Select Poetry.

A SNAKE IN THE GRASS. BY JOHN G. SAGE. Come, listen to me a spell, Let that terrible dumb, For a moment be dumb, For your uncle is going to tell.

THANK GOD! murmured the young man, pressing the paper to his lips. "I thank God that I have my life to devote to my country."

"But, my good friend," said the old man, after patiently listening to all he had to say, "believe me, it is a useless sacrifice."

EARLY in the morning of the fifteenth of April, information reached the French capital that the Baroness de C— was lying dead in her bed.

ERNESTINE was anxiously expecting to see her friend, for he had promised to come to her on the day before.

THE morning of the day before, he had been in the city, and he had seen the Baroness de C— lying dead in her bed.
