WITH A "C."-Will Gould, of the Cameron County Press, pardon us if we nek him why he spells "Cameron" and "County," over his local column, each with a "T"? A friend called our attention to it some weeks ago, and we liave waited to see if Gould would correct it without being reproved. If he C's it as we C it, he will. treat us to "T and turn out."

IMPOSSIBLE.—A friend at Sabinville writes us that it would be very much to the accommodation of our patrons there if we could mail The Agitator in time for the Tuesday mail to Condersport. As the stage for Condersport leaves Wellsboro at 6 in the morning—an hour before we can get to press,-we regret to say that it is impossible to comply with the request. The mail service at present accommodates the contractors rather than the people.

PRETTY Good,—We are indebted to John James, Esq., Route Agent on the Tioga R. R, for a copy of the following superscription o a letter that passed over the road on the 8th, from Philadelphia: "To Samuel Trull, who during the war Was one of Grant's peace-making men,

And now the fiery strife is o'er
You'll find him under Grant again,

BAPTIST S. S. CONVENTION.-The Baptist Association hold a Sabbath School Conrention at Crooked Creek, Wednesday, July 8. Every Baptist Sabath School in Tioga county was represented, the attendance was large, and the occasion of unusual interest. The Convention organized by electing Rev. W. A. Messrs. L. H. Shattuck and Oliver Elliott, were also chosen, constituting with the above of-fcers the Executive Committee. An additional Committee consisting of Revs. Reynolds and Stone, and Messrs. J. W. Henry and E. T. Bentley, was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws for the Society, to report at the next semi-annual meeting, in November. The occasion will be long remembered by all present. The children, who were out in force, eajoyed the proceedings greatly.

THE FOURTH AT COVINGTON .- "Reporter, writes us of "doings" at Covington on the porter, writes us of "doings" at Covington on the 4th, as follows:—"Some days since the members of the "Covington Band" postered the village, advertising a "Festival" to take place on that day, for the benefit of the "funds" of that institution. They enlisted in their cause some of the young ladies of the town, and General Putnam hindly allowed them the use of the grove for the eccasion. Booths, stands, seats, and swings were erected, and everything put in complete order. The grove was filled, afternoon and late in the evening, with throngs of visitors and not a tibald word was spoken, or drunken gesture made during the entire time (for which thanks are due to Messrs. Gossip.—One of the finest of the fine arts is the art of behaving well. Sometimes, but not too often, one meets a man, or woman, who has a knack of putting one entirely, at his case revealing a superiority always acknowledged and never offensive to any well-regulated character.-Parsons unaccustomed to the society of men and women of culture often feel a dread of meeting such people, lest they may say or do something. awkward. This comes of a too lively self-oonsciousness, which in its turn, grows out of a morbid love of approbation. Many mistake sunvity for "manners"; but suavity, is not manners any more than an apple is an apple tree. Suavity may be counterfeited; manners never. Manners is that indefinable something—say quality of soul -which pervodes the atmosphere in which some. people live, and move, and have their being. Like the poet, this indefinable something is born' with the possessor, and cannot be acquired. Of THE LOCUSTS .- The papers from the they will be revealed under almost all circumstances, in degree. Young men should defer to the middleaged and still older persons with whom they are ought in contact, not servilely, but respectfully. It is true enough that age does not always inclade superior wisdom; nor does high position always include superiority of intellect and 'moral worth. If young men preserve their instincts pure they can judge of these things for themselves. At the very best no man can pass for more than he is worth among men of native courtesy." He may import his bows from Paris, and his comliments from the last book on eliquette, and yet he is only a counterfeiter of good manuers." Some of the technicalities of good manners may be learned from books; but really well-bred people ignore the lack of technical knowledge in those whom they meet, if only they converse well upon the subjects uppermost. Forget yourself, and remember only the company, and you may know that you have behaved well, -Long prayers, like long sermons, long speechcs, and long calls, furnish their own antidote.— The wants of the human race can be summed up n a paragraph of twenty lines, and when they are stretched over a quire of paper they include a vast amount of selfishness and sin. We have heard prayers consuming forty minutes of time in delivery, and blessings at table covering ton minutes. We have heard prayers full of vain' repetitions, and unnecessary landations of the Al mighty Father, and deployed the fashion; and we have heard Dr. Sunderland pray for three minutes, and felt the influence of thunder, lightning, hail and rain the while. But putting the long and the short, the laudatory and the rigid, the tender and the terrible together, not one and not all of them can compare, in simpl in pathos, in vigor and directness, with that brief Satin Gilt, for Kitchens, Parlors, Halls, Dining-invocation known throughout Christendom, and Rooms, Bed-Rooms, at prices 20 per cent. dower. 1.
