THE PILLAR OF FIRE; or, Israel in Bondage. By the Rev. J. H. Ingraham, author of Prince of the House of David." Pp. 600. New: York: Pudney & Russell, Publishers, 79. John Street; Sheldon & Co., 115 Nassau Street. Pittsburgh: John S. Davison, 93 Wood Street.

The great idea of this book is an illustration of the scenes of that period of Egyptian history in which the Israelites were held in bondage by her kings, outside of the Mosaic narrative, yet strictly in harmony with it. The author, well known by a previous work mentioned above, executes his purpose in the form of letters, purporting to be written to the Queen of Tyre from Egypt, by her son, a Phœnician prince, resiits laws, arts, government, and religion, at the to our Missionary literature. time specified. Much time has been given in the preparation of this work, to the study of Egypt ian history, chronology, dynasties, religion, customs, and habits; and the results of the labors of Champollion, Bunsen, Dr. Young, Lepsius, and others, are skilfully interwoven with the narrative. We will best fulfill our duty to our readers, in making known to them the subjects treated in this volume. It contains an elaborate description of the ancient Egyptians; of the productions of their country; of their customs in all the different relations of life; their worship, temples, tombs, obelisks, sphynxes, pyramids, architecture, of their founders, of their most noted women, and most distinguished men. It also sets before us, according to the conception of the author, the Hebrews under their taskmasters; the infancy, childhood, youth, and Sea, and the reception of the Law on Mt. Sinai. The style is fascinating, and the book will have Scarcely a better exhibition of the influence and power of a highly endowed and ambitious woman is to be found, than is contained in these pages. Madame De Chevreuse was possessed of great beauty, wonderful talents, and a courage that nothing could intimidate; and she was in turn. courted, dreaded, and despised. She opposed, controlled, and defeated the most distinguished courtiers and favorites of the brilliant age in which she lived, and spent a long life in gallantries and intrigues, to die at last in obscurity, after having seen all her favorites and all her enemies fall around her. The whole biography possesses the attractiveness of a romance, but the author pledges himself for the entire truthfulness ly does not determine the duty of Chrisof the facts related.

The Laws of Moses In Section 4th of Chapter xxiv., of our Confession of Faith, which treats of incest, the passages of Scripture referred to in proof of the doctrine maintained, are Lev. xviii: 6 -17: and 1. Cor. v: 1. The chief reliance is evidently on the first of these. Is this passage pertinent to the question, what marriages are lawful, and what are unlawful now, under the Gospel? If Lev. xviii: 1 -17, belongs to the judicial law, it certaintians, and cannot be safely relied upon for that purpose; for the civil law of the Jews is not the rule of our duty to God. If, on the other hand, this passage is a revelation of the law of nature on the subject of which it treats, it is as obligatory now, as when it This oration was delivered on the 25th of was first given, on Christians, as on Jews. All the preceptive parts of this chapter the word of salvation comes, as, in part, the rule of their duty to God. 1st. It has the usual form of moral, and not of judicial law. It is delivered in the second person singular, which, as I have shown in a former article, is one of the characteristics by which moral law is dis-tinguished from judicial. In the former, God speaks to the conscience of every individual of our race, authoritatively addresses, every soul of man, saying, thou shalt do this, or thou shalt not do that. The judicial law, on the other hand, is ornot the individual man, but the whole nation as one-person that is addressed; whilst fact, then, that the law under consideration is delivered in the second person singular, furnishes presumptive evidence, that it is Jewish magistrate, to continue in force only during the continuance of the theoreacy, 2d. Another characteristic of moral law "as the judges shall determine," is given.

But no authority to punish sin as sin, i.e. as a violation of the moral law, was ever given to civil rulers. God, the Judge of all, is slone competent to determine the pun-isbment due to each sin, and inflict that

The latter when thus feeling his entire dependence passage teaches what God demands of each upon God.—Child's Paper. ndividual; the corresponding part of Chap., XX. teaches that some of the same acts were to be regarded and punished as crimes against the Commonwealth, and specifies the ounishment to be inflicted. In like manner the sixth commandment forbids " the taking away of our own life, or the life of our neighbor unjustly, or whatsoever tendeth thereunto," but the judicial legislation relating to the same subject, provides for the punishment of overt acts against life only, s crimes against the Commonwealth.

3d. Another presumptive proof that the aw in question is of universal and perpetual obligation is, that it is the only legislation n the Bible on the subject of incest. There are other passages which prove, at least by implication, that marriage between near relatives is sinful; and the testimony of reason and conscience is to the same effect. But neither reason, nor conscience, nor Scripture, if we except this passage, lraws the line, and distinctly defines the limits within which marriage ought not to oe contracted. I know there are some who asintain that God has indicated his will on this subject with sufficient clearness, in the leterioration, by the operation of natural laws, of the offspring of marriages between near relatives. We need, they assure us, no other law or rule on this subject. But waiving other objections to which this view of the subject is liable, this alone is sufficient to show its absurdity. It assumes that mankind, in order to know what God requires of them in reference to this matter, must try what effect the intermarriage of relatives will have on their offspring. Reations must intermarry, and the result, as appears in their offspring, must be carefully observed, before it can be known whether such marriages are pleasing or dis-Whilst the voice of reason is clear, and the testimony of mankind almost unanimous in condemning the marriage of parents with their children, or brothers with their sisters, it is underiable, that in reference to the degrees of relationship within which marriage is sinful, the voice of reason is by no means distinct, and there is consequently great diversity in the views of those who have no other guide, and of those who, though they are in possession of this revealed law, reject it, to follow the light of their own reason. They agree that a man ought not to marry certain of his relatives; but they differ widely when they come to decide how far this prohibition extends. There is certainly need of a distinct revelation of the will of God on this subject; and there is a strong antecedent presumption, that he, in revealing to man what duty he requires of him, would distinctly draw the line within which the intermarriage of relatives is displeasing to him. But we search in vain for anything of this kind, except in the passage under consideration. I shall not stop to prove that this law relates to marriage. The Tewish naud the Christian Church have always regarded it as forbidding, whatever else it may forbid, the marrying of one who is " near of kin" to us. subject of incest is necessary and desirable for Christians as well as Jews, if we have such a law in the passage before us, and if there is no other in the Word of God, is there not a strong presumption; that it was intended, not for the content of the content intended, not for the Jews only, but for all people; in other words, that it is a moral, and not a judicial statute?

Also—Now ready, new editions of "OSCAR," "CLIN." "ELLA," "WHISTLER," and "MARCUS," each of which contains numerous flustrations. The six volumes constitute one of the most attractive and useful series for intended, not for the Jews only, but for all and not a judicial statute?

4th. The context furnishes positive proof that this is not a mere Jewish institute, but law for the human race at all times. In verses 24 and 25 of this chapter, the Casanites are represented as having offended God, and brought his curse upon themselves. by doing "these things." What things? It may be alleged that the things intended are those which are prohibited in verses 20 -23. No doubt these are included. But what authority or good reason is there for stopping at verse 20, instead of going back to verse 6, where the preceptive part of the chapter commences? Does not verse 3, "After the doings of the land of Egypt shall ye not do ; and after the doings the land of Canaan shall ye not do," bear such a relation to versus 24,125, as warrants the conclusion that the "all these hings" of verse 24 embraces all that intervenes? Now, if the Canaanites effended God by doing the things prohibited in verses 6—17, as well as those prohibited in the subsequent verses to 23, they must have been under law to abstain from doing them; for "where there is no law, there is no l for "where there is no law, there is no transgression." Under what other law were they, than that which was written on man's heart in his creation, that law of which the moral law is a revelation? M.

CURE FOR CONSUMPTION DR. CHURCHILL'S DISCOVERY!

Winchester's Genuine Preparation of Dr. J. F. Churchill's Compound of the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME, SODA, AND POTASH. A SPECIFIC REMEDY FOR THE TREATMENT OF

CONSTUME PITTON The great Chemico-Medical Discovery of the celebrated Dr. J. F. Churchill, of Paris, first made known by him to the French Academy of Medicine about two years ago, marks a new and important Era; in the annals of Medical Science.

Now, for the first time is the history of the world, has a newant been found that warely strikes at the very foundation of Pulmonary Disease, and by restoring the deficient chemical, elements of the blood, increases the principle which constitutes nervous or vital force, invigorates the nutritive functions, and thus not only curse, but also preserved the himsulficient of the himsulficient of the himsulface.

Various preparations are already in the market, purporting to be based on Dr. Churchill's discovery sgainst which we solemnly caution both the profession and the public. To remove all doubts in regard to the chemical purity (my preparation of Hypophosphites, I beg the attention) the public and the profession to the following the public and the profession to the rollowing

"I have carefully analyzed samples of the Hypophosphites of Lime, Soda, and Potash (rom which Mr. J. Winchester manufactures Dr. Churchill's Compound Solution of the Hypophosphites, and find them to be properly made and chemically pure! Having had many opportunities of testing the uniform purity of the articles which he uses in compounding this new remedy for consumption, and having a personal knowledge of his honesty and integrity, I feel that I can assure the Profession and the Public that this Preparation of the Hypophosphites can be relied on.

"New York, February 3, 1859."

And now, to further cartion the rubble can And now, to further caution the public against impure and unreliable preparations claiming to be founded on Dr. Churchill's discovery, I quote an extract from a letter published by him, dated the 24th of April, 1868:

lished by him, dated the 24th of April, 1868:

Tretment of Dr. Churchill.

Tretment of Dr. Churchill.

To be used with effect, the Hypophosphites must be perfectly pure; otherwise they may, in some cases, appear altogether inert, or even injurious. In five cases out of six, the Salts usually sold as pure in Paris, under the name of Hypophosphites, are totally unfit for Medical use.

I use no other treatment of any kind nuless required by the existence of complications, such as intercurrent inflammation of the lungs, diarries, cardiac disease; &c."

The use of the Hypophospites shows these preparations to haves two fold and specific action. On the one hand, they increase the principle, whatever that may be, which constitutes nervous force; and; on the other, they are the most erto known. powerful blood generating agents, far superior to any hith-erto known.

The physiological effects of their use are shown by an in-crease of nervous power, sometimes even from the first day of their ndministration, together with an unusual feeling of comfort and strength. The appetite increases, often in an extraordinary manner. The evacuations become more regular and more abundant; the perspirations, if any have existed, cease, sleep becomes calm and profound. All the general symptoms disappear with a rapidity which is really marvelous.

DR. CHURCHILL'S SPECIFICS FOR CONSUMPTION. SYRUP OF THE HYPOPHOSPHITES, Composed of the Hypophosphites of Lime, Soda, Potassa, and Iron.

These remedies were brought to notice by Dr. John Francis Churchill, an eminent physician of Dublin, and have attracted much attention from the medical profession. To give a general idea of their action, we make the following extracts from Dr. Churchill's Paper "On the Proximate Cause and Specific Remedy of Tuberculosis," read before the Academy of Medicine, Paris, July, 1857. Says Dr. C.—amounts to thirty-five. All were either in the ascend or third stages of the complaint; that is, they had either softened tubercles or cavities in the lungs; of these, nine recovered completely, the physical signs of the disease disspearing altogether in eight out of that number; eleven will be found to justify the following conclustens: "The proximate cause, or at all events an essential condition of the tubercular diathesis, is the decrease in the system of the phosphorus which it contains in an oxygenizable state.

"The specific remedy of the disease consists in the use of a preparation of phosphorus, uniting the two conditions, being in such a state that it may be directly assimilated, and at the same time at the lowest possible degree of oxydetion.

"The effects of these falts upon the tubercular diathesis Composed of the Hypophosphites of Lime, and at the same time at the lowest possible degree of oxydation.

"The effects of these falts upon the tubercular diathesis is immediate; all the general symptoms of the disease diappearing with a rapidity which is really marvelous. If the pathological deposit produced by the dyseracy is of recent formation, if softening has only just set in, and does not proceed too rapidly, the tubercles are re-absorbed and disappear. When the softening has attained a certain degree, it sometimes continues in spite of the treatment; and the issue of the disease then depends upon an anatomical condition of the local lesion, on its extent, and upon the existence or non-existence of complications. I have made numerous attempts to modify the local condition of the lungs by the inhalation of different substances, but have never obtained any satisfactory result independent of what was to be attributed to the specific treatment. The Hypophosphites are cortain prophylactics against tubercular disease.

"The physiological effects show these never the set of the se was to be attributed to the specific treatment. The Hypophosphites are certain prophylactics against tubercular disease.

"The physiological effects show these preparations to reprinciple, whatever that may be, which constitutes nervous force, and on the other, they elevate the tone of the several functions concerned in alimentation and nutrition. They seem to possess, in the highest degree, all the therapeutical properties formerly attributed by different observers to phosphorus itself, without any of the danger which attends the use of that substance. The different preparations of Hypophosphorus Acid will undoubtedly occupy one of the met important places in the Materia Medica."

cocupy one of the most important places in the Materia Medica."

The success of this treatment being so much in advance of anything before attained in the management of this heretofore almost incurable disease, calls for a thorough testing of these remedies. With this view, the combination here offered in the form of Syrup has been made.

The beneficial effects of these Salts are not limited to Consumption alone; they are appropriate remedies in a large class of affections resulting from loss of nervous force, Dyspepsia, Scrothia, debilitated conditions of Females, lack of vital action in Children, and where the osseous system is defective. Understanding the chemical nature of these Salts, physicians will be enabled to use them in a large class of diseases where they seem to be indicated.

We have every advantage in manufacturing these articles. The Dry Salts we have been engaged in manufacturing largely since they were first brought to notice, and we know them to be strictly reliable. The Syrup is a combination of the Salts, containing a little over five grains to the tesspoonful, and is the most pleasant form for taking them.

The large demand for this article has induced us to fix it. The large demand for this article has induced us to fix it as low as a reasonable profit will permit. We pack it with care, so that it will go safely, and all orders will receive
