Points of an Excellent Milch Cow. A cow of beautiful symmetry is eminearly desirable, as physical beauty of, any animalial ways enhances their cush value. Yet, beauty and superior milching qualities are seldom found in one cow. There are certain signs which can be usually relied on as indicative of a superior animal for milk in large quantitles, yet of an inferior quality, either for butter or cheese, providing the cow has been properly reared, and her milching qualities not impaired in any way. by improper ministement, which often misleads or deceives a purchaser, when he is confident he is selecting a good miller milker. The first and always infallible indication of a superior milker, is an udder and teats of medium size and of fair pro-4 portions. - Let us see no part of a cow Alspice but these, and we will select the best-Cassia milkers and reject the inferior ones with beese almost unersing certainty. A poor milker may be detected at a glance, not by a homely form, but by a small udder, Farina. Nutmegs and tests too short and diminutive to be grasped by a hand of ordinary size. If a cow be deficient in these points, set it down at once against her that she will prove be a graviton or without for without Popper Prunes... Raisins Saleratus never be a superior animal for either butter or milk, except in a small quan-tity. A cow, having a long dispropor-tioned udder, with teats as large as a man's wrist, may possess the qualities of a medium milker, but will never be found to yield as much rich milk as a cow having a square adder about as &c.,. cow having a square udder, about as large as a ten-quart milk pail, and four teats only, a good distance apart, and nearly as long as the width of a man's hand.

In addition to these signs of a milker, the color of the skin is one of the most important indications of a superior cow for rich milk, Accow having a black, or a white skin may give a large quan-tity of milk, but it will be thin and white, often requiring one-third to onehalf more to make a pound of butter or cheese, than the milk of a cow having a yellow skin. If a cow has a yellow skin, whether she be of a red, white, brindle, roan, prown, or any other color, and hair feels like yelvet, and she have an udder and teats of the size and form int alluded to as indicative of a superi-or milker, if she be as homely as the old cow with a "crumpled horn," that we read of in the "story of the house that Jack built?!! we may feel assured that she will give rich milk. Another sign in connection with the other good one is a striped hoof, although. striped hoofs may be seen on poor cows. But if a cow have a yellow and soft skin, and a yellow or striped hoof, it shows that she will always give milk of an excellent quality, though she may yield but little of it., A cow having black hoofs will seldom yield rich milk. THE TEXT.-A pious old lady, who was too unwell to attend meeting, used to send her thick headed husband to the church to find out the text the preacher selected as the foundation of his dis-course. The poor dunce was rarely for-tunate enough to remember the words of the text, or even the chapter or the verse where it could be found; but one Sabbath he ran home in hot haste, and with a smirk of satisfaction on his face, informed his wife that he could repeat every word, without missing a syllable The words were as follows: "An angel came down from Heaven, and took a live coal from the altar."; "I know every word," said the husband. TLE. "I am anxious to hear," continued the wife: "They are nice words," observed the husband. "I am glad your memory is improv-ing; but don't keep me in suspense, my dear," said she.

"Just get your big Bible and I will say the words, for I know them all by heart, I said them a hundred times on my way home." "Well, now let's hear them."

"Ahem!"-said he, clearing his throat. "An Tnjun came down from New Ha-STOVE AND TIN WARE BUSINESS, ven and took a live colt by the tail, and ierked
