Ourious Things About Frost.

One morning in October I found all the tomato and pumpkin vines used up and killed by frost, but the bean vines, the potatoes and the cabbages in my garden were in fine order still. Three weeks after the frost came again, and not finding any more tomatoes and pumpkins, he laid hold on my pole beans and my potatoes. They became black and died as if strangled. An old farmer said that this frost that killed the potatoes was a "real black frost." "Ha!" said I, "black frost and white frost-do they ever mix?" "You watch and you'll see the difference," said the old farmer.

And I began to watch. The cabbage in my garden was not killed yet. The chickens have a wonderful good time, mipping off the edges of the big, tough leaving Well I watched to see what eaves. Well, I watched to see what the frost would do next. One morning I noticed that the bridges and the board walks were white as snow, but the dirt roads, gravel walks, and stone sidewalks could not show a single speck of frost. And I saw that there was no frost on or near the spikes in the board walk, but were spots instead. Yet I remember, on one winter day bout noon, when things were thawing a little, that the board walks all dried off, leaving a spot of frost on each spike, and all the stone walks and dirt roads were cold and hard as ever with snow and ice! Every fall the boards become frosty, while the spikes and stones are warm and wet. Every spring the boards are warm and wet, while the spikes and stones are frosty! Funny

One day the good woman, who cooks for us, made some doughnuts, some folks call them fried cakes, (they are good no matter what you call them,) and when she had done frying them she set the hot lard out at the door, by the side of a basin of water, to cool. The lard and the water both froze solid that night, and the next morning I saw that the frost had made a hollow in the lard and a hump in the water. Frozen lard shrinks, frozen waterswells! Funny frost how you do. And out in a barn on a beam, I had one bottle with castor oil in it, tooll my carriage wheels, another with neatsfoot for my harness, and another bottle half full of water. They all froze up solid, one cold night, and the water bottle spilt, but the oth-

Off the coast of Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, sailors often meet with icebergs a hundred feet high, and all the books say that there is nearly as much ice under water as there is above. But, when I went skating on our canal, the ice lay all of it on top of the water, and none of that I saw was under water at all. And yet, when I break off a piece of ice, and put it in a pitcher of water, it floats just like an iceberg, six times as much under water as there is above

An Indian was found, dead, by the roadside, one very cold morning, with an empty rum bottle beside him. He was frozen stiff. The wise Indians a new thing, and made for use. These are but a came and examined to find what had few of the many articles composing our stock killed him. They decided that there of Hardware. had been too much water in his rum, and the water had frozen hard and killed him. Rum never freezes, but men with rum in them freeze more easily than other men who drink water only. Queer, funny frost again.

These are only a few of the curious things that frost has set me to think of. If any one of the readers can explain all these curious things, they will be wiser than some Professors in our colleges. And Professors are the wisest people I know of.—[Thomas K Beecher, in Little Corporal.

Nine Bridals at the same house in one night-an Incident.

There was nine bridal parties, at the Philips House, Dayton, on Christmas eve. A propos of this fact: "It was midnight—it might have been a few minutes later-when the inmates of the hotel were aroused by the voice of one in distress. It was not a "subdued sobbing," nor yet a "hearty crying," but it was the style of lamentation usually denominated heart broken, and indulged in only by those who are overwhelmed by sorrow which savors of despair! We will not undertake to give our readers the faintest description of the situation, at that hour, in the hall of the "Philips," where a 'crowd of hastly dressed persons were gathered, apprehensive that something dreadful had happened—murder, it might be lead to in their midst. They all very naturally fell back on the landlord; and Mr. Reibold was sent for, brought dress, with the cash. to the scene, and besought to verify their wildest fears or dissipate them. This brought Mr. R. to the threshold of the room in which, at an early hour the previous night, the most juvenile couple of the weddingers were deposited. A demand for admission received no other recognition than a fresh outburst of the wailing which had filled the people of the house with the most terrible apprehensions. The demand for admittance was enforced with more vigor of tone, and was accompanied by an intimation that it was not unlikely the door would be forced if not unfustened. Then the door slowly opened, and the landlord quickly slipped into the opening, and the door closed! There was no scream, as some feared there; would be. Even the lamentations lowered into a kind of conversational sob, not unlike the grunting of a hog while crunching corn. Then a few moments utter silence prevalled—could it be the silence of death! And this condition was becoming painful, when the landlord reappeared, and the wailing was resumed. "What can be the matter?" was the general exclamation; as the landlord emerged from the door. "Why, the fact is," said R., confusedly, "the bridegroom is a very young man; he has never been from the lamentations lowered into a kind young man; he has never been from home before; the thought that he is among strangers fills him with unconbeen penned up for the first time, he ing in Tioga County. In fact, we have stoves is bawling for his mother! That is all!"

AUTOMATONS.—Some wonderful accounts are handed down of mechanism so constructed as to resemble animals; and even human beings in figure, and imitate their actions,

Archytas, of Tarentum, about 400 years before the Christian Era, is said to have made a wooden pigeon that could fly. Albertus Magnus constructed an automaton to open the door when any one knocked. The celebrated Regiomontanus made a wooden eagle that flew forth from the city, saluted the emperor and returned. He also constructed an iron fly which flew out of his band, and returned for the contract of the contract o his hand and returned, after flying about the room. In 1738, an automaton flute player was exhibited at Paris that could play the flute in the same manner as a living performer. In 1641 Vaucanson produced a flageolet-player, which played the flageolet with the left hand and beat the tambourine with the right, He also made a duck, which dabbled in the water, swam, drank, and quacked like a real duck. A Frenchman exhibited a duck a few years ago which went through the same movements. MILL MULEY, GANG OROSS-CUT, Automatons have been constructed CLEARING, SOOTH AND OTHER which wrote, played on the planoforte, counted, &c. During the present century, a Swiss named Mailardes, made a figure representing a female, which performed 18 three on the plano; and continued in motion an hour. He also made another figure, representing a boy, that could ANDREWS & BURBAGE.

OF THE

The American Cooking Stove. FTER twenty years experience in the man A ufacture of stores, we became convinced, some six years since, that a vast amount of money was being expended by the people of this country, in buying choap and worthless stoves, a large portion of which was wasted; and that true economy consisted in buying the best stoves that could be made, notwithstanding the price was higher. With this view we proceeded to construct the American Cooking Store and spared no pnins or expense to make it the best and most perfect store that could be made. And we have experimented with it, and carefully watched its operation for the last six years, and when an improvement suggested itself, we have at once adopted it, and we have several of these

The recent improvements in this stove has added largely to its convenience and effectivedess. In all the varieties of stoves we manufacture, we study usefulness, durability, convenience and economy in operation, rather than cheapness in price, and in so doing we are satisfied we study the interest of those purchasing our stoves.
