He had read books about Washington, and Franklin, and Napoleon, and perhaps he had heard of Julius Cæsar, and Alexander. And he wanted to be a great man. And he was the smartest MILL, MULEY, GANG, CROSS-CUT, ov in the school at learning could get up to the head of his class in anything and keep there. It was so in college. He was never at ease if any student was able to beat him in any study. Perhaps he overworked his brain while there. But he became a lawyer, and rose rapidly in his profession. A good speaker, and a hard worker, he made his mark early; and taking a turn to polities, as the high road to office, he soon was in the Legislature of the State, and then he was sent to Congress. There he made a figure, and was likely to become a leader. ure, and was likely to become a leader.
As no office was too high for his ambition, so there was scarcely any place to which he might not have risen, had his life and health been spared. But he was one who sought to become popular by doing as others did; with those that level to drink he drank. The excitement of liquor, and the excitement of public life, and the great struggle to "get up head" in Congress, were too much for him. He lost his reason. He became deranged. This was not seen at first, but the truth gradually came out after he had retired from Congress, and when his madness was so violent that it was not safe to keep him at home he was taken to an asylum for the insane. There he died.

And what did the third boy wish?
Gde-s. "He wanted to be good."—
You're right. He said I mean to be a good man. 'As a boy, he was not a chief, and wanted him to join, he was firm as a rock, and dared to say No.— He lived to be a man, and he is living now. In business he carried out the he was a boy. He never told a lie. He never deceived any body as to the quality or cost of anything he had to sell.-He became known, as an honest man, for he did fear God and keep his commandments. His word was as good as his bond, and perhaps better, for his boro, Pa. bond might be lost or burned, but his word was never broken. In the place where he lived, there was no office of profit or trust, to which the people would not elect him. Even the wicked respected him, and all the good loved him. He made money enough to have all the comforts of life, and as many luxuries as he desired. The best of all his treasures was a good wife and a flock of happy, healthy children. He is the greatest man in the town, and as rich a man as he wishes to be.
And now my story is done. This is the time when everybody is wishing everybody a Happy New Year, aid your old friend, who writes this, wishes each of you a Happy New Year and many more. He does not wish that many more. He does not wish that you may be only rich or great, or rich and great both. But he does wish that if for you to buy.

A. RUSSELL. you may be good, you will be just as rich, and just as great, as it is best for you to be in this world. And in the world to come you will have heaven and all its riches and glory forever.

I would like to see all the children, boys and girls, who will read this New Xears story. If they were all in one place, the place would be a large one to for family use that have ever been made. They best wishes for a Happy New Year.

The American Cooking Stove.

A FTER twenty years experience in the man-ufacture of stoves, we became convinced, some six years since, that a vast amount of money was being expended by the people of this good man. 'As a boy, he was not a spoony. He was none of the milk-andwater sort of boys, who are always afraid tagay or do anythig, and so get the credit of being good, because they never doiny harm. He was a brave little fellow, and stood up square for the right always, even if he stood alone. He got into trouble two or three times for pitching into a fight, when he saw the bigger boys imposing on smaller ones; and once he was laughed at for telling a big bully of a boy a head taller than he, "If you want to fight, take one of your size." But when the rest of the boys were up to any kind of mischief, and wanted him to join; he was brave alugher state of perfection than brought it to a higher state of perfection than brought it to a higher state of perfection than has heretofore been attained in cooking stoves. The recent improvements in this ctore has added largely to its convenience and effectivesame principle that governed him when ness. In all the varieties of stoves we manufacture, we study usefulness, durability, convenience and economy in operation, rather than cheaptess in price, and in so doing we are satisfied we study the interest of those purchasing our stoves. Proofs of the Superior Quality OF THE AMERIC'N WATCH WALTHAM, MASS.

The American Watch Company, of Walham, Mass., respectfully submit that their Watches are cheaper, more accurate, less complex, more durable, better adapted for general use, and more en-sily kept in order and repaired than any other watches in the market. They are simpler in structure, and therefore stronger, and less likely

PENN. RAILROAD COMPANY. OFFICE OF THE GEN'L SPERINTENDENT,) ALTOONA, PA., 15 Dec., 1866. GENTLEMEN: The watches manufactured by you have been in use on this railroad for several years by our enginemen, to whom we furnish years by our enginemen, to whom we furnish watches as part of our equipment. There are now some three hundred of them carried on our line, and we consider them good and reliable time-keepers. Indeed, I have great satisfaction in saying your watches give us less trouble, and have worn, and do wear much longer without reline, and we consider them good and, reliable time-keepers. Indeed, I have great satisfaction in saying your watches give us less trouble, and have worn, and do wear much longer without repairs than any watches we have ever had in use on this road. We make now five different grades of watches amed respectively as follows: Appleton, Tracy & Co., Waltham, Mass. Waltham Watch Company, Waltham, Mass. P. S. Bartlett, Waltham, Mass. Wm. Ellery, Home Watch Company, Boston, Muss. Boston, Mass. All of these, with the exception of the Home Watch Company, are warranted by the American Watch Company to be of the best material, on the most approved principle, and to possess every requisite for a reliable timekeeper. Every dealer selling these Watches is provided with the Company's printed card of guarantee, which should accompany each Watch sold, so that buyers may feel sure they are purchasing the genuine article. There are numerous counterfeits and imitations of our Watches sold throughout the country, and we would caution purchasers to be on their guard against imposition.
