HE WENT TO SEEK HIS FORTUNE.

He went to seek his fortune, girls,
And such a search had he!
He wandered East—he wandered West—
By land, and mount and sea;
And every shore he'd travelled o'er
And proved in vain to roam,
He turned about, where he set out,
And found it nearer home!
And found it nearer home, my girls,
Away from shore and sea;
For Fortune's gate is fixed as fate
Till woman finds the key!

So I became his fortune, girls,
His dearest wealth in life;
And oft he's told the best of gold
Was in a careful wife!
He wonders yet how he could set
On such a quest to roam;
For he confessed that fortune's chest
Is ever found at home!
Is ever found at home, my girls,
Away from shore and sea;
Though fortune's box had double locks,
We girls would find a key!

The Two Pictures.

In a far-off land a painter found a beautiful child playing by the wayside; its hair was in tangles, and it was begrimed with dust. He took it to a brook and washed away the dirt, and then looked upon it as one of the most beautiful objects he had ever beheld; he had long been wishing to paint a picture to be called Innocence; he had travelled far and visited the homes of the rich and poor to find the desired face for a copy. In this little child by the wayside he saw what he thought the most perfect form that could be given to represent innocence. He painted it with the love an artist has for a favorite subject; he lingered over the picture with many gentle touches; it was joyous, lovely childhood giving a form to holy, happy Innocence.

"The picture was hung in the artist's studio, and visitors from far and near came to gaze upon it. It was of more value than gold to the painter; to produce it he had driven earth from his mind and filled it with heaven—and it made him famous.

"The mother of the child said, 'A stranger gave us money for the privilege of looking at him and talking and playing with him; come, Hans, let us go away from these neighbors, who have seen our boy and do not care to look at his beauty; perhaps other strangers will give him money and then we need not work so hard for a living.' They accordingly packed up all they had, which was but little, and tramped to a neighboring city. They bought fine clothes for little Karl, and carried or led him about for people to admire. Occasionally some one would stop and say, 'What a beautiful boy,' and give him fruit or candy or a little money.

"Hans and Martha soon found themselves without the means of living.—An idle life proved to be a bitter one, and more to be dreaded than hard work. Little Karl became peevish: he was not happy being carried about in finery he wished to play again in the ashes and roll on the sand heap; his face became thin and faded. Hans and Martha were finally glad to do even the meanest work in the city to earn their food, and Karl was pleased to be free again.

"Years passed, and the company the boy found in the gutter, in the dark cellars and filthy alleys of the city, filled his mind with thoughts as dark and filthy, and filled his mouth with words to speak those thoughts.

"And his face—that beautiful face was taking its shape and expression from those ugly thoughts and words; for the mind stamps its character on the face as clearly as the printer's types stamp the words on fair white paper. He picked pockets and stole into houses, and was guilty of all the wickedness that a boy of his years could find and do; he was punished in various ways, and on his hardened face his wicked story left its marks.

"As years passed he grew in vice; he was imprisoned again and again—but he only grew worse. At length, having committed a horrible murder, he was sentenced to be hung. A brutal and degraded face was that in the doomed man's cell. The jailor said it was the most wicked face he had ever seen. Curiosity sent many to gaze upon the worst face that the keeper of a large prison had ever beheld. An artist, who was visiting the city where the prison was, went to look upon the criminal; he looked at him long and earnestly; through the gratings he studied his face as he would the work of a great master. The prisoner turned and looked at him with glaring eyes.

"'May I paint a picture of you?' asked the artist.

"'Ha! am I such a beauty then? A picture of me? That was done once before! Yes, you may make a picture of me if you will pay well. You would hardly think a man had ever been willing to look at me because I was beautiful.'

"The artist smiled a kind and pitying farewell to the poor wretch, as he left with a promise to come the next day. He had long been looking for a face that he might copy to represent vice. For this purpose he had visited noted criminals in their cells; he had visited the lowest scenes of misery and wickedness and looked upon the vilest criminals; but never until now had he seen a face so entirely bad as to suit his purpose. He visited the prisoner's cell until he had succeeded in making a picture so hideous that those who gazed shuddered.

"The criminal was sullenly silent, refusing all conversation until the painter had finished his work.

"'Now my friend,' said the artist, 'what shall I pay you for the trouble I have given you?'

"'Nothing for the trouble,' said the poor man, 'but fifty dollars for the privilege of looking upon my beauty;—that's what you or some one else paid once before for the same.'

"'What do you mean!' asked the artist.

"'I mean that when I was a child you took me off the sand heap, washed my face and paid my parents fifty dollars for permission to do just what you have now been doing—taking a copy of my beauty.'

"'What is your name?' asked the astonished artist.

"'I had almost forgotten the name they called me by in those far-off happy days when I rolled on the sand heaps,' said the miserable man, with a shaking voice, 'I have been called by so many names since: but then I was Karl Braun.'

"The painter hung the two pictures side by side in his studio,—the beginning and the end of one life,—INNOCENCE AND VICE."

A SHARP RETORT.—On the evening of election day, the Republicans of Hornellsville, N. Y., held an impromptu jollification in the village park which was addressed by the Hon. Horace Bemis, and others. In the course of his remarks Mr. Bemis alluded to the magnanimity of the Democracy, and stated that he never knew so generous a set of men. "Why," said he, "although we have whipped them out and out, they bear us no ill-will. I have learned this evening that several of them have been presenting our men with sacks of flour, and other provisions, new hats, etc., and lots of money, and—"

"Go to h—l!" exclaimed an infuriated Democrat, who had by chance strayed into the crowd.

"And you have all heard," continued Mr. B., "that one of our opponents has this moment invited me down to his house!"

A writer on "poetry of slang," in the Round Table, suggests that a simpleton is called a "spoon" and a "muff," because a spoon touches a lady's lips without kissing them, and a muff holds her hand without pressing it.

A girl that has lost her beau may as well hang up her fiddle.

Proofs of the Superior Quality

OF THE

AMERIC'N WATCH

MADE AT

WALTHAM, MASS.

The American Watch Company, of Waltham, Mass., respectfully submit that their Watches are cheaper, more accurate, less complex, more durable, better adapted for general use, and more easily kept in order and repaired than any other watches in the market. They are simpler in structure, and therefore stronger, and less likely to be injured than the majority of foreign watches, which are composed of from 125 to 300 pieces, while in an old English watch there are more than 700 parts. How they run under the hardest trial watches can have, is shown by the following letters:

PENN. RAILROAD COMPANY.
OFFICE OF THE GEN'L SUPERINTENDENT,
ALTOONA, PA., 15 Dec., 1866.

GENTLEMEN: The watches manufactured by you have been in use on this railroad for several years, by our engineers, to whom we furnish watches as part of our equipment. There are now some three hundred of them carried on our line, and we consider them good and reliable time-keepers. Indeed, I have great satisfaction in saying your watches give us less trouble, and have worn, and do wear much longer without repairs than any watches we have ever had in use on this road. As you are aware, we formerly trusted to those of English manufacture, of acknowledged good reputation; but as a class they never kept time as correctly, nor have they done as good service, as yours.

In these statements I am sustained by my predecessor, Mr. Lowis, whose experience extended over a series of years. Respectfully,

EDWARD H. WILLIAMS,
General Superintendent.

American Watch Co., Waltham.

We make now five different grades of watches, named respectively as follows:

Appleton, Tracy & Co., Waltham, Mass.
Waltham Watch Company, Waltham, Mass.
P. S. Bartlett, Waltham, Mass.
Wm. Ellery, Boston, Mass.
Home Watch Company, Boston, Mass.

All of these, with the exception of the Home Watch Company, are warranted by the American Watch Company to be of the best material, on the most approved principle, and to possess every requisite for a reliable timekeeper. Every dealer selling these Watches is provided with the Company's printed card of guarantee, which should accompany each Watch sold, so that buyers may feel sure they are purchasing the genuine article. There are numerous counterfeits and imitations of our Watches sold throughout the country, and we would caution purchasers to be on their guard against imposition.

Any grades of Waltham Watches may be purchased of Watch Dealers throughout the country.

The American Cooking Stove.

AFTER twenty years experience in the manufacture of stoves, we became convinced, some six years since, that a vast amount of money was being expended by the people of this country, in buying cheap and worthless stoves, a large portion of which was wasted; and that true economy consisted in buying the best stoves that could be made, notwithstanding the price was higher. With this view we proceeded to construct the American Cooking Stove, and spared no pains or expense to make it the best and most perfect stove that could be made. And we have experimented with it, and carefully watched its operation for the last six years, and when an improvement suggested itself, we have at once adopted it, and we have several of these improvements secured by letters patent. In this manner we do not hesitate to say, we have brought it to a higher state of perfection than has heretofore been attained in cooking stoves. The recent improvements in this stove has added largely to its convenience and effectiveness. In all the varieties of stoves we manufacture, we study usefulness, durability, convenience and economy in operation, rather than cheapness in price, and in so doing we are satisfied we study the interest of those purchasing our stoves. To the Farmers of Tioga County.

I AM now building at my manufactory, in Lawrenceville, a superior

which possesses the following advantages over all other mills:

1. It separates oats, rat litter, and foul seeds, and chess and cockle, from wheat.
2. It cleans flax seed, takes out yellow seed, and all other seeds, perfectly.
3. It cleans timothy seed.
4. It does all other separating required of a mill.

This mill is built of the best and most durable timber, in good style, and is sold cheap for cash, or produce.

I will fit a patent stove, for separating oats from wheat, to other mills, on reasonable terms.
