"Well, he is in the library; if he must but he does like well, he is in the library; in le must, but he does like to be alone sometimes," said the girl in a peevish tone. She thought it very fodish to admit such an ill-looking fellow into her master's presence. However, she wiped her hands, and bade the library door. him follow. Opening the library door, she said:

I don't know how the boy introduced himself, or how he opened business, but I know that after talking awhile, the Principal put aside the volume he was studying and took up some Greek books and began to examine the new comer. The examination lasted some time.— Every question which the Principal Every question which the Principal asked the boy, was answered readily.

"Upon my word," exclaimed the Principal, "you certainly do well," looking at the boy from head to foot, over his spectacles. "Why, my boy, where did you pick up so much?"

"In my spare moments," answered the boy.

What account can you show for them? Look and see. This boy can tell you how very much can be laid up by improving them; and there are many tle of a whaleship, in the tippling shop, who if you should ask them when they began their sinful courses, might answer: "in my spare moments."

Oh, be careful how you spend you spare moments! Temptation always hunts you out in seasons like these.—When you are not busy, he gets into your heart, if he possibly can, in just such gaps. There he hides himself, planning all sorts of mischief. Take care of your "spare moments."

GOOD SOCIETY .- It should be the aim of young men to go into good society. We do not mean the rich, the proud the fashionable, but the society of the wise, the intelligent, and the good.—Where you find men that know more than you do, and from whose conversation one can gain useful information, it is always safe to be found. It has broken many a man by associating with Plaids, Monaires, and in fact every thing usually the low and vulgar—where ribaldry was inculcated, and the indecent story, to excite laughter, influence the bad passions. Lord Clarendon has attributed his success and happiness in life, to associating with persons more learned and virtuous than himself. If you wish to be respected, if you desire happiness and not misery, we advise you to asso-ciate with the intelligent and good.— Strive for mental excellence and strict in the sinks of pollution, and on the benches of retailers and gamblers.— Once habituate yourself to a virtuous course—a love of good society—and no punishment would be greater, than by accident to be obliged for half a day to associate with the low and vulgar.

How To KEEP Poor.-Buy two glasses of ale every day, five cents each, a-mounting in one year to $36 50; smoke mounting in one year to $36 50; smoke three cigars, coming in the course of the year to $54 75; keep a big dog, which will consume in a year at least $15 worth of provisions. Altogether this amounts to $106 15—sufficient to buy six barrels of flour, 100 bushels of coal, a barrel of sugar each of coals a good least to sugar, sack of coffee, a good coat, besides many other things.

How to KEEP CREAM SWEET-A good deal depends upon the proper manage-ment of the cream, if the churning does ment of the cream, it the chairing does not take place every day, as it ought to where the dairy is large enough to war-rant it. If it is to be kept till the quan-tity is sufficient to make up a churning, put it into a stone jar, in a cool place, and when fresh cream is added, let it be thoroughly stirred in and a very little fine salt added. In this way it may be kept several days.

You can't be sure that a dog isn't cross till you see him wag his tail. So before you undertake to pat him, "wait for the wagging."
