It is not always that we can agree with the writer, Mr. seecher, which affords another proof of the fact that God's works are not fashioned in accordance with the law of monotony, but rather in accord with the higher law of "unity in diversity." Some weeks ago we found one of Mr. Beecher's faults interfering with what is to us the line of duty, and tapped it gently, hoping to break, and renove it in detail. The fault we attacked was the use of wine for sacramental purposes. The ground of objection was stated to be the danger of its use to the reformed drunkard. At the same time we wrote that it did not do credit to Mr. Beecher to put wine above water for such purposes. In remarking upon our criticism, among other things, Mr. Beecher says: "We certainly do put wine above water for sacramental uses. But if thus using the wine causes a reformed drunkard to backslide, we would use no more wine while the world standeth. Our rule would be to use the "clementa" which Jesus used. Our exception would be abstinence for a

The examination was conducted on the system of topics, and the exhaustive manner in which the pupils treated of the subjects allotted to them indicates thorough training. Geometry, Moral Philosophy and Rhetoric were disposed of in a masterly manner. The members of the class generally recited in a clear distinct tone, and expressed their ideas in very good language. But it was in the evening of Friday that the Mr. Lafayette Gray, of Sullivan, under date of March Swrites us as follows:

The delivery of all was excellent, every speaker, I think, speaking sufficiently distinct to be plainly heard in all parts of the room. Miss Kate Reynolds of Blossburg, by her effective rendering of "Small Robes of White" is deserving of special mention.

The Musical part of the programmo was an important feature in the success of the exercise and added much to the pleasure of the occasion. BEE-HIVE EXCHANGE!"

I sing, I sing of a curiousthing, Almost as strange as Boggs upon Tyng;
I've swung 'round a circle as round as a ring,
And while on the down east part of my swing,
I stopped at the city and took on the Spring
