THANKSGIVING. - Gov. Geary has issued his proclamation recommending Thursday, Nov. 28, as a day of thanksgiving and giving, and not that appointed by the arch hypocrito Andrew Johnson.

PERSONAL.-Gen. Thos. L. Young, Recorder of the City of Cincinnati, last week paid a visit to his brother, Hugh Young, Esq., of this village. Gen. Young served with distinction during the war for the nation's life, and was elected to the responsible position of Recorder of the city at the recent election. He says that Ohio proposes to send Vallandigham to the Senate as a representative man. We hope it may be done. It is about time the party showed its true colors. The General, however, is a thorough Republican.

APPLES .-- Mr. E. W. Grinnell, of Shippen, has a claim upon the gratitude of this office for a half bushel of commingled pippins and King apples, very large and exceedingly good. He also left a peck of sample potatoes.

We had barely recovered from the surprise the forgoing donation, when Mr. Jas. E. Smith, of Charleston presented himself, with a half bushel of King apples in no wise inferior to those left by Mr. Grinnefl. Thank you, gentlemen may your orchards bear every year.

FOR SALE. - Mrs. Jerome Smith offers for sale a quantity of household furniture, consisting of Parlor, dining-room, Bedroom, and Kitchen furniture, carpets, glassware, &c., &c. To those who wish to purchase such articles this is a desirable opportunity. The goods may be seen at her residence on Main street, in this vil-

REAL ESTATE SALES.—A. S. Turner Esq., advertises valuable real estate for sale this week, a portion of it lying in the village of Troga. These latter lands must be very desirable, their quality being equal to the very best bottom land, and their location, near the railroad, unsurpassed part. The property is to be sold together, or in lots to suit purchasers.

AUCTION.-Mr. D. G. Edwards, of Charleston, will sell at public vendue, on his farm, Friday Nov. 15, 50 tuns of hay, cows, young cattle, sheep, lambs, pigs, bulls, oxen; threshing machine, eider-mill, mower and reaper, de. This affords a fine opportunity to persons wishing to purchase. The terms are favorable.

FIRE IN UNION.-Lieut. Hollis, of Ward, writes us that the barn of Mr. Judson Dann, of Union was burnt on the night of Octoper 29, ult. With it were destroyed about 20 tops of hay, a large crop of grain, and valuable shifts ng implements. It is thought to have been set of fire.

CELEBRATION .- We are requested to announce that the Democracy, of Troga County' will meet at the Court House in this village, Thursday evening, 14th inst., to celebrate "the victory of Democratic principles over Radicalism" expected to be present. Preparations for a general good time seem to be in progress, and the occasion will doubtless be pilgrious.

But we suspect that the York State election, can bardly be called a "vlctory of Democratic principles over Radicalism." It looks, more like a victory of the U. L. L. over the excise law. ,However, it is a practical victory of the Demb tract," and it is their right to celebrate. MANSFIELD.-We are indebted to our enterprising friend Frank Spencer, for the following items:

"The Iron Works continue to turn out plenty of the best of iron, but still increase the chapter of accidents. Last Saturday morning, Nov. 2. while drawing off the iron. Mr. Neil, one of the Ecepers, had his foot badly burned by the iron breaking over the sluice opposite the mold-bed and running into his shee. The burn is very had, but will not, it is hoped, cause the loss of

POTTER COUNTY .- The Journal says "Mr. VERMILYEA has left the Coudersport Hotel, and it is now managed by Capt, N. J. MILLS, & Son. They are well known in this ricinity, as thorough and energetic men, and we feel confident that with such men in charge, this Hotel will keep up its well-established reputation. "Last week we were shown an Indian arrow-head, or it may be al spear-head, measuring six and one-fourth inches in length, and two and one-sixth, inches in width. It was found by Mr. N. H. GOODSELL, of this Borough, and is made of the purest white flint, This relic of barbarism, like the Equation Number unrolled at the Paris like the Egyptian Mummy unrolled at the Paris exposition, or the one of Belzonni's Exhibition, in London—which was so dumb concerning what it did "in Thebes street three thousand years ago"-is a silent and mysterious souvenir of some things past finding out, but it helps to prove that the various tabes of aborigines of North America used arrows in every respect alike in con-

Borrowing is many-phased; sometimes, but not often, toaching the sublime, and often touching the absurd and the inconsistent. The man who sent to borrow his neighbor's buck-saw to saw meat, excusing himself by saying that he did not like to dull his own, may be cited as a specimen of the sublime in borrowing. The shoemaker who borrowed his neighbor's boots on a Sunday, the grocer who borrowed his coffee by the teacupful, and apologized by saying that he was kept so busy serving others that he nover remembered to serve himself, and the miller who borrowed his coffee by the teacupful, and apologized by saying that he was kept so busy serving others that he nover remembered to serve himself, and the miller who borrowed his coffee by the trace of the last six years, both for coal and those in playaut of a first-class Cooking Store; will consult their own interests and convenience, and be sure of getting value for their money by gurchasing the American.—Albany Evening Jaurnia. flour by the "baking,"-these are specimens of the absurd in borrowing, However, these borrowers may be laughed at and the world be no worse for their addity. It is one of fifty raised by etc. Somebody who lived half a century back, him, all approximating very nearly to the size of whose name has escaped us, says that wives were borrowed, sold, and swapped in those days. So we may presume that borrowing is not peculiar to this year of grace, 1867. We recollect the story of the unfortunate poor man who borrowed a pair of breeches to wear to church. Being about to kneel at prayer the owner of the breeches called out loud enough to be heard in every part of the church-"Don't kneel in my breeches!" The poor man was exceedingly mortified and was seen no mure at church for some time. A worthy of all humons, Merchry, Lead, &c., and restore health to deacon meeting the poor man one day asked why he did not attend church. The borrower of breeches hesitated for a moment, and then disclosed the fact that he had no suitable pantaloons. "I'll lend you a pair," said the Deacon. "I don't want to borrow," replied the other. And then related the result of his former borrowing. The Deacon was amused, and prevailed upon the other to accept the loan of a pair of pantaloons. So, when Runday came, the borrower appeared in church with the borrowed breeches. Prayer being announced, the borrower- was observed to stand when he should have knelt. . The Deacon seeing how it was, whispered, laud enough to reach the ears of half the congregation "You are welcome to kneel in my breeches, man!"-again overwhelming the poor fellow with shame and confusion. This gives the shady-side of borrowing. However, it is not our purpose to inveigh against those reciprocal acts of kindness which indicate fraternity among men. It is to those who bor-

-Did you notice the splendors of the sunsets on the evenings of November 2 and 7? Did you see the magnificent day dawn of November 8? Seldom, even in this region of magnificent dawns and evens, is any man or, woman privileged to behold so much loveliness. When the daystreak appeared last Friday morning the heavens were for market facilities. We should judge these govered with cirro-cumulus clouds, benefitfully lands to be capital for gardening, for the most disposed. As the dawn came on the effect was gorgeous. We shall not undertake to define the colors developed by the rising sun; in our case that would be dangerdus. But the "altogether" of the scene cannot be expressed in words. Good people, it pays to look above the horizon SIMILIA SIMILIBUS CURANTURA sometimes. It pays to rise early, even by accident. A GREAT LAND, SUIT.-Under this head the Williamsport Bulletin of last week chronicles an intense excitement in the 5th ward of that city touching the title to ninety acres of land, comprising what was known as the "Armstrong farm." It is stated that Judge Armstrongin the late elections. Prominent speakers are lately deceased, owned but a life interest in this farm, and two of the heirs, Mrs. Canfield and Mrs. Holden bring a suit in ejectment to recover the property. They allege that they not only did 15, not join in making the title, but refused consent to the sale of the property. Accordingly a summons has issued to Peter Herdie, and other occupants of the land in question, and the matter is much to umlearn. There is no picture gallery

The Bulletin says it has the best argurances that as soon as the original purphase money and interest thereon shall be paid, the sait will be iscontinued. It also states that the sait was brought during the absence of Hon. Wm. II. Armstrong, and without his knowledge. As such a proceeding reflects somewhat upon the business integrity of Judge Armstrong, however unjustly it may be, it is not likely that the matter will sho prosecuted very far. It is not likely that the purchasers supposed they were buying a pig in a poke; and it is just as unlikely that Judge Armstrong intended to wrong anybody. The land in dispute is valued at $1.000,000. Judge Armstrong received $262 per acre for the same.
