State Normal School.

ADDRESS OF PROF. ALLEN We present to you to-day the harvest of another year. The ripened sheaves we bring are the perfected fruits of our The three years course of study set apart by the laws of the State, is to-day completed. Faithfully and nobly have this little band struggled to reach this goal. This is the fourth class of graduates presented by this institution. The whole number graduated is eighty-four, making an 'average of twenty-one for each year. From those who have graduated here, there come back to us tidings of good deeds and substantial evidences of successful labors. Not one, so far as we enjoyed while here. They stand out npon the world's stage of active life, living, walking ornaments of this in-

To you, whose schoolday scenes close with these exercises, let me address a few words. This commencement day to you is the commencement of a new life. The future is most wisely hidden from you. 'Tis well that it is so. Few would have the heart to launch his boat upon the trackless ocean, did he know the dangers and toils he must encounter. You go forth to-day under sealed orders on the vast ocean of life. What fearful destinies await you. How many seals to be broken—how many changes in your course will be made as seal after seal is broken. And alas! your destiny is unknown until the last seal is broken. And is it so, that man is constantly voyaging, not knowing his destined end or way? Most truly it is so. Think you that Washington, when he was making his journey, thro' the wilderness of this State to the French outposts, or LINCOLN, when guiding a flatboat down the Mississippi, or Andrew Johnson, when sitting cross-legged upon his tailor's table, or GRANT, while grinding bark in the tannery, for one single moment gave place to the thought of ever being President of these United States." Of course they did not. No one knows, nor need we care, what is before "Sufficient unto the day," is the

Do not fear to grapple with the world and its issues as they meet you. Accept and do with cheerfulness that which you cannot change. sistance at best. I pray you beware of office and office-seekers. If you are fitted for the place and are honest, the office will seek you. So spend no sleepless nights in planning or days of toil in presenting your claims. Suppose others do, by their persistent dragooning obtain the post, verily they have their reward. When I see a man in the prime of life, spending his days in a seven by nine grocery with a few hundred dollars capital invested in a dry good store, adding nothing to his stock, and increasing his business, I feel to pity him. I want to say to him, you have mistaken your calling. When I see men in their various professions of life, living from year to year without growth, or increase of power as well as increase in business. I feel like saying to them, "my dear sirs, in the making you what you are, materials for first-class blacksmiths, carpenters, shoemakers or farmers were spoiled."

There is a fitting place for each and all. If we only learn to labor and to wait, we shall find our places. The not for position, nor grieve that you are not appreciated. This is not so ungrateful a world as some would make it. I before. am inclined to the opinion that the masses of people are prized and appre-ciated at their full value. Here is something for the lawyers: A negro boy in the employ of David Carskaddon, of Lock Haven was recently shot by Mr. C. A young girl, also an employee in the house, aroused the family one morning at 52 o'clock, saying that the negro boy had entered her room and attempted to take liberties with her. Mr. Carskaddon took a pistol and hunted up the boy, who was found in the kitchen kindling the fire, and at once, with a valor almost equal to that of Dr. Lichtenthaler's (who recently killed a lady on Main-st., of that quiet village), shot the boy several times. The question now seems to be whether the valorous Carskaddon was guilty of crime in shooting the boy. We confess that we don't know! If Carskaddon knew of the guilt of the boy he had great provocation. But there appears to be a question about the of this fact guilt of the boy, and the lawyers must but their heads together and settle it.

The large hearted proprietor, or his urbane good natured clerk will conduct you, as it were through a GARDEN filled with ravishing delights. 1st. A GARDEN OF SPICES, in which every thing Spicy, from a nutmeg to cayenne pep-per may be seen and procured. 2d, A GARDEN OF SWEETS, in which every variety of Saceharine delights, both solid and liquid may be had by the stick, pound or gallon, duct you into a GARDEN OF FRUITS, in which almost ev ery variety of luscious things to be found gathered from the four quarters of the globe, will be shown to satisfy your largest longings. Oranges from Cuba, Lemons from Florida, Prunes from Turkey, Raisins from Malaga, Currants from the Grecian Archipelago; Peaches dried and canned along with a great variety of Canned Fruits from the Jarseys; Dates from Syria, and Figs from Asia Minor. No end to the supply of every species of NUTS from 3 Continents.

THE TEA GARDEN will next command your attention; the warm decoction of the China versal beverages, and if not swallowed too het or to strong, the mild stimulants are esteemed as eminently promotive of comfort and sociality.— What company of elderly ladies could ever part in peace without them? Now your friend the GARDNER, will be most happy to show you all this. He will ask you politely to look at his Tea. You are welcome to try every chest and see if GUN POWDER, Souchong GREEN, HYSON, &c., which flavor you like, but of all the other styles whose inwertacking names would
