That he was king of the Northland,
Euroute for the ice-bound shore;
And I heard the streamlets murmur, As swiftly he sped past:
"Farewell for a season loy King,
Spring days have come at last."

The robins sang in the maple,
The violets tender and true,
Laughingly peeped from their lonely beds,
Gonly the south winds blow, While the sun looked down in splender. From skies of azure hue.

And I heard the voice of nature Call out as the Knight sped past, "Farewell for a season, toy king, Spring days have come at last."

East Springfield, N. Y. H. E. VAN H.

Causes Influencing the Yield of Mills At a recent meeting of the Connecti cut Board of Agriculture, when the subject of neat cattle was under discussion ion, one farmer, a Mr. Weller, made some very pertinent remarks in regard to the care and management, of milch cows. He had a dairy of nineteen cows and he finds that it is important to keep his stock where they will not be dis-turbed or excited. He gives an instance of the effect of any unusual noise in lessening the quantity of milk, since it was found that the noise from a thresh. ing machine made them fall off twenty quarts per day. We have no doubt as to the truth of this statement, since we have repeatedly observed similar results, in the yield of milk from cow disturbed by any unusual noise.

Many farmers do not seem to under stand the fact that fear, or any undue nervous excitement, of the cow, had a powerful influence in lessening the quantity of her milk, when the most common observation should teach that it is so. We have seen men used to stock all their lives, who understand and practice milking every day, who will not believe in any such inituence at least if their management of stock be taken as an index. We have ofter wondered why men who are of a nat-urally saving disposition, and would be shocked to see a pint of milk spilled in the milk house, should allow quarts and gallons to be lost in their management of the herd in the stable, kicking cows with heavy boots, striking with stools and keeping the animals in a constant strain of nervous excitement and fear. We have no doubt that the quantity as well as the quantity of milk is influenced by under excitement and nervous agitation. Indeed, in more than one instance have we found milk badly injured on account of the animal being put in a fright, and we do not see why any extreme agitation of the cow should not at all times have more influence on the character of milk which she gives, especially if it be drawn during or immediately after such nervous excite-

Whatever views may be taken upon this question, it must be observed that e persons who are so careful of their milk stock, keeping the animals quiet, and having them familiar so as to be easily handled, always succeed best in obtaining extra quantities of dairy products. We have been about a good deal among dairymen and farmers, and we have yet to learn of any herd producing an extraordinary quantity of milk when the animals were harshly treated or kept in fear during the milking, no matter what the breed of cows or their extra feed. We have uniformly found the best results where the animals were treated tenderly and no talking or noise allowed in milking. We hear much complaint of late years of poor milch stock, bad luck with herds and low yields of milk, and we are sometimes inclined to believe the fault is not so much in the four legged beasts, for it has come to be quite rare that "help" can be employed that will treat stock kindly unless constantly under the master's eye. We have a State law making it an offence to be caught adulterating milk carried to the metories. We need another law making it a penal offence to be caught abusing milch stock; for if it be true that diseased or bad milk comes from such abuse, then the person offending is in every way as guilty of a crime as he who simply puts water in his milk.—Utica Heratd.

Evening Post.

Our future historians will enrich themselves out of Harpers's Weekly long after writers, and printers, and publishers are turned to dust.—N.

The best of its class in America.—Boston Tra Harpor's Weekly may be unreservedly declar-d the bast newspaper in America.—The Inde-Indent, N. Y. The articles upon public questions which appear in Harper's Weekly from week to week form a remarkable series of brief political essays.— They are distinguished by clear and pointed statement, by good common sense, by independence and breadth of view. They are the expression of mature conviction, high principle, and strong feeling, add take their place among the best newspaper writing of the time.—North American Review, Boston.
