

BEAUTY. Beautiful faces they that wear the light of a woman's smile, there, it matters little if dark or fair.

Beautiful hands are they that do the work of the needle, and are busy for them the long day through.

Beautiful feet they that go swiftly, to lighten another's woe, through summer's heat or winter's snow.

Beautiful children, it rich or poor, who walk the pathway, sweet and pure, that leads to the mansion strong and sure.

How a Boy Bought a Farm.

Several years ago, a youth of sixteen years, of good sense, and a fair English education, not having profitable employment at his father's home in Kentucky, sought for employment among his neighboring neighbors a few miles distant; and although wages were low in those days of gold and silver currency, he saved from his father's wages $70. He was then seventeen years old, healthy, lively-looking, aspiring, and ambitious to become a noble, and perhaps great, man. He had already made money loaned at high rates of interest was oppressive to the borrower, and reacted on the lender, and in the falling of prices of nearly all articles in the commercial world; that men sought justification for their bankruptcy and delinquency in the fact that they had paid large rates of interest. Feeling, therefore, that a liberality, as well as justice, was necessary, he loaned his $70 to an exemplary, enterprising and prosperous trading man in his neighborhood, at the lowest rate of interest known in business in that State, viz., six per cent. per annum. He worked another year, clothed himself in neat Kentucky, and other articles, but next articles of apparel, and went to a country school three months in the winter of that year, learned the rudiments of Latin and French, and other sciences, and returned in the spring, and next morning at eight of the second year, or when he was eighteen years of age, he had saved $200 more. His character for integrity and industry was well known in the neighborhood and his services were sought for.

He worked on a farm and rode as a collier for three years, and at the end of his nineteenth year had saved $110 more. With the interest accumulated on his father's two years' wages, he had now $300; was comfortably clothed, and had a good business education, which he improved from one year to another, till he became a scholar both literally and scientifically. His influence and usefulness increasing, he had, at the age twenty, $450. At the age twenty-five he had $550, and was well known for his intelligence, virtue and usefulness, as well as a young man of very attractive manners and ways.

He moved to a Western State, where land was cheap, and he bought a hundred and sixty acres by a land warrant, which he purchased with $150 of his money. He made a good selection of land, in a good region of the country, and used a portion of the balance of his money in improving his land, buying a little stock, and in other improvements. He had a good farm, and he raised a small crop. Having gone to his new neighborhood with some $250 in money, he had a good farm, and he raised a small crop. Having gone to his new neighborhood with some $250 in money, he had a good farm, and he raised a small crop.

We assured our noble friend he was all right for Cincinnati, when he broke loose as follows:

"Look a heap, boss, I don't know nothing when I saw you from down here, but when I started from Washington City I had a powerful long string of these here," exhibiting that portion of his rough ticket, "and I had not been taken up. 'Ebery now and then a gentleman comes 'round and tars off a little piece. 'Till you sah, it's gettin' mighty slow, but I'll stick to my gunwale to hold out. I gets you sah, 'till this last remark created quite a laughter, in which the jolster joined heartily.—Cincinnati Times.

A STRAY ANOEL.—Rather practical people those who manage the little details connected with public worship at New Haven, Conn. They have a fine choir. Up to the full time the seats of the pew holders are reserved without question. After that strangers are treated with all the courtesy that time and occasion will permit. Now and then a presumption shows as appears and attempts to travel on his dignity; as was the case not long since, when a certain young gentleman, white cravat, presented himself and proceeded to march into the house.

"You can't go in there," said Mr. Palmer, the veteran usher.

"But I am a clergyman."

"We have no particular need of your services to-day, sir."

"Be not forgetful to entertain strangers," said the minister; "you may entertain angels unawares."

"Very true," said Mr. Palmer. "I have seated persons in this house for twelve years. I have seen all sorts of people. I am very certain if I should see an angel I would know him. You must bid your time and take your chance, sir."

Potato bugs are so troubling Wisconsin farmers; that a sermon on the viciousness and worthlessness of insects in one of the papers of the State. The writer censures Noah for having preserved a pair of potato bugs, and a pair of fleas in the ark, and thinks it a "mighty small piece of business."

It thus relates the result of an effort to utilize these insects: A year or two since, an English manufacturer of liquor tried crushed potato bugs to color wine. He gave them a fair trial, but at the end of six months found that they did not color the wine a particle better than the juice of bed bugs does, and that the liquor given to the bed bugs, but could not find months of the year. He is eight months cured upon potato bugs, and declares them good for nothing.

It is whispered that the Princess Metternich has three hundred and sixty-five pairs of stockings.
