Since then I have been trying my best to earn bread for my little ones by plying the needle. At times, when that kind of employment has failed me, I have been obliged tostand, from morn till night, over the wash-tub. I had two brothers, steady men, kind and gene rous. Had the rebellion left them as it found them, pinching poverty I should have never known. Alas! alas! one of them perished from exposure and want on Belle Isle, and the other had his right arm taken off by a rebel shell at Antietam. So that, except my trust in a merciful God, I have sacrificed for my country my ALL-husband, brothers, house, home, living—and I cast a beggar on the cold charity of the world. And all this I owe to the Southern slaveholders, and to their iniquitous attempt to murder my beloved country, as they did murder my husband and my brothers.

twenty years ago % resident of this borough, has had on exhibition at Holiday's Hotel for a few days, a model of a Railroad Turn-table, which for simplicity, and perfect adaptation to the uses for which it is intended, strikes us as one of the greatest mechanical triumphs of the age.

The table revolves upon four outer and four inner wheels held by a crosstruck, the wheels running upon an outer and inner track. The entire weight rests upon the wheels, and in practical use a man, with one hand, can easily turn a a locomotive. The invention ought to make Mr. Kelly a very rich man.

LOOK OUT FOR SWINDLERS .- The papers down country are advertising a set of sharpers who are said to be about nowadays. These operators sell cloth by sample for houses in the big cities, as they allege. In some cases the operators offer to sell for a trifle, in other cases they take notes of the purchaser. Beaver cloth is offered at $1 per yard, Brussels carpeting at 50 cents per yard, and muslins and calicoes at from 6 to 10 cents.

All we have to say is-a good article costs a good bit of money.

Shall we never hear the last wail of the luckless boy whose bread-and-butter always fell butter-side down?

It is recorded of Alexander that, after flogging half a dozen petty princes, he sat down and wept because there were liberty to presume that Alexander was not only the conqueror of the world, but the Emperor of the Boo-Hoos.

We are reminded of this by the postelection wail of the Johnson press.-Here is a bloody fellow who saith:

"It is now becoming the duty of Democratic Journalists everywhere to warn the American people that they eat and sleep and live on the very crater of a volcano; that earthquakes surround them on every side."

Well, that is a precarious situation. That the great American people should "eat sleep and live on the very crater of a volcano" is bad enough. But to be 'surrounded by earthquakes on every side" in addition, is positively al arming if not unsafe.

We have heard of, and sympathize with the six Mexican greasers who were surrounded and captured by an Irishman, though history does not say whether he "surrounded them on every side." We have a dim recollection of one Crockett, who tells of his surroundpenury and want, who have suffered ing a raccoon; but we regret that Daand sacrificed ten thousand times more vid neglected to say whether he "sur- the magnitude of the late struggle. Mr. Stevens, we see will probably give his influence towards knowledge that they take their nationits it stated, is for Gen. Cameron. Again—the American people are proverbially in a hurry. Some have thought that this characteristic arose to its normal position among grazing counties it from the vast amount of labor required to develop the resources of this great country. We suspect that this is not the true reason. We have only to imagine them " surrounded by earthquakes on every side," and the "hurry" is sufficiently accounted for.

all "surrounded by earthquakes on Turn to the north and we shall be confronted by an earthquake! to the east, and behold, an earthquake! to the South, and lo, another earthquake! to the west, and still an earthquake!

Thus we "swing around the circle," and find a lion in the guise of an earthquake in our path.

There is a ray of hope in the supposition that some one of these menacing earthquakes may prematurely explode with a teritan ague. Some one of them may fizzle out-that one, for instance, supposed to be in charge of the "Democracy" and so open up an avenue of escape. But at present the American people are in a ticklish position.

If this uproarious, Boo-Hoo editor, had stopped at this point, we cannot but think he had done well. But he does not pause. Arising like a dunghill fowl from the ashes of the crater aforesaid, he mounts an earthquake and proclaims:

" Whether handwriting has been seen upon the walls of this nation we know not, but that the days of the Republic cal farming at all. We have seen them acted are numbered may well be feared." .

Firstly-Pennsylvania took up the stylus and wrote in John Hancockonian characters on the wall, DEATH TO TREASON! So also did Ohio, Maine, Vermont, Indiana, and others. And on the first Tuesday in November, New York, New Jersey, Illinois, Michigan, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, and Nevada, wrote under that sentence in let-

But we agree with the Boo-Hoos that there are earthquakes ahead-of the same sort as those which shook the friends of treason and Andrew Johnson from their feet on the 2d Tuesday of October, and again on the first Tuesday in November. No wonder the disciples of treason are alarmed and subdued. The earthquakes which topple down cities and swallow up the ruins are not so terrible as those whose voices convey the expressed will of an indingnant and insulted people.

UNITED STATES SENATOR. Three of our Northern Tier cotempoaries have expressed a decided preference as regards the distinguished gentleman named in connection with the high office of U.S. Senator. The Warren Mail is inclined to the support of Col. Forney, than whom, perhaps, no one has a better or stronger claim upon the support of Radical Republicans. He is a man of distinguished abilities, tried fidelity, and high repute as an orator. No man, perhaps, has fought so valiantly to beat down the meditated treason of Andrew Johnson, and none isso hated by rebels and rebel sympathizers.-He would represent Pennsylvania with signal ability in the highest council of the nation. We need not say that no man in Pennsylvania places a higher value upon JOHN W. FORNEY that we

The Montrose Republican speaks for Mr. GRow-a man so well and favorably known in Tioga County as to need no more worlds to conquer. We are at no encomiums from us. He represented, faithfully, the Congressional district of which Tioga constituted a part, for twelve consecutive years, in the popular branch of Cougress, and no man scored up a better record than he.

The Troy Gazette reviews the entire situation and after giving each candidate a fair examination, declares for Gen. Cameron in terms of praise which were never more justly bestowed.

Being personally aware of the truth of its summing up in favor of Gen Cameron, we append it here:

'Simon Cameron, with a fair record as a Sena-tor, familiar with the details of statesmanshiptor, taminar with the war—and intimate with all its working—standing square on the slavery question, prompt to favor the arming of negroes; the honored member of Mr. Lincoln's Cabinet; of unquestioned loyalty to the Union and to Pennsylvania, both in her general and in her local and agricultural concernments; with large personal anded and proprietary interests in the industria innded and proprietary interests in the industrial pursuits of the State; with long time experience in public and corporate business; and possessing as he does the confidence of the people, he is preminently fit for Senator, and he will stand in that body with none his superior in wisdom and sagacity, prudence and public spirit."

It is but truth to say that Gen. Cameron was among the first to comprehend was in favor of raising 500,000 men so early as May 1861, and the first to urge bolt" their meals; that is, to eat in the enfranchisement of the slaves and the arming of the negro. And this we

A WORD TO FARMERS.—Now that Tioga County is slowly, but certainly gravitating would seem to be necessary to urge farmers to pursue that method of stock-keeping which will render the business profitable.

In the first place, cows, to do well require near ly as much attention as horses. They should not be left to house themselves under the lee of sheds, barns, fences, and hay-stacks to secape winter cold and storm. They should be stabled. The question gets serious. If we are The stables should be warm, well-ventilated, and commodious. Any stable in which the manure every side," which way can we run? will freeze in fair winter weather is too cold for cows. If stables be built half underground, and with a southerly exposure, for the weather side closely underpinned, and ventilated though the roof, they may be considered to be in good order.

Cows should be separated from each other by partition bars, and the compartments should be large enough to permit of the turning of the cow at will. Stanchions are relics of barbarism. Tying by the head is better, but freedom to shift position is best Cows should be bedded every night and curried every morning. Some may regard this as too much labor, but it pays. Cows should come out of the winter-keep in good condition; that is, they should not come out hide-bound and rough coated. If you want a profitable dairy you must give your cows good beds and good feed; and you must do their "scratching" through the win-

Bedding cows prevents them from slipping and sprawling in the stable. It also keeps them clean All useful animals like to be clean. Currying them keeps the skin in good order and removes the old cost. Leaving them loose in the stable permits them to lick themselves at will: and this is one requisite to bovine happiness.

We offer these hints as not being new, but just as good as new. They do not pertain to theoretiupen with the best results. In all old dairy We suspect that there is "handwriting counties this plan is pursued by dairymen who work to thrive, and with marked profit. It is not enough to furnish open sheds for cattle. They must be housed, not too warmly, but snugly .ventilation should be secured of course : but let It be through the roof of the stable, and not he slide windows at the side. Particular attention should be directed to the underpining of stables. They should be secured against an up-current of cold air through the ground floor. This keeps feet and legs of the cows warm.

Though it is a long time since we were stable boy, we do not propose to apologize for offering ters of fire-" The people cannot be in- these hints. If anybody has better information to give they shall have space to give it.
