A thrill of horror passed through his veins as the monster crushed its way through the brush with almost the speed of lightning into the 'swamp, and ' immediately lost to eight. He thinks it would measure thirty inches around its body in the largest place; in fact, it appeared nearly to be of one size, except three feet from the quid of the tail, end. Its length he should judge to be not far from twenty-eight to thirty feet. Its skin was so black and bright that it fairly dazzled. The farmers in the vicinity complain less of the depredations of the reptile than formerly. On the bor-ders of the swamp where it lives graze herds of cows, and it is among these it gets its living. The owners of these cows have for some time wondered why some of their best milkers had failed to give their usual quantity of milk; as it sonly in the morning the owners miss it they have come to the conclusion that the snake sucks them, and thus get its living. It is well known that snakes are fond of warm new milk; and it is this kind of food no doubt that has to inquire. It is no time for recrimina-Eaused this one to grow to such im-Anense proportions.

capture alive, and fifty dollars if killed. There is a strong pressure bearing or the town authorities to offer a reward large enough to secure its capture or de struction, and the subject will be brought before the annual town meeting the first Monday in October. Hundreds held there came more for the purpose o secing where this monster snake lived that to seek for the straight and narrow thing more than any other that made the meeting almost a failure. One man has determined to sell his farm and leave the place. His wife has already left, and says she will never live on the place again until the snake is killed .ple, and what will be the result fime alone can determine.

A GENUINE GHOST STORY .- The Monongaliela Republican says :-"Not very long ago, the young and beautiful wife of one of our citizens was eallyd to her final accounts, leaving her husband discousolate, sad, bereft. He tried to drive the dream away, but it abided with him by night and troubeled him by day. He sought the consolations of religion; his pastor prayed, with him and assured him that it was wicked to indulge such morbid fancy.—
It was the subject of his own petition before the Theorem of Grace, but will the before the Throne of Grace, but still the spirit came and told anew the story of her suffication. In despair he sought the undertaker, Mr. Diekney, who told him that the napkin had not been re-uoved, but urged him to forget the cir-cumstance, as it could not be any possible annoyance to inanimate clay.-While the gentleman frankly acknowledged this, he could not avoid the ap parition, and continual stress upon his mind began to tell upon his health. At length he determined to have the body his their macroscient to the struggle disintered and visited the undertaken for that purpose. Here he was met with the same advice, and persuasion, and convinced once more of his folly, the haunted man returned to his home. That night, more vivid than ever, more terribly real than before, she came to his bedside, and upbraided him for his want of affection, to remove the cause of all her suffering. The next hight with a friend, he repaired to the Sexton who was prevailed upon to eccompany them, and thereby the light of the cold, round moon, the body was litted from its narrow bed; the coffin lid was unscrewed, and the napkin removed from the face of the corpse. That night she came to his bedside once more, but for the last time. Thanking him for his kindness, she pressed her cold lips to his cheek, and came again no more.-Reader, this is a true story; gan you explain the mysteries of Dreams?

TWO YOUNG LADIES TREE A NAKED Yourn .- A young man of Liberty counwon the heart and hand of a neighborheod girl, denuded himself of his figleaves for the very pleasant object of taking a bath in the creek. Scarcely had he submerged his heated frame in the cooling waters ere he heard the crackling of twigs and the silvery ring of girlish laughter, and looking up, he saw-horrendum monstrum! -the object of his affection and a female combank, and running nimbly up a tree, there waited the end of his predicament The young ladies approach—our hero' heart thumps—they stop just beneath the tree that holds him, and very naturally start with surprise when they see a man's clothing on the ground and no wearer about. Our friend above ing to make his retreat more secure, loves cautiously higher up, but acci dentally puts his whole weight on a despins off at a tangent like a bursted shell in one direction, and they retreat equally as fast and horrified in another.
