How to Make Good MILKERS .- No matter what breed you have, something is necessary to reach the highest success in raising good milkers. It's a great thing to have good blood, whether it be Ayrshire, Jersey or Short Horn grades, but apart from this important advantage, the course of treatment in raising tage, the course of treatment in raising a milker is somewhat different from that in raising a beef animal, or an ani

The calf should be well fed and pet-ted while young. Well fed, to induce a rapid growth, so as to enable the neiter rapid growth, so as to enable the hener to come in early; petted to make her gentle and fond of the presence of her keepers. Fondling helps to create a quiet disposition, so important in a dairy cow, and their education must begin when young. For a milker we would have the helfer come in at two years old, and if she has been well kept, so as to have attained a good size, she is old enough to become a cow. She will give more milk for coming in early. It forms the habit of giving milk, and habit, you know, is a sort of second nature. An older bull is better. We use too many young bulls. A three or four ture. An older bull is better. We use too many young bulls. A three or four year old bull is far better as a stock getter than a yearling, and many prefer a five or six year old to any other. After the heifer has come in, let. her feed be regular. Clover is preferred to all others for the stall fed. A little oatmeal induces a large flow. Indian meal is rather fattening. In bad weather, give her a clean airy stall.—Massachusetts Plowman.

W. R. SMITH'S SONS' system of keeping an enormous stock of goods at all times of the year, and selling them cheap—this system so obnatiods to big profit stores—is fairly begun for the Fall ceason at their store, and such a year for

Look out for big stores and big rents; big notes and big rates of interest and no real takers at that—all of which its very bad as against W. R. Smith's Sons' situation. Light expenses and no routs, new goods at break down prices, and the good old mottor of small profits, good value and quick returns, fying to the breaze. The fact is, the only true and certain road to fortune for the merchant is always to give his customers, as we do, the most he can for his money, and depend on large sales for his profits. Again, our popular and legitimate system of dealing, buying strictly for cash, always having cash on hand, render us masters of the situation when a drop comes in the market.
