The diary found on the body of John Wilkes Booth of which so much has been said, is at last published. The following copy, which is certified to by Secretary Stanton and Judge Holt, is all that there is of it:

"To amo," April 13, 14. Friday the Ides. Until to day nothing was ever thought of sacrificing to our country's wrongs. For six months we had worked to capture. But our cause being almost lost, something decisive and great must be done. But its failure was owing to others, who did not strike for their country with a heart.
I struck boldly, and not as the papers say. I walked with a firm step through thousand of his friends, and was stopped, but pushed in. A colonel was at his side. I shouted "Sic Semper" before I fired; in jumping broke my leg. I passed all his pickets, rode sixty miles that night with the bone of my leg tearing the fiesh at every jump. I can never repent it, though we hated to kill. Our country owed all her troubles to him, and God simply made me the instrument of his punishment.

The country is not, April 1865, what it was. This forced union is not what I have loved. I care not what becomes of me. I have no desire to outlive my country. This night, "Before the deed," I wrote a long article and left it for one of the editors of the National Interingence, in which I fully set forth our reasons for our proceedings. He, or the Government-

Friday 21st.-After being hunted like a dog, through swamps and woods, and last night being chased by gunboats till I was forced to return wet, cold and starving, with every man's hand against me, I am here in despair; and why? For doing what Brutus was honored for, what made Tell a hero; and yet I for striking down a greater tyrant than they ever knew, am looked upon as a common cut-throat. My action was purer than either of theirs. One hoped to be great. The other had not only his country's, but his own wrongs to avenge. I hoped for no gain. I knew no private wrong. I struck formy country, and that alone-a country that groaned beneath histyranny, and prayed for this end, and yet now behold the cold hand they extended to me. God cannot pardon me if I have done wrong. Yet I fannot see my wrong except, in serving a degenerate people. The little, the very little I leave behind to clear my name, the Government will not allow to be printed—so ends affer my country I have given up all that makes life sweet and holy, brought migray upon my family, and any care misery, upon my family, and am sure there is no pardon in the heaven for me, since man condemns me so. I have only heard of what has been done, except what I did myself, and it fills me with horror. God, try and forgive me, and bless my mothers. To-night I will once more try the river with the intent to cross, though I have a greater desire and almost a mind to return to Washington, and it is more released. ington, and in a measure, clear my name, which I feel I can do. I do not repent the blow I struck; I may, bere my God, but not to man. - I think I have done well, though I am aban-doned with the curse of Cain upon me; when, if the world knew my heart, that one blow would make me great, though I did desire no greatness. To night I try to escape these blood-hounds once more. Who can read his fate? God's me that, and let me die bravely! Ibless the entire world; have never hated or

Upon a piece of paper found in the diary, and supposed to have been forn from it, is written the following; My dear, [piece torn out] forgive me, but I have some little pride. 'I cannot blame you for want of hospitality.— Your know your own affairs. I was sick, tired, with a broken limb, and in need of medical advice. Report of the Judge Advocate General, Bureau of Military Justice, May 14, 1867. Respectfully returned, with the copy asked for. The "diary" purports to be one for 1864, and the leaves cut or torn from it probably contained entries of that year, and were thus destroyed by Booth himself. It is absolutely certain that the diary is in all respects as it was when it came into my hands; and Colonel Conger, who was prominent in the pursuitand capture of Booth, my presence on yesterday, declared its condition to be now precisely the same as when he took it from Booth's body after he had been shot, the writing in it being the same, and all which it then

A YOUNG LADY SLEEPS TWELVE YEARS.—Some eight miles from Hickman, says the Hickman (Ky.) Courier, there exists a young lady who presents the most wonderful case of coma or prethe most wonderful case of coins or pre-ternatural disposition to sleep, of which we have ever known or heard. When about twelve years old she was taken with a severe chill, and treated by her physicians accordingly. As her fever which followed the chill subsided, she tell into a deep sleep, in which condition she has remained ever since, except at intervals. She awakes regularly twice'in every twenty-four hours, at which time nourishment is given her, and it is a most singular fact that she always awakes within a few minutes of the same hours every day. She will remain awake and perfectly conscious five, ten, or perhaps fifteen minutes, and then gradually drop off to sleep again. When asleep it is utterly impossible to arouse her. She is now twenty-four years old, and has consequently been in this comatose condition a period of twelve years. When awake she does not appear to suffer, except from a drowsy, gaping inclination, and a persistent effort to cleanse her throat of phledby. She is for ordinary inclination. phleghm. She is of ordinary size, and her limbs and muscles well proportioned and developed. She has grown considerably since her affliction. Her name is Mary Godsy, and her mother is a very poor widow lady, dependent upon the charity of neighbors and visitors for a general.

Mr. Greeley, as usual, has a plan for sending the present system of nominations to the shades. He would elect fewer officers and appoint more. He would discard the machinery of "Regular Nominations," and call by requisition upon fit men to stand as candidates. All of which is very pleasant in theory. To appoint more officers is only to change the form of the current system, not the effect. If the appointing "powers that be" are purer than the people we have yet to learn it.
