Gov. Geary being waited upon and informed of his nomination acknowledged the honor in the following handsome address :

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: Your committee has informed me that you have nominated me as a candidate for Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and conferred upon me the distinguished honor of being the standard-bearer of the Republican party for the approach-ing political contest. [Cheers.] For this manifestation of continued confidence and appreciation I feel that any language I am competent to command is entirely too poor to express in appropriate terms the emotions of my heart, and no other resource is left me than frankly to return to you, and thro' you to my fellow-citizens whom you represent, my sincere thanks and grat-

The nomination of Hon. Henry W. Williams for Judge of the Supreme Court is exceedingly gratifying to me. His pure and unsullied character as a man, connected with a high order of talent, cultivated intellect, eminent le and attainments, and energetic industry, proclaim him the right man for that position, and induced me to place him where he now is. [Applause.] The remarkable unanimity that has characterized your action in reference to Judge Williams and myself inspires me with high hopes and brilliant anticipations. It argues with certainty a l by the people, and gives "goodly promise of a glorious day in action." - When I contemplate the labor, anxiety of mind, and responsibility that must nocessarily be devoted upon me during the canvass for an election of such magnitude, a consciousness of the diffi-cuities surrounding the task causes me almost instinctively to shrink from the undertaking. But I confidently look to a higher Power, and to my fellow-eltizona, for that aid, support, and encouragement which may enable me to the the Power land with a fet to the prophlican the power of the prophlican teer the Republican ship with safety through the breakers of the coming con-Satisfied that my trust is not misplaced, I unhesitatingly accept the distinguished honor that has been conferred upon me by this honorable convention. [Cheers.]

Three years ago a similar honor was conferred upon me at a period when our nation was just emerging from a most terrible war; and with the dust of battle scarcely brushed from my own garments, and politically inexperienced as I was, I ardently entered upon the contest which resulted so gloriously for the Republican cause in 1866. I did not accept the nomination then in the be-lief that in my own person I possessed any instrinsic merit, or had rendered any services to my country which entitled me individually to receive it; but I accept it as a compliment to my com-rades in arms, and as a matter due to the three hundred and sixty-three thousand soldiers of Pennsylvania who had rendered noble services in the field the aggregate value of which can never be estimated, and to whom we are indebted for a home and a country. On their behalf I then warmly thanked the convention, and I here desire to reiterate those thanks again to you. And now, after having served the greater portion of the term for which I was elected, and after every official act of mine has been fully criticised and discussed by the people and the press; when you, the chosen representatives of the people from every part of the Commonwealth, appear at the bar of public opinion and testify in my behalf, and confer upon me the plaudit, "Well done, good and faithful servant," I certainly need no better, no higher no stronger verdict. [Applause.]

In bearing the banner you have this day confided to me, I pledge you that it shall be carried at the head of the Republican column, its movements shall always be directed to the sound of the heaviest firing; and when the con-flict is over, I confidently predict the banner will be placed, as it was in '66, in triumph upon the dome of the Capitol, without spot or blemish on its stripes, and each and every star as bright as when its first effulgence beamed on the country, and Pennsylvania will still be as true as when she signed "the sacred covenant that binds the States together in the bonds of an everlasting union." [Cheers.]

Should the people again place me in use my best exertions to promote everywhere the peace, honor, and welfare of my native State, and to secure all the blessing that a good government can hestow upon a free people. And it shall be my pleasure to aid the Chief Magisirate of the nation in his laudable efforts to "let us have peace," and if necessity should require it I will aid him to preserve our national rights and national honor at all hazards and every sacrifice. It shall be my special duty to extend all the influence I may possess to aid in procuring adequate protection for every branch of our domestic industry and productions, and to ble, to make them feel that their true interests are one and inseparable. John Chinaman, with yellow skin, almond eyes, wide trowsers, and inevitable pigtail.

What shall we do with him? Let him alone. He wants to workan uncommon want. Let him work. The country needs more workingmen. It makes not much difference what language they speak, what hue they sport, or what idols they worship. If

The Caucasian has come to value the color of his skin higher than the grade of his character. There's idolatry for you!

What shall we do with John Chinaman? Let him alone, we repeat. When Britons and Americans went to China to make money, the Serene Emperor of the Flowery Kingdom at once called his princes together and asked—"What shall we do with the outside barbarians?" How indignant the great British, and the "greater" American people, were at such treatment! Why, weren't we Christian white men? and were we to stand any such "demnition nonsense " from a yellow-faced, pigtailed runt of a heathen ruler? Yes; and by no no means. "Buy our opium, eat it, and become Christian brutes!" said Britain. "Buy our notions and nonsense, and thank God for the universal Yankee nation!" said America. I'll never consent to derive a revenue from the vices and misfortunes of my people!" replied the Emperor of China. Well. What a pity such an answer could not have proceeded from the lips The July Treasury statement shows a of a Christian ruler.
