The history of the Republican Party, Mr. Chairman, is indeed a proud record. Inheriting a bankrupt treasury, a heavily encumbered and gigantic national debt, from the traitorous Administration which preceded their advent to power in 1861, the Republicans heroically and successfully grappled with and conquered all these obstacles to the life and progress of the nation.

This calculation stated, in these general terms, is far more striking and suggestive than any come to examine details. The Army, for instance, cost during the war, under the Democratic Administration, by the official statement of the Treasury Department, which I hold in my hand, the large aggregate of $6,307,275,000 million dollars, or of some terms that we are paying less than one hundred and seven millions for. And in this calculation I have nothing about the increased military and naval forces of the present day, which adds immensely to the account in favor of present economy.

The House being in Committee of the Whole on the Deficiency appropriation bill, Mr. Blaine said: I have entered upon a new fiscal year, and the last appropriation bill to provide for its expenditures has been reported and is now before the House. I have had the honor to fit one for a brief survey of our financial situation and for a pertinent answer to the many misrepresentations so audaciously made in regard to government expenditures. A very laborious attempt has been made throughout the country by certain parties and particularly in the latter part of the year, to represent the expenditures of this Congress as on a scale of heedless and reckless extravagance. I propose to show that such is not the case, and that, on the contrary, the expenditures are made with far more regard to economy than distinguished the last Democratic Administration.

It is important at the onset, to a clear understanding and clear comparison of Government expenditures at the present time and the period immediately preceding the war, to distinguish the expenditures of the present Administration from those of the last Administration. The question is one of figures and not of argument, and hence I proceed at once to the figures.

The comparison is regarded to naval expenditures at the present time and the final pacification of the Southern States, our Army will at once be reduced and the expenditures of the present Administration will be no longer to be felt as a burden to the taxpayer.

Executive, legislative, and judicial, embracing all Department salaries and expenses, $17,480,000. For the Army, $3,081,013.10. For the Navy, $1,000,000.00. For the Diplomatic and Consular and Diplomatic Service, $1,206,434.00. Post Office Department, $3,000,000.00. Indian Affairs, $2,000,000.00. Rivers and Harbors, $3,700,000.00. Collecting the revenue, $9,000,000.00. With the various Departments, $2,000,000.00. Miscellaneous expenses of all kinds, $1,000,000.00. Buildings, $1,000,000.00. Expenses of reconstruction, $1,000,000.00. Closing up Freedmen's Bureau, $1,000,000.00. Deficiencies of various kinds in the different Appropriations, $2,500,000.00. Making a total of $185,818,447.10.

I differ in some items from the recent statement of the honorable Chairman of Ways and Means, which is $187,000,000. I include in the expenses of this year a deficiency of thirteen million dollars which amount was appropriated and spent last year, and has no proper connection whatever with the expenditures of the current fiscal year. It also includes, incorrectly, I think, some twenty-four million appropriations overlapping from the year which has closed to the present year, which are not to be included in the account of this year, but which are to be included in the account of the year to which they belong.

Consider further, Mr. Chairman, that while the Republican party has been providing the means for these expenditures, they have been at the same time reducing the national debt, and we have reduced the public debt between two and three hundred million dollars, and at each session of Congress, while the Democratic party has been going on, we have taken off millions upon millions of taxation from the property of the country. At the first session of the Federal Government, the first that convened after the close of the war, taxes were removed that had the preceding year yielded a revenue of sixty million dollars, and the second session of the same Congress forty-one millions more of taxes were promptly repealed. The Fortieth Congress has not been behind the Thirtieth in this respect, for we have readily repealed taxes that last year gave us a revenue of ninety millions, and to day the taxes of the Federal Government are so wisely adjusted, and selected from such few sources that no man feels them burdensome, oppressive, or exorbitant. Demagogues may roll up their sleeves and put their shoulders to the wheel and compel them to do the taxes levied by the Federal Government are not an oppression to the individual, and not a hindrance to the development of the industrial resources of the land.

AGOOD STORY OF SIR MATTHEW HALE. A gentleman of considerable estate, residing in the West of England, had two sons. The oldest being of a rambling disposition, went abroad. His father, who was a man of a very high opinion of his will, and seized upon the estate. He gave out that his brother was dead, and he could bring no evidence to the contrary. The younger son, who was a man of a very high opinion of his will, and seized upon the estate. He gave out that his brother was dead, and he could bring no evidence to the contrary. The younger son, who was a man of a very high opinion of his will, and seized upon the estate. He gave out that his brother was dead, and he could bring no evidence to the contrary.

COMMON SCHOOLS. Extracts from the Annual Report of the Superintendent of Toga Co. Mr. Editor:—Will you permit me for a few weeks to occupy a brief space in your columns, as the servant of the School Directors, the schools, and hence, of all the people of this County, in laying before the public the Annual Report of general interest. From the Annual Report just forwarded to the Sup't. Hon. J. F. Wickliffe, there are some things which I think it would be well to have left to find their way to the people through the published Annual Report of the State Sup't. only a few lines of the School Directors will probably ever see them.
