"CHIVALRY."

You have, doubtless, heard of Doctor Sparling—a rollicking, quick-witted, well-learned, sharp-sighted, wild sort of an Irishman, who served his country faithfully during the war for the Union, and knows how to take care of himself now the war is over. He is settled down to the practice of medicine in Nashville, and was one of the three gentlemen nominated not long since by Governor Brownlow for Commissioners of Police for Nashville, under the metropolitan system. The Tennessee Senate, for some reason, which at the time seemed good to that body, rejected the Doctor; but he has gone on prospering in his business for all that, and is none the less a fast friend of the national cause.

Last Friday evening, about 8 o'clock, the Doctor was walking along Union street, when he was accosted by some Confederate gentleman, and invited into "Hollister's" to drink a glass of ale.—The invitation was accepted, and the Doctor, in company with Captain Nichol and Captain Goodshall, stepped into the saloon.

They had not been there long until the Doctor thought he perceived an intention to offend him on the part of the others; and, desiring to avoid difficulty, was more than usually complaisant and urbane.

At last Captain Nichol, turning to the Doctor, said:

"I believe you once dined at our house?"

"Not to my recollection," replied the Doctor.

"Oh yes, you did; at No. 8, Summer street."

"Ah, I remember now," said the Doctor; "I remember, because I met ——— (naming a sister of Captain Nichol's) there, who I learned was very obliging and kind to officers and soldiers of the Union army."

This in some way seemed an unpleasant reminder. And, indeed, I have frequently heard it rumored that the lady in question did behave with sweet and easy dignity and grace toward members of the national army, while many of her Southern sisters were conducting themselves in a style better befitting the unhallowed cause of treason. The recollections of this probably raised Captain Nichol's ire. He turned fiercely upon the Doctor:

"Say Miss ———, if you please, sir," he exclaimed, with an air of "chivalric" haughtiness.

Now as Dr. Sparling is himself the father of a young lady or two, it did not occur to him that in speaking of Capt. Nichol's sister, especially as he spoke in terms of earnest commendation and respect, he had committed any great offence by omitting the "Miss." Nevertheless, he at once offered an humble apology, stepping even to the verge of civility in doing so. Then, as his feelings were of course hurt, he remarked to the Captain:

"It seems to me that by the tone of your reprimand, you intended an insult toward me."

"Take it as you please," was the reply.

No sooner was it uttered than the Doctor's "bunch of fives" was planted squarely between the eyes of the Captain, sending him in a jiffy to the floor. Recovering himself speedily, he drew a knife and rushed upon the offending Doctor. Some one attempted to hold the latter's arm from behind, but, jerking away with Irish impetuosity, he received the Captain with his cane, flourishing which weapon with the skill of a "shillalah"-handler on his native heath, he not only baffled all efforts of the Captain to use his knife, but punished him severely over the face, head and hands.

Parting then, either by interference or mutual consent, the combatants went their several ways, the Doctor going straight to his own house.

Shortly after he was waited upon by Captain Goodshall, who presented a note. The Doctor glanced at the contents, and judging it a challenge to mortal combat, he politely told Capt. Goodshall he thought he "had the impudence of the devil," and forthwith ordered him out of the house.

The next morning the following appeared as a card in the Nashville Gazette, and also as a huge handbill posted about the streets:

"To THE PUBLIC!—Dr. F. W. Sparling, late of the Federal army, is hereby denounced as a coward and poltroon, by JAMES W. NICHOL.

Nashville, June 23."

This morning several of the city papers contained the following rich response:

"A CARD.—A card having appeared in the Gazette of this morning, signed by one James W. Nichol, posting me as a coward and poltroon, but assigning no cause therefor, I take this method of explaining, for the information of my friends, the circumstances attending the difficulty between this Mr. Nichol and myself.

"On Friday evening, in the presence of several gentlemen, this Mr. Nichol made a remark which I interpreted as an insult, and I inquired of him if an insult was intended, to which Mr. Nichol, in a very hostile manner, replied, 'You can take it as you like;' upon which I knocked him down with my fist. When he recovered he drew a knife upon me, and I proceeded to chastise him with my cane. Later in the evening I was called upon by an individual calling himself Captain Goodshall, of the late rebel army, with a note which I did not read through, but saw enough of it to know it was a hostile message from Mr. Nichol. Upon ascertaining this fact, I peremptorily ejected him from my house. I have and always shall punish upon the spot, all intentional personal insults, without holding myself bound to meet in deliberate combat every characterless person who may feel aggrieved thereat. To sum up: I satisfied myself by thrashing him to my heart's content, and will do it again should the occasion occur, the contents of his note to the contrary notwithstanding. F. W. SPARLING.

"June 24, 1866."

It now only remains for us to watch the denouement. But one thing is certain—the "chivalry" are already beginning to find that between 1860 and 1866 there is a decided and tangible difference.—Nashville Cor. Cin'i. Gaz.

There was a very irascible old gentleman who formerly held the position of Justice of the Peace in one of our cities. Going down the main street one day, one of the boys spoke to him without coming up to his Honor's ideas of deference.

"Young man, I fine you five dollars for contempt of Court."

"Why, Judge," said the offender, "you are not in session."

"This Court," responded the Judge, thoroughly irritated, "is always in session, and consequently always an object of contempt."

There was disorder in Court, and his Honor passed.

"Pa," said little Channing to his paternal ancestor, holding up a Sunday school picture book, "what's that?"

"That, my son, gravely replied the father, "is Jacob wrestling with the angel."

"And which licked, pa?" innocently inquired the young hopeful.

Hand Power Loom!-Patented 1865.

ALL persons interested in the production of practical machinery into our country, are requested to investigate the merits of

HENDERSON'S HAND POWER LOOM.

This loom will do all kinds of hand weaving.

It will weave jeans, blankets, plain cloth, satinet, kersey, flannel, seamless sack, double width blankets, or any kind of cotton, wool, or flax cloth. It treads the treadles, throws the shuttle, lets off the web, and takes up the cloth. It makes the upper shed as the batten comes forward, and beats up the filling after the cross is made, making better cloth and better selvage than can be made in any other way.

It is the only hand loom that is suitable for weaving wool, as no loom that makes all the shed as the batten goes back, will weave wool satisfactorily.

It has no strings to stretch and get out of order; has treadles at both sides of the loom, making the shed complete at both sides.

This loom is made to weave the different kinds of cloth, by simply changing the pins that make the upper shed.

Township rights for sale. Call at Mainsburg, Tioga county, Pa., and see a full sized loom in operation. Orders for looms solicited. LEWIS WETMORE,

It is given chiefly in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Diseases of the Prostrate, and Retention or the Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. It has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections, and Dropsy."

FROM THE

LARGEST

MANUFACTURING CHEMIST

IN THE WORLD.

I am acquainted with H. T. Helmbold; he occupied the drug store opposite my residence, and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise.

Ninth and Brown Streets, Philadelphia.

[From the Philada Evening Bulletin, March 10.]

We are gratified to hear of the continued success, in New York, of our townsman, Mr. H. T. Helmbold, Druggist. His store, next to the Metropolitan Hotel, is 28 feet front, 230 feet deep, and five stories in height. It is certainly a grand establishment, and speaks favorably of the merit of his articles. He retains his Office and Labratory in this city, which are also model establishments of their class.

The proprietor has been induced to make this statement from the fact that his remedies, although advertised, are

GENUINE PREPARATIONS,

And, knowing that the intelligent refrain from using any thing pertaining to Quackery, or the Patent Medicine order—most of which are prepared by self styled Doctors, who are too ignorant to read a physician's simplest prescription, much less competent to prepare pharmaceutical preparations.

to various means of effecting sales, such as copying parts of advertisements of popular remedies, and finishing with certificates.

The Science of Medicine stands SIMPLE, PURE, and MAJESTIC,—having Fact for its Basis, Induction for its Pillar, Truth alone for its Capitol.

A WORD OF CAUTION.

Health is most important; and the afflicted should not use an advertised medicine, or any remedy, unless its contents or ingredients are known to others besides the manufacturer, or until they are satisfied of the qualifications of the party so offering.
