges be changed for the better? The teacher, perhaps even more than the pastor, feels the need of the prayers of God's people. He feels that he ought to be a model man, since his example is always before those whose characters are forming. He feels that he can do nothing in the great work of educating men for eternity, unless he have the aid of the Spirit of God.

Mr. HENRY A. HARGROVE, a recent graduate of Princeton Seminary, has received and accepted a call from the Second church of New Brunswick, N. J. Rev. H. P. THOMPSON has been stated supply of the church at Millersburg, Kentucky. Rev. C. LEAVENWORTH was installed pastor of the Camp Creek church, by the Presbytery of Schuyler, in October last. His Post Office address has been changed from Cambridge, Ill., to Macomb, Ill.

Banner and Advocate.

PITTSBURGH, FEBRUARY 13, 1858.

TERMS.—$1.50, in advance, or in Cashes at 60 days, delivered at residence, or by express, freight, and postage, on Third-class Railway, N. Y. & P. R. R. For prospectus, on Third-class Railway, N. Y. & P. R. R. For prospectus, on Third-class Railway, N. Y. & P. R. R.

But if the teachers look upon themselves as appointed, not merely to communicate knowledge, but to develop power; not to make linguists or mathematicians, but men thoroughly furnished unto every good work; if they know that, to this end, they and their pupils must seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, since men can be made perfect only in Christ Jesus; if they hear the voice of the Saviour saying, "Take these young men and train them for me;" their moral and religious influence will be powerful. The course of instruction will be pervaded by the religious element. Education, in all its parts, will be conducted on religious principles, and under the promptings of religious feeling. The Bible will thus be the text-book of the College.

Such are the men who should occupy the professorial chairs in our Colleges. For such men should the Church earnestly seek, when she is selecting the educators of her sons. That such men may be raised up to train the rising generation, she should fervently pray.

College teachers are set for the falling or rising of many young men. Hence they should be sustained by the prayers of the Church. Having a more intimate relation to their pupils than the pastor has to the people of his charge, they have, at least, an equal claim with him upon the prayers of those who desire the prosperity of Zion. They should be made the subject of prayer in the public assembly; in the social meeting; at the family altar, and in the closet. We pray thus continually offered for the sanctification of teachers—for the spirit of wisdom and of gifts to rest upon them—would not the character of our Colleges be changed for the better? The teacher, perhaps even more than the pastor, feels the need of the prayers of God's people. He feels that he ought to be a model man, since his example is always before those whose characters are forming. He feels that he can do nothing in the great work of educating men for eternity, unless he have the aid of the Spirit of God.

Such are the men who should occupy the professorial chairs in our Colleges. For such men should the Church earnestly seek, when she is selecting the educators of her sons. That such men may be raised up to train the rising generation, she should fervently pray.

College teachers are set for the falling or rising of many young men. Hence they should be sustained by the prayers of the Church. Having a more intimate relation to their pupils than the pastor has to the people of his charge, they have, at least, an equal claim with him upon the prayers of those who desire the prosperity of Zion. They should be made the subject of prayer in the public assembly; in the social meeting; at the family altar, and in the closet. We pray thus continually offered for the sanctification of teachers—for the spirit of wisdom and of gifts to rest upon them—would not the character of our Colleges be changed for the better? The teacher, perhaps even more than the pastor, feels the need of the prayers of God's people. He feels that he ought to be a model man, since his example is always before those whose characters are forming. He feels that he can do nothing in the great work of educating men for eternity, unless he have the aid of the Spirit of God.

Such are the men who should occupy the professorial chairs in our Colleges. For such men should the Church earnestly seek, when she is selecting the educators of her sons. That such men may be raised up to train the rising generation, she should fervently pray.

THE SCHOOL VISITOR.—This is a small tract, issued at Hudson, Ohio, at thirty-five cents a year, or five dollars for twenty copies, edited by Alex. Clark. An Educational monthly, for children and schools.

REV. ASA BENNETT.—This brother died at Centerville, St. Joseph County, Mich., on the 16th of January, after an illness of less than two weeks. His disease was pleurisy. He was a member of the Presbytery of Michigan.

WHITE WATER DEBENTURE ACADEMY.—The Students' Mentor issued by this Institution, contains the names of the officers, the course of study, rules, &c. It is looked at Dunlapville, Union County, Ind. Rev. E. McKinney is the Principal.

OUR FIRST AND FOURTH PAGES this week contain articles somewhat long; but they are valuable. Our friends who do not find their communications in the paper, now or hereafter, must not impute it to indifference on our part. This for want of room.

THE LUTHERAN OBSERVER.—Rev. Dr. Kurtz, after twenty-five years' service, retires from the editorial chair. He ably pleaded the cause of Christ, and of the Lutheran Church. He is succeeded by Rev. F. R. Anshutz and G. Dethl.

A MINISTER DECEASED.—Rev. William John McMahon, B. A., died of consumption, in Allegheny City, Pa., on the 28th of December, 1857, in the 38d year of his age. He was a native of Ireland, and a son of the late Rev. Robert McMahon. He died in the full hope of a glorious resurrection.

THE FUTURE OF MINISTERS.—We have been kindly furnished with printed slips, of a letter of Mr. Owen, speaking of these brethren; but we previously had in type the letter of Mr. South. The India Mission has sustained a very great loss; but the call is to double, and redouble their forces. A wide door is open.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—We have received from James K. Caldwell, of Mercer, Pa., five dollars, and forwarded it to the Missionary in the West, whose wants we stated two weeks ago. It is blessed to share with the needy laborer, who is engaged in cultivating Zion's wastes, or in extending the Gospel where it had not been established.

South-Western Iowa. The letter of Rev. D. L. Hughes on our first page, will be read with delight, by the multitudes of his acquaintances in Middle Pennsylvania, and Southwestern New Jersey. Brother Hughes applies his hands like a man who means to do something. He went to a new country to labor and endure hardships, and he applies himself, right off, to both, and with cheerfulness. French, he must, and sustain his family he must, and he knows how, by God's gracious favor, the two may be conjoined. The letter is full of information. Let it be read.

American Bible Society. The Board of Managers met and held a long session on the 4th inst. The members of the Revision Committee, dissatisfied with the action of the Board at their meeting, in resolving to return substantially to the old editions of the Bible, tendered their resignations. This produced a profound sensation. Many compliments were paid to them for their labors; and their retirement was deplored. A resolution to appoint a Committee of five to confer with them; was offered, discussed and laid on the table. The Board adjourned for two weeks.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.

Labors in Kansas. Rev. William Willson, late of Erie, Pa., now in Leocompton, Kansas, informs us that he finds an abundant call for labor. He occupies eleven preaching points. One Sabbath he preaches at Big Springs and Leocompton; and on the alternate Sabbath, at Leocompton, Lawrence, and Franklin. The others are week-day and night appointments. He says, "between preaching, hunting up the lost sheep and lambs, getting myself a house built, and getting churches built, I have my hands full." We look for a communication, shortly, which shall give us more fully the state of religion.