WHEN THE GRASS SHALL COVER ME.

When the grass shall cover me,
Head to foot where I am lying;
When not any wind that blows,
Summer blooms or winter snows,
Shall awake me to your sighing;
Close above me as you pass,
You will say: "How kind she was,"
You will say: "How true she was,"
When the grass grows over me.

When the grass shall cover me,
Holden close to earth's warm bosom;
While I laugh, or weep, or sing,
Nevermore for anything;
You will find in blade and blossom,
Sweet small voices, odorous,
Tender pleaders in my cause,
That shall speak me as I was—
When the grass grows over me.

When the grass shall cover me!
Ah, beloved, in my sorrow,
Very patient, can I wait—
Knowing that, or soon or late,
There will dawn a clearer morrow;
When your heart will moan: "Alas
Now I know how true she was;
Now I know how dear she was"—
When the grass grows over me!

AURELIA'S UNFORTUNATE YOUNG MAN.

The facts in the following case come to me by letter from a young lady who lives in the beautiful city of San Jose: she is perfectly unknown to me, and simply signs herself "Aurelia Maria," which may possibly be a fictitious name. But no matter, the poor girl is almost heart-broken by the misfortunes she has undergone, and so confused by the conflicting counsels of misguided friends and insidious enemies, that she does not know what course to pursue in order to extricate herself from the web of difficulties in which she is almost hopelessly involved. In this dilemma she turns to me for help, and supplicates for my guidance and instruction with a moving eloquence that would touch the heart of a statue. Hear her sad story:

She says that when she was 16 years old she met and loved, with all the devotion of a passionate nature, a young man from New Jersey, named William son Breckinridge Caruthers, who was only 6 years her senior. They were engaged, with the free consent of their friends and relatives, and for a time it seemed as if their career was destined to be characterized by an immunity from sorrow beyond the usual humanity. But at last the tide of fortune turned; young Caruthers became infected with smallpox of the most virulent type, and when he recovered from his illness, his face was pitted like a waffle mould, and his comeliness gone forever. Aurelia thought to break off the engagement at first, but pity for her unfortunate lover caused her to postpone the marriage day for a season, and give him another trial.

The very day before the wedding was to have taken place, Breckinridge while absorbed in watching the flight of a balloon, walked into a well and fractured one of his legs, and it had to be taken off above the knee. Again Aurelia was moved to break the engagement, but again love triumphed, and she set the day forward and gave him another chance to reform.

And again misfortune overtook the unhappy youth. He lost one arm by the premature discharge of a Fourth-of-July cannon, and within three months got the other pulled out by a carding machine. Aurelia's heart was pain fully crushed by these latter calamities. She could not but be deeply grieved to see her lover passing from her by piecemeal, feeling, as she did, that he could not last forever under a disastrous process of reduction, yet knowing of no way to stop its dreadful career, and in her despair she almost regretted, like drakers who hold on and lose, that she had not taken him at first, before he had suffered such an agonizing depreciation. Still, her brave heart rose her up, and she resolved to bear with her friend's unnatural disposition yet a little longer.

As the wedding day approached, and again disappointment overshadowed it; Caruthers fell ill with the erysipelas, and lost the use of one of his eyes entirely. The friends and relatives of the bride, considering that she had already put up with more than could reasonably be expected of her, now came forward and insisted that the match should be broken up; but after wavering awhile, Aurelia, with that noble and generous spirit which did her credit, said she had reflected calmly on the matter, and could not discover that Breckenridge was to blame.

So she extended the time once more, and he broke his other leg.

It was a sad day for the poor girl, when she saw the surgeons reverently bearing away the sack, whose uses she had learned by previous experience, and her heart told her the bitter truth that some more of her lover had gone. She felt that the field of her affections was growing more and more circumscribed every day, but once more she drowned down her relatives and renewed her betrothal.

Shortly before the time set for the nuptials another disaster occurred.—There was but one man scalped by the Owen River Indians last year. That man was Williamson Breckinridge Caruthers, of New Jersey. He was hurrying home with happiness in his heart, when he lost his hair forever, and in that hour of bitterness, he almost cursed the mistaken mercy that had spared his head.

At last Aurelia is in serious perplexity as to what she ought to do. She still loves her Breckinridge, she writes, with true womanly feeling—she still loves what is left of him—but her parents are bitterly opposed to the match, because he has no property, and is disabled from working, and she has not sufficient means to support both comfortably. "Now, what shall she do?" she asks with painful and anxious solicitude.

It is a delicate question; it is one which involves the life-long happiness of a woman, and that of nearly two-thirds of a man, and I feel that it would be assuming too great a responsibility to do more than make a mere suggestion in the case. How would it do to build to him? If Aurelia can afford the expense, let her furnish her mutilated lover with wooden arms and wooden legs, and a glass eye and a wig, and give him another show; give him ninety days without grace, and if he does not break his neck in the meantime, marry him and take the chances. It does not seem that there is much risk, any way, Aurelia, because if he sticks to his propensity for damaging himself every time he sees a good opportunity, his next experiment is bound to finish him, and then you are all right, you know, married or single.

If married, the wooden legs and such other valuables as he may possess, revert to the widow, and you see you sustain no actual loss, save the cherished fragment of a noble but most unfortunate husband, who honestly strove to do right, but whose extraordinary instincts were against him. Try it, Maria! I have thought the matter over carefully and well, and it is the only chance I see for you. It would have been a happy conceit on the part of Caruthers if he had started with his neck and broken that first; but since he has seen fit to choose a different policy and strings himself out as long as possible, I do not think we ought to upbraid him for it, if he enjoyed it. We must do the best we can under the circumstances, and try not to feel exasperated at him.

"Ma," said an intelligent, thoughtful boy, "I don't think Solomon was so rich as they say he was."

"Why my dear, what could have put that into your head?"

"Why the bible says he slept with his fathers; and I think, if he had been so very rich, he would have had a bed of his own."

Keep in the line of duty.

To Owners of Horses and Cattle.

TOBIAS' DERBY CONDITION POWDERS ARE warranted superior to any others, or no pay, for the cure of Distemper, Worms, Bots, Coughs, Hidebound, Colds, &c., in Horses; and Colds, Coughs, Loss of Milk, Black Tongue, Horn Distemper, &c., in Cattle. They are perfectly safe and innocent; no need of stopping the working of your animals. They increase the appetite, give a fine coat, cleanse the stomach and urinary organs; also increase the milk of cows. Try them, and you will never be without them. Hiram Woodruff, the celebrated trainer of trotting horses, has used them for years, and recommends them to his friends. Col. Philo. F. Bush, of the Jerome Race Course, Fordham, N. Y., would not see them until he was told of what they are composed, since which he is never without them. He has over twenty running horses in his charge, and for the last three years has used no other medicine for them. He has kindly permitted me to refer any one to him. Over 1,000 other references can be seen at the depot. Sold by Druggists and Saddlers. Price 25 cents per box. Depot, 56 Cortlandt Street, New York. [Feb. 19]

To the Farmers of Tioga County.

I AM now building at my manufactory, in Lawrenceville, a superior

FANNING MILL,

which possesses the following advantages over all other mills:

1. It separates oats, rat litter, and foul seeds, and chess and cockle, from wheat.
2. It cleans flax seed, takes out yellow seed, and all other seeds, perfectly.
3. It cleans timothy seed.
4. It does all other separating required of a mill.

This mill is built of the best and most durable timber, in good style, and is sold cheap for cash, or produce.

I will fit a patent sieve, for separating oats from wheat, to other mills, on reasonable terms.
