There was once a wise Emperor who made a law that to every stranger who came to his court a fried fish should be served. The servants were directed to take notice if, when the stranger had eaten the fish to the bone on one side, he turned it over and began on the other side. If he did, he was to be immediately seized, and on the third day thereafter he was to be put to death. But, by a great stretch of imperial elemency, the culprit was permitted to utter one wish each day, which the Emperor pledged himself to grant, provided it was not to spare his life. Many had already perished in consequence of this edict, when one day a count and his young son presented themselves at court. The fish was served as usual; and when the count had removed all the ficsh from one side, he turned it over, and was about to commence on the other, when he was suddenly seized and thrown into prison, and was told of his approaching doom. Sorrow stricken, the count's young son besought the Emperor to allow him to die in the room of his father; a favor which the monarch was pleased to accord him. The count was accordingly released from prison, and his son was thrown into his cell in A the community generally. Not being a friend to long and windy advertisements and large expenditures to the Printers, I herewith submit a condensed statement of facts at a small cost, with his stead. As soon as this had been done, the young man said to his gaolers—"You know I have the right to make three demands before I die; go and tell the Emperor to send me his daughter and a the understanding that the surplus capital will be better employed in reducing the price of Goods to my customers.

priest to marry us."
The first demand was not much to the Emperor's taste; nevertheless he felt bound to keep his word, and he therefore complied with the request, to which the princess had no kind of objection.

This occurred in times when kings the complete with the princess had no kind of objection. kept their treasures in a cave, or in a tower set apart for the purpose; and on the second day of his imprisonment the young man demanded the king's treasures.

If his first demand was a bold one, the second was not less so; still an Emperor's word is sacred, and having made the promise he was forced to keep it and the treasures of gold and silver and jewels were placed at the prisoner's disposal. On getting possession of them, he distributed them profusely among the courtiers, and soon he, made a host of friends by his liberality.

The Emperor began now to feel exceedingly uncomfortable. Unable to sleep, he rose early on the third morning, and went, with fear in his heart, to the prison to hear what the third wish was to be.

"Now," said he to the prisoner, "tell me what your third demand is, that it may be granted at once, and you may be hung out of hand, for I am tired of your demands."

"Sire," answered his prisoner, "Sire," answered his prisoner, "I from 2s 6d to 4s per yard, quality equal to those have but one more favor to request of prices six years ago. Dress Goods at lower priyour majesty, which, when you have ces as well as a splendid assortment of fine goods. your majesty, which, when you have granted it, I shall die content. It is merely that you will cause the eyes of those who saw my father turn the fish over to be put out."

"Very good," replied the Emperor,
"your demand is but natural, and it springs from a good heart. Let the first chamberlain be seized," he continued, turning to his guards. "I, sire?" cried the chamberlain; "I did not see anything-it was the stew-Let the steward be seized, then," said the king.

But the steward protested with tears in his eyes that he had not witnessed lept in a first class country store. anything of what had been reported, and said it was the butler. The butler declared that he had seen nothing of the matter, and that it must have been one of the valets. But they protested that they were utterly ignorant of what had been charged against the count. In short it turned out that nobody could be found who had seen the count commit the offence, upon which the princess

"I appeal to you, my father, as to another Solomen. If nobody saw the offence committed, the count cannot be guilty, and my husband is innocent."
The Emperor frowned, and forthwith the courtiers began to murmur—and then he smiled, and immediately their visages became radiant.

"Let it be so," said his majesty.—

A Lesson of Trust.

Some time ago a boy was discovered in Claiborne street, evidently bright and intelligent, but sick. A man who had the feeling of kindness strongly developed, went to ask what he was doing there.

"Waiting for God to come for me," said he.
"What do you mean?" said the gentleman, touched by the pathetic tone of the answer and the condition of the boy, in whose eye and flushed face he saw the evidence of fever.

"God sent for mother, and father, and little brother," said he, "and took them away to His home up in the sky; and In Hats, Caps, Gloves and Mittens;

mother told me when she was sick that God would take care of me. I have no home, nobody to give me anything, and so I came out here, and have been looking up so long in the sky for God to come and take care of me as mother said He would. He will come, won't He? Mother never told me a lie.' "Yes, my lad," said the man, overcome with emotion. "He has sent me to take care of you."

You should have seen his eyes flash, and the smile of triumph break over his face, as he said:

"Mother never told me a lie, sir, but you have been so long on the way.' What a lesson for truth, and how this incident shows the effect of never deceiving children with tales.

"Buchu.—Its odor is strong, diffusive, and somewhat aromatic, its taste bitteriah, and analogous to that of mint. It is given chiefly in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Grav-el, Chronic Catarrh of the bladder, Morbid Ir-ritation of the Bladder and Urethrs, Diseases of the Prostrate, and Betention or the Incontinence, of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. It has also been re-commended in Dyspepsis, Chronic Rheuma-tism, Cutaneous Affections, and Dropsy."
