They say-Ah! well, suppose they do, But can they prove the story true? Suspicion may arise from naught But malise, suvy, want of thought; Why count yourself among the "they Who whisper what they dare not say!

They say-But why the tale rehearte, And help to make the matter worse? He good can possibly secree From telling what may be untrue; And is it not a nobler plan To speak of all the best you can? They say—Well, if it should be so, Why need you tall the tale of woe!

Will it the bitter wrong redress, Or make one pang of sorrow less? Will it the erring one restore, Henseforth to "go and sin no more?"

They say-Oh! pause, and look within, See how thine heart inclines to sin; Watch, lest in dark temptation's hour, Thou, too, shouldst sink beneath its power; Pity the frail, weep o'er their fall, But speak of good, or not at all.

LIFE INSURANCE.

Mrs. Warren, in her sensible little book on housekeeping, which has attracted attention on both sides of the water, enumerates in the foremost rank of the necessary expenses of a family, a certain annual sum for a policy of life insurance. It the necessity of laying adde for this distinct purpose a fair proportion of every man's income could be impressed on the head of every family, the destitution, abject penury, and oreaking hearts which are now so comoreaking hearts which are now so com-mon would be, to a great extent, avoid-ed. We earnestly wish that we could lend to our readers a part of our convio-tion that it is one of the great duties of a husband and father to see that those a husband and lather to see that those dependent on him during life shall not suffer after his death. We do not write in behalf of any company. We do not advocate any special plan of insurance; but we seek to impress on all who read our words that they owe into their families to at once provide for that unavoidable exigency an unexpected decease. dable exigency, an unexpected decease. The Bible declares that he who neglects to provide for his family is worse than the infidel. We all know in what light a map stands who allows his family to be in want while he lives.

We hold it to be a duty on the part of every man to set aside part of the receipts of the year to pay for his policy of insurance. The poor man can save but little, and as during his life his family are not accustomed to live in elegance, be in want while he lives. little, and as during his life his family are not accustomed to live in elegance, so only need the state of his finances, at his death, afford the ordinary styles of living for his family when he is gone. A small policy will be as much to them as a larger one to a family accustomed to all the conveniences of life. Let the rich man also provide according to his means. While the laborer cannot atford to secure more than a few thousands, the rich man can secure more; for although he may, at the present time, justly anticipate a rich legacy for his heirs, a sudden turn of the wheel of fortune may kenve him a beggar and his children penniless. There is no more secure investment than a policy of insurance. We know it is stated that many rance. We know it is stated that many of the companies are bogus, and will defraud those who invest in them.—Such may be, and doubtless is, true of some, but the very large majority of these institutions are thoroughly reliable. Their reputation depends on their promptly meeting claims whose justice even is doubtful, rather than let public confidence be impaired by an exposure. The picture engraved on the policies of some of the ssociatic us, of the agent of an association paying to the widow and children the funds which raise them from penury to ease, is not a fancy rance. We know it is stated that man and children the funds which raise them from penury to ease, is not a fancy sketch. It is a reality which occurrevery day, and hundreds of thousands of families rise up and bless the foresight which induced the father to see that they be not left destitute by his death. The grief at the loss of the head of a family is enough to be endured, without the additional agony of being in doubt as from whence their daily bread will be secured. Let, then, each of our readers who have not already attended to this essential duty, avoid delaying it a single day. None know how soon they may be removed, or what disaster may overtake them. Let each then prepare for a catastrophe, and see that when death or failurearrives, those

A COOL FARMER.—We've seen and heard of cool proceedings ere this, but the conduct of a Vermont agriculturist was positively "iced." He once sold a load of hay to his neighbor, who, contrary to his expectations, after seeing it weighed, stayed to see it unloaded.

But a few forkfulls were off when a bouncing rock rolled from off the load; then another, and then a third came bang upon the floor. bang upon the floor.
"What's this?" queried the buyer in a loud voice.
"Most all timothy this year," replied the deaf man.

"But see here," continued the other pointing to the boulders which lay arrayed in judgment against the dishonest hayman; "what does all this mean?"

"Shoult out sigh so much how this "Shan't out nigh so much hay this year as I did last," replied the dealer in timothy.

* Just as he had finished the last sentence, down thundered a rousing chunk of granite, making a deep indention in the barn floor with one of its sharp angles.

"I say, neighbor N." screamed the purchaser of granite, "I want to know what these are?" pointing to the broad boulders and the big lump of granite. Old N. took up a mighty forkful of the timothy, gave it a toss into the hay loft; then leaning upon his fork, ejecting his huge quid of tobacco, and replacing it with a fresh one, he took a view of the fragments of stone wall that lay before him, and, with one of the blandest amiles, he replied "Them's rocks."

"Did the guard present arms to you Mrs. Partington?" asked the commis sary, as they met at the opening of the marques. "You mean the century?" said she, smiling. I have heard so much of the tainted field that I believe I could deplore an attachment into line myself, and manure them as well as an officer. and manure them as well as an officer.
You asked me if the guard presented arms to me. He didn't, but a sweet little man with epilepsy on his shoulder and a smile on his face did, and ask me and a smile on his face did, and ask me if I wouldn't go into a tent and smile. I told him that we could both smile as well outside, when he politely touched his chateau and left me. The commissary presented a hard wood stool, upon which she reposed herself. W. R. SMITH'S SONS' system of keeping an enormous stock of goods at all times of the year, and selling them cheap—this system so obnaxiods to big profit store—is fairly begun for the Fall season at their store, and such a year for doing people good was never known before. Certainly there is no good reason for swindling prices now; we have had enough of them already. The great advantage and importance of trading for Cash or Ready pay is fully illustrated by the low prices now raging at the People's Store.

FEW HOUSEHOLD WORDS FOR THE FARMER. MECHANIC, & PEOPLE GENERALLY.

Buy your goods of a concern which has a big assortment and is selling ten times as many goods and of course can sall them as many times chea-per than small concerns. We give all such ad-vantages to our sustomers.

A FEW OTHER BIG THINGS FOR THE PAU-DEST BUYER TO CYNEIDER REPORT STREET

Look out for hig stores and big rents; big notes and big rates of interest and no real takers at that—all of which its very bad as against W. R. Smith's Sons' situation. Light expenses and no rents, new goods at break down prices, and the good old motto of small profits, good values and quick returns, flying to the brease. The fact is, the only true and certain road to fortune for the merchant is always to give his cuttomers, as we do, the most he can far his money, and depend on large sales for his profits. Again, our popular and legitimate system of dealing, buying strictly for each, always having each on hand, render us masters of the situation when a drop comes in the market.
