CONCERNING DOORS .- When you go into a neighbor's premises, be sure to leave the doors as you find them. If you find the door shut you may reasonably suppose that your friend wanted it shut, and therefore you have no right to leave it open; and if you find it open, no matter how cold the weather is, do you feave it open; for it is but reasonable to suppose that it was left open for some good purpose. And the same is good for all places, whether they be houses, stores, factories. offices, or whatever they may be. Remember the rule-it has no exception; leave the doors as you find them if the owner of the door does not know how he wants it, how do you know how he wants it?

A FACT.-A man once drove up to a New Hampshiretavern, and coolly asked for a cent's worth of hay. The land-lord led his horse to a shed, and then filled the wagon with loose hay. Mean-while, the owner of the horse called for a basin and soap; and after washing his face and hands throughly, wiped him-self dry on a 'spandy' clean towel, laid down his cent, and was moving off:
"I say!" said the landlord; "won't you take a drink before you go?"
"Well, seein it's you, I don't care if I do," was the reply; and back he went, and took a drink. "You don't live in these parts, I believe, stranger," said the tavern-keeper.

"No," was the reply; "I dont; but I go by occasionally, and as you've treated me so well this time, I'll call and patronize you again !,

KILLED HIS OWN HENS .- Old Col. Higgins owned a flock of hens, which he was very careful to keep shut up during planting season, and his wife would let them out occasionally to enjoy them-selves in the garden. The Colonel seeing them in the garden one day supposed of course they belonged to his neighbor; and greatly enraged at the destruction of his property, he seized his all must be able to the seized by the seized th his old musket and blazed away at them, and sent a lad with the dead chickens to his neighbor's house, with a message couched in language rather more forcible than polite. The next day the operation was repeated, and so on for several days; and the Colonel was greatly astonished at his neighbor's silence and good nature, as he never sent back any more than very polite thanks for the "gift" as he expressed it. Well, it happened that the Colonel went to look after his hens one day and found very few in the pen. After looking and wondering for a while, the reason for his neighbor's good nature dawned upon him, and he was heard to exclaim; "I have been killing my own hens, and that old rascal has eaten them

The old fellow never heard the last of those hens, and was never known to shoot another.

We are gratified to hear of the continued success, in New York, of our townsman, Mr. H. Helmbold, Druggist. His store, next to the Metropolitan Hotel, is 28 feet front, 230 feet deep, and five stories in height. It is certainly a grand establishment, and speaks favorably of the merit of his articles. He retains his Office and Labratory in this city, which are also model establishments of their class.
