And who were best at dancing,— While at each pretty face they met Their eyes were brightly glancing. And as they strode for many a mile

They grew in time quite frisky, And now and then from lip to lip They passed the darling whisky. At length, before them in the hedge, The roadside view commanding, They saw, its white sides fettered o'er, A mile stone lonely standing.

They read and quickly doffed their hats, With sorrow in their faces, Thou, turning with reverential awe, They stepped back several paces. "Speak low, we're near the dead," said one, 'His grave we'll not be troublin;'
An old man; sure! 100-and His name is 'Miles to Doublin!' "

A COURAGEOUS BOY.

In Oneida County, in the State of New York, there lived, some years since, not many miles from Utica, on the road to Whitesboro,' two farmers, who, from some reason, were mortal enemies. We will call these men Ben-ton and White.

Benton was a squiet, resolute man, who feared no danger. He was open as the day, and with a laconic air about him that won the confidence of all that came near him.

On the other hand, White had a treacherous, hang-dog look about him that placed people on their guard, lest, when they were off it, he might suddenly spring upon them and destroy them.

White was of an exceedingly cross disposition, and sought and kept upon his farm the most untamable, vicious brutes, in the form of the dog it was possible to purchase with money.

It was known White hated Benton, and this hatred, it was surmised, arose from disappointed love. He had sought the hand of a young lady named Wilson, and had been refused, at the same time, the lady accepted an offer of marriage from his neighbor, and became Mrs. Benton. The disappointed man looked nowhere else for a wife, but taught himself to despise, with all his nature, her whom he fancied he had before loved. But, to return: White permitted his dogs to range over his lands, fiercely attacking those who dared to venture on them. Dividing the farms, a lane ran from the Whiteshove he the the Deep ran from the Whitesboro, to the Deer-field road, and down this, one afternoon, in search of berries, little Willie Benton, a stout boy of ten years, and a sister, Susio, a child of six summers, wan-Willie, fortunately, carried in his hand a small, sharp-edged axe, which his father bade him to take to the woods, and amuse himself, while there, by cut-ting a couple of hoop-poles, which he was to bring home to be used by his father to hold up the awning of a wag-

The children sauntered on their way, stopping every now and then to gather some of the wild fruit that grew along their path, and while thus amusing themselves, a huge bull-dog, with savage, stery eyes, and heavy, hanging lips jumped over the ditch on White's side of the lane, and before either wereaware of his intention, sprang at the throat of the little girl, and threw her to the

Another moment, and Susan's throat would have been torn out; but, in that moment, even before the brute could close upon his victim, the boy had raised theaxe, and, with all his strength, hit the animal in the head. The blade glanced from the skull, and while it cut open the flesh, and caused the blood to run freely into the eyes and over the face of the brute, it did not take from any of his fierceness.

The dog now turned upon the boy. leaving his sister terribly frightened, but physically unharmed, and made a jump at him, which was boldly met by the little fellow, who, standing firmly, swung his at over his head, and as the brute sprang upon him church him brute sprang upon him, struck him squarely upon the nose, burying the blade into it, almost cutting it in two. The vicious creature ran back with a ery of pain, but, recovering himself, was again about to rush upon the little fellow, who, without a cry of fear, manfully stood his ground, waiting for a renewal of the attack, when a rifle ball whistled past him, and burieditself deep in the skull of the savage animal, dropping him lifeless to the earth.

ortunately for the children, their father happened to be sufficiently near to them to see the dog spring upon Willie, (but not when he attacked Susie,) and killed him as soon as he could fire with the certainty that the ball would not strike other than the object for which it was intended.

An Irishman's Will. In the name of God, Amen! I, Timothy Dolin, jot Ballydownderry, in the country of Clare, farmer, being sick and wake in the legs but sound head and warm heart-glory be to God!-do make this, me first and last will, and ould and new testament; at first I give my soul to God whin it pleases him to take it, sure and no tanks to me, for I can't help it thin, and my body to be buried in the ground in Ballydownderry Chapel, where all my kith and kin that have gone before me, and those that live after me belonging to me, are buried. Peace to their ashes, and may the sod rest lightly on their bones. Bury me near me godfather, Felix O'Flaherty, bechuxt and betune him and me father and mother who lie separated altogether, dathe other side of the chapel yard. I lave the bit of ground, containing ten acres-rale ould Irish acres-to me eldest son Tim, after the death of his mother if she survives him: Medaughter Mary and her husband, Paddy O'Regan, are to get the white sow that't going to have twelve black bonfits. Tedy, me second boy, that was killed in the war in America, might have got his pick of the poultry, but as he is gone I'll leave them to his wife, who died a wake afor him. I bequeath to all mankind the fresh air of Heaven, all the fishes of the sea they can take, all the birds of the air that can shoot. I leave to Peter Rafferty a pint of poteen I can't finish, and may God be mereiful to him. TIMOTHY DOOLIN ...

THE AMENITIES OF LIFE.—The Springfield (Mass.) Republican tells this story;
"There was a noteworthy, illustrative incident on a rail-car out of Springfield the other day. A big, black, but clean and well-dressed 'colored brother' entered, and sat down by one of the—at least, formerly—'ruling race.' The white man looked venom at the black one, and, hissing out, 'Do you suppose I am going to sit, by a—black nigger like you? Let me out!" squeezed by into the aisle, and took a vacant seat in front, by the side of a small Yale, student-lad from Springfield. The latter looked at the new comer, and saying, 'Do you suppose I can sit by you, sir?' Let me pass out! got up and went back to the scat just vacated near the black man. seat just vacated near the black man. The party of the first part grew pale with added feeling, and said, 'Do you prefer to sit by a nigger?'' 'I prefer to sit by a gentleman?' 'Do you dare say I am not a gentleman?' 'A gentleman never swears, nor insults a man because of his color.' 'You shall be taken three of, you impudent Jackanapes.' When the black brother, stalwart and suggesthe black brother, stalwart and suggestive, spoke in, 'I will take care of him, there ensued 'a splendid passage of silence,' and the car went on, and there was no assault and battery for the Worcester police court." N. P. Willis once said in a private conversation, that a woman would tire Cases from $27.50 up at FOLEY'S. of Phobus Apollo himself, if the young man hung about the house all

LATEST FASHIONS DEMAND W. BRADLEY'S Celebrated Paten DUPLEX ELLIPTIC (OR DOUBLE SPRING)

SKIRT.

THEY will not bend or break like the single spring, but will preserve their perfect and graceful shape when three or four ordinary skirts will have been thrown aside as useless. The hoops are covered with double and twisted thread, and the bottom rods are not only double springs, but twice (or double) covered; preventing them from wearing out when dragging down stoops, stairs. &c. thom from wearing out when dragging down stoops, stairs, &c.

The wonderful flexibility and great comfort and pleasure to any lady wearing the Duplex Elliptic Skirt, will be experienced particularly in all crowded assemblies, operas, carriages, railroad cars, church pews, arm chairs, for promenade and house dress, as the skirt and befolded when in rest to compare a real latest to the skirt of arm chairs, for promenade and house dress, as the skirt can be folded when in use to occupy a small place as easily and conveniently as a silk or muslin dress, an invaluable quality in crinolline, not found in any stugle apring skirt.

A lady having enjoyed the pleasure, comfort and great convenience of wearing the duplex elliptic steel spring skirt for a single day, will never afterwards willingly dispense with their use. For children, Misses and young ladies they are superior to all others.

The Duplex Elliptic is a great favorite with all ladies, and is universally recommended by the fashion magazines, as the staudard skirt of the fashionable world.

To enjoy the following inestimable advantages in crinoline, viz: superior quality, perfect manufacture, stylish shape and finish, fiexibility, durability, comfort and economy, inquire for J. W. Bradley's Duplex Elliptic, or double spring skirt, and be sure you get the genuine article.

A CAUTION.—To guard against imposition, be particular to notice that skirts offered as "duplex" have the red ink stamp, viz: "J. W. Bradley's Duplex Elliptic Steel Springs," upon the waistband—none others are genuine. Also notice that every holop will admit a pin being passed through the center, thus revealing the two (or double) springs braided together therein, which is the secret of their flexibility and strength, and a combination not to be found in any other skirt.

For sale in all stores where first class skirts are sold throughout the United States and clsewhere. Manufactured by the sole owners of the nation.
