Fearful Adventure.

The Iowa Northwest publishes a thrilling account of the suffering of Charles Hall, a stage driver, who started from Twin Lakes in Calhoun county, to Fort Dodge, in an open sleigh, during the great snow storm of the last week in January: Mr. Hall left Twin Lakes on the evening of Thursday, the 24th of January, and, after traveling across the prairie all night in the snow storm, next morning, lost all traces of his whereabouts.

The Northwest says:

"Before many hours he found that his ears, face and feet were frozen solid, and his hands were beginning to freeze. But still, strong in determination to save himself, if in the range of possibilitles, he kept moving on through the long cheerless day. Toward night he suffered greatly from hunger, as he had eaten nothing since Thursday noon.

'When darkness again closed around him he felt that the chance for surviving the night were very slim indeed He dared not sit down to rest, fearing that he would fall asleep and perish.— All through the second night he kept on his feet, sometimes becoming so ex-hausted with cold, hunger, and his great exertions to keep traveling, he would stop a few moments to rest. He repeatedly fell asleep while thus standing, and was only awakened by falling down into the snow. Again and again during Friday night did he struggle on till daylight appeared. The wind now ceased but the cold was intense. When the sim came up on Saturday morning he was able for the first time to learn the directions. Looking anxiously around on every side and seeing no sign or settlement, grove or road, he felt that east, knowing that his only hope now was in being able to reach the Des Moines river, along which he was sure to find settlers. All day Saturday he tolled on through the deep snow, suffering intensely from hunger, cold and the loss of sleep: Whenever his strength gave out, and he stopped for a moment, he would fall asleep, and tumble down into the snow, again awakers rise up, and again rush on. Night offee more came on, and found him still out on the great prairie, with no shelter in sight Again did he pass another night—the third night—on his feet, walking, stop- And the bees begin to swarm still undismayed, he watched patiently And, funniest of all, I ween,—during the long hours of the night for the rising of the sun on the morning of Sunday, the fourth day of the formula day. Sunday, the fourth day out. The sun rose bright and clear, but it was intensely cold, the mercury at sixteen degrees below zero, with a keen, cutting wind from the north. He had now, strange as it may seem, ceased to suffer hunger and nerving himself for one more effort he turned his face eastward, and again struggled on. His progress was very slow, but at eleven o'clock his courage was renewed by the sight of a grove in the distance. Hope, that had never entirely forsaken him, now grew strong, and all through the day he strove by almost superhuman efforts to reach the timber before dark, feeling that he could not survive another night on the prainot survive another night on the prairie. But his strength was too much exhausted, and, although striving with the energy of despair, he saw the sun go down and night close around him, while the friendly trees were shut out from view and beyond his reach.

"Fearing that if he attempted to traveled to the content of the el after dark he should lose sight of the grove, and knowing that in his weak and exhausted condition he could not survive the night on his feet, he sought out a huge snow drift, and digging out a large cavity with his hards, he crowded in and buried himself beneath the snow. In this position he soon fell asleep and slept for several hours, dreaming that he had arrived in safety at Fort Dodge, and was telling his companions of his perils and escape from freezing. But upon awaking with the first dawn of morning, he found him self buried in the snow, out on the great prairie, so weak from hunger and exhausted from the superhuman exertions he had put forth, and so crippled from freezing that he had scarcely strength left to crawl out of his icy bed. But by great exertions he regained his feet, and could see Lost Grove about a mile ahead. When he tried to walk, he found that his limbs had lost their vitality, and he could only move forward by reaching down with his frozen hands and lifting his legs out of the snow and lifting his legs out of the snow and placing first one foot forward and then the other. He thus managed to move slowly toward the grove. After a long and toilsome struggle, he at last reached the grove but only to find it cold, cheerless and uninhabited. and uninhabited. 🕙

"Beyond the grove, at a distance of about one and a half miles, he saw a house. Having by this time almost lost the use of his feet and legs, he began to crawl on his hands and knees through the deep snow for the house. Sometimes he would be able to rise to his feet and take a few steps forward, when he would again fall into the snow and drag himself forward. drag himself forward once more. In this way he managed to reach the house, having been from daylight until 2 o'clock in the afternoon going two and a half miles. He had reached the residence of Mr. Hicks, five miles west of Dayton, and about thirty miles southeast of the point where he lost the road.

o'clock, in the severest storm of the season, with the inercury ranging from 14° below zero, and had been on his feet during all the time but about twelve

"He had gone four days and nights without a morsel of food of any kind, and no drink but snow. He had only slept five hours in nearly five days. When we saw him he was almost en tirely helpless and very weak from his terrible sufferings. His face has turned black, and pieces of flesh are peeling off. His feet are terribly frozen, but the doctors hope to save them from amputation by removing some of the toes. He will lose one ear, and undoubtedly be badly crippled for life."

An insurance agent, urging a citizen to get his life insured, said: "Get your life insured for ten thousand, and then, will sing for joy."

CLOTHES LINES.

PATENT WHITE WIFE,

We beg leave to call the attention of the public to an entirely new quality of Wire known as White Wire, possessing a chatiling which prevents it from ever corroding or turning from its uniform whiteness during any number of years, and on which Letters Patent has been secured. It has been found to be the only article suitable for a clothes line, except the old-fashioned 76pc or cord, which always gives so much trouble and annoyance by breaking, rotting out, and discoloring clothes, and by being obliged to put it up and take it down every time used. With this Wire Clothes Line you have none of these annoyances, and when it is once put up it gives you no more trouble until the stakes or posts rot down to more trouble until the stakes or posts rot down to which it is attached. After using it we are confident you will fully corroborate the statements of thousands of others in its praise. Over 300,of thousands of others in its praise. Over sound of the control of

2d. It will last from twenty-five to fifty years 2d. It will last from twenty-five to fifty years at least, and during that time you will wear out fifty ordinary plines, besides suffering an untoil amount of trouble and annoyance with them.

3d. It is the cheapest Line in the world, to say nothing of its great convenience. A good rope line costs about 2 cents per foot, and this only 44 cents. This will last a life time, while that with good care will last about a year. This Wire, at 26 pents per fost, would be cheaper than a rope line.

THE WHITE WIRE CLOTHES LINE .- Among the special annoyances of the washing day are to be reckened high up the list the ill adaptation of clothes lines. The old cord or rope has done much good service; but what with its breaking, rotting out, discoloring the clothes, and the annoyance of participants. noyance of putting up and taking down each week is not quite a perfect article. A substitute is now offered in the "Patent White Wire Clothes Line," for sale by the American Wire Company, a longer struggle for life was almost hopeless.
