ROMANTIC-IF TRUE.-The following story, as was told to us, happened near Lake City, Ind., where there lived, at the breaking out of the war, a wealthy farmer whom we will call Blank. This man kept a number of servants; among them was a good and religious young girl, possessing usual personal attractions. She was courted by an officer, of some rank in the federal army, while of some rank in the leders at my, withe at home, recruiting for his regiment. When the day of his departure came he made known to the servant girl how deeply shee had interested. This, and begged to know if there was any hope. She confessed that his attachment was reciprocated, and they were at once afflanced.

'Should Mr. Blank,' said Jennie, 'come to know of this I shall at once be discharged. He believes it was his daughter for whom your visit were in-Should this be so, returned the fond lover, 'only write and let me know, and you shall not suffer.'

With an affectionate kiss, and a promise that both would be punctual in their letter-writing, they separated; he to join his regiment among the boys of the Potomiad.

He waited long and anxiously for tidings of his loved one, but not one word was received to ease, his troubled mind. Finally his own letters were returned. What could it all mean? Was Jennie false? He could not believe it. After the soldier's departure, Mr. Blank took Jennie in a room, fastened the door, and, with a rawhide in his hand, commanded her to tell him if she was betrothed to Col.—. When she told him all, he had her blindfolded, taken to the great city of Chicago, and there left without friends or money.'
He reported that she had died of cholera, and, to make the deception complete, built a false grave. When the war was over, and Col.returned home, he made his way at once to the old graveyard, and sought out that of his lost Jennie. After bath-ing the little mound with his tears, he made his way to the house of Mr. Blank to learn the particulars. While he was there the guilty man ordered the tombstones for the false grave. In due time they were placed at the supposed grave, with some evergreens and flowers. Col.-had been a mourner years after the war closed, until December, 1868, when business called him to There, in a street car, with a andle of soiled clothes which she was thing home to be washed, he found his buried Jennie. He flew across the car, taking her in his arms, and almost screaming with joy. He had found her at last.—Kunsas City Journal.

POLITENESS.—In case of what old-fashioned "schoolma'ams" called "manners," let number one be the only object of your care, as far as the performance of duty goes. If others choose to negicet theirs, it should make no difference, whatever, to you. Be polite to the rulest poor in Christendom, because you owe it to yourself to remember that if he is no gentleman, you are a well-bred person. Your politeness will often be met with slights or rude ness. That need not trouble you. If you are guilty impertinence, and redeive tit for tat, then, indeed you may wince, not otherwise. The feeling often seems to be—

"Such an one has been insolent to me; I will show him that I will not sub mit to such treatment-that I can be as This is very foolish. You only lower yourself, and, very likely produce no check upon him; because ill-bred' peo-pic are generally endowed with feel-ings about as delicate, and, sensitive as the hide of an elderly, rhinoceros. Besides, if his insolence is malice prepense, and he wants to sting you, how much better could you baffle him than by showing your usual suavity and polite consideration of him, thus proving yourself hinwounded? Then, too, if mere carelessness is the cause of rudeness, and no ill-feeling is at the bottom, why copy awkward mauners, and cast off your own polish! As well adopt the "don't-know-no-things" and "taint-no-matters," of your ungrammatical associates to reprove not understand your motive any more

The best rule is to be polite to every one, and, unless rudeness amounts to positive and intentional insult; to take happy in a world where every second man is too obtuse, and every third one too ill-tempered, to be pleasantly and frankly courteous.

A horse that is in the harness every day needs an abundance of food and the right kind. Oats makes more muscle than corn, and should always form a part of the food of a hard-working horse. Corn gives plumpness and imparts warmth. The colder the weather

An Irish dragoon, on hearing that his widowed mother had married since he quitted Ireland, exclaimed, "I hope she won't have a son older thin me, for if she does, I shall lose the estate."

HARPER'S NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE Critical Notices of the Press. This most popular Monthly in the world .- N. Observer. We must refer in terms of eulogy to the high tone and varied excellences of Harper's Magazine

a journal with; a monthly circulation of about

170,000 copies—in whose pages are to be found some of the choicest light and general reading of the day. We speak of this work as an evidence of the culture of the American People; and the of the culture of the American People; and the popularity it has acquired is merited. Each Number contains fully 144 pages of readingmatter, appropriately illustrated with good wood cuts; and it combines in itself, the racy monthly and the more philosophical quarterly, blended with the best features of the daily journal. It has great power in the dissimination of a love of pure literature.—Trubner's Guide to American Literature, London.

We can account for its success only by the simple fact that it meets precisely the popular taste, furnishing a variety of pleasing and instructive reading for all.—Zion's Herald, Boston.

Harper's Bazar contains, besides pictures, patterns, etc., a variety of matter of especial use and interest to the family; articles on health, dress, and housekeeping in all its branches; its editorial matter is specially adapted to the circle it is intended to interest and instruct; and it has esides, good stories and literary matter of merit. It is not surprising that the journal, with such success; for something of its kind was desired in thousands of families, and its publishers have filled the demand.—N. F. Epening Post. Whether we consider its claims as based upon the elegance and superiority of the paper, its typographical appearance, the taste and judgment displayed in the engravings, or the literary aentributions contained in its pages, we unhesitatingly pronounce it to be superior in each and every particular to any other similar publication here or abroad.—Phil'q Legal Intelligencer. The best of its ciass in America. - Boston Tra Harper's Weekly may be unreservedly declared the bast newspaper in America.—The Independent, N. Y.

The articles upon public questions which appear in Harper's Weekly from week to week form a remarkable series of brief political essays.—
They are distinguished by clear and pointed statement, by good common sense, by independence and breadth of view. They are the expression of mature conviction, high principle, and strong feeling, add take their place among the best newspaper writing of the time.—North American Review, Boston:
