Says Gossip Four to Gossip Five, Who blazed it round the town, "I've heard to-day such shocking news— Emith stole his goods from Brown."

A TRAVELER'S STORY. - Between Caleba Swamp and Line Creek, in the "Nation" (Georgia,) we saw a considerable crowd gathered near a drinking-house, most of them seated and smoking. We stopped to see what was the matter. It was Sunday, and there had been a quarfar race for a gallen of had been a quarter race for a gallon of whisky. The first thing I noticed on alighting was the singular position of one of the horses of the party. He was kneeling down and standing on his hinder feet, his head wedged in between the ends of two logs of the grocery, and he was stone 'dead, having evidently run directly against the building at full speed, causing the house to partially fall. About five paces from the horse lay the rider, quite senseless, with a gash in his throat which might have let out a thousand lives. As I said, most of the crowd were seated and smoking.

'What is all this?' I inquired, 'What is the matter here?' 'Matter!' after a while answered one in a drawling voice, giving a good spit, and re-filling his mouth, with a new cud. / Matter enough; there's been s quarter race.' But how came this man and horse killed?' I asked.

'Well,' answered the chewing and spitting gentleman, 'the man was considerable in liquor, I reckon, and he ran his horse chuck against the house and that's the whole on it.' 'Has the doctor been sent for?' inquired one of our party.

'I reckon there ain't much use o doctors here,' replied another of the crowd. 'Burnt brandy would not save either of 'em, man or hoss.' 'Has this man a wife or children?'

inquired I. 'No children that I knows on,' answered a female who was sitting on the ground a short distance from the dead "He has a wife, then?" I remarked.
"What will be her feelings when she learns the fatal termination of this most unfortunate race?' Yes, sighed the female, 'it was an unfortunate race. Poor man! he lost the whisky.'

'Do you happen to know his wife? Has she been informed of the untimely death of her husband? were my next

'Do I know her?' Has she been in formed of his death?' said the woman 'Well, I reckon you ain't acquainted about these parts. I am the unfortunate

CUNNING OF THE FOX.—A hunter who was one morning keeping watch in the forest, saw a fox cautiously making his approach toward the stump of an old tree. When sufficiently near he took a high and determined jump on the top of it, and, after looking round awhile, hopped to the ground again.—
After Reynold had repeated this exercise several times, he went his way, but presently returned to the spot, bearing a pretty heavy piece of dry oak in his mouth, and thus burdened, and as it would seem for the purpose of test-ing his vaulting powers, he renewed his leaps on the stump. After a time how-ever, and when he found that, weighted with facility, he desisted from further efforts, dropped the piece of wood from his mouth, and coiling himself upon the top of the stump remained motion-less as if dead. At the approach of evening, an old sow and progeny, five or six in number, issued from a neighboring thicket, and pursuing their usu boring thicket, and pursuing their usual track, passed near the stump in question. Two of her sucklings followed somewhat behind the rest, and just as they neared his ambush, Michel, with the rapidity of thought, darted down from his perch upon one of them, and in the twinkling of an eye, bore it in triumph to the fastness he had so providentially prepared beforehand. Confounded at the shrieks of her offspring, the old sow returned in a fury to the spot, and until late in the night made repeated desperate attempts to storm the murderer's stronghold; but the fox took the matter coolly, and devoured the pig under the very nose of its enraged mother.—Naturalist in Norway.

RATHER PUNGENT.—"Did you ever hear the story of the two Irishmen and the horse radish?" 'No; how was it?"

"Well, seeing a dish of grated horse radish on the table, where they had stopped for dinner, each helped him-self largely to the 'sauce,' supposing it to be eaten as potato or squash; and the first, putting a knife-full into his mouth, jerked his handkerchief from his trowsers and commenced wiping his eyes.
"'What troubles yer, Jemmy?" in quired his comrade.

"'Sure, and I was thinkin' of my poor old father's death when he was hung," he replied, shrewdly.

"Presently the other, taking as greedily of the pungent vegetable, had sudden use for his handkerchief;

whereat, Jemmy as coolly inquired:
"'And what troubles yer, Pat?"
"'Troth,' he replied, 'that you was not hung with your father.'"

There are some precious children in Waterbury, as the following local narative of the Waterbury Americanshows:

'Mother what is a 'gone sucker?'' "You musn't ask such questions Freddy." "But mamma, I want to know what a 'gone sucker' is."

"Freddy, I tell you not to ask me again."

agam."
Freddy, however, could not be put off, and still persisted in pressing his inquiries, where-upon, "mamma" became indiguant, and ordered him to bed, and as punishment Freddy had to sty his prayers by himself, instead of on his mother's lap, as usual. So Freddy prays: "God bless papa and Mamma, and baby, but as for me, I'se heen a bad boy, and I guess I'm a gone sucker."

A drawing master, workying a pupil with contemptuous remarks upon his lack of ability, ended by asking. 'Now sir, if you were going to draw me, what part of me would you commence with?

The boy with a meaning look into the master's face, answered very quickly, "Your neck, sir." 'Wife, wife, what has become of the grapes' 'I suppose, my dear, the hens picked them off,' was her modest reply. 'Hens—hens—some two-legged hens, I guess, said her husband with some impetuosity; to which she calmly replied, 'My dear, did you ever see any other

A little fellow, not more than five years of age, hearing some gentlemen at his father's table discussing the familiar line, 'An honest man is the noblest work of God,' said he knew it wasn't true; his mother was better than any man that was ever made.

A shrewd old gentleman once said to his daughter: "Be sure, my dear, you never marry a poor man; but remem bered that the poorest man in the world is one that has money and nothing else.

Wellsboro, April 24, 1867-tf. THE CHURCH UNION. This paper has been recently enlarged to mammoth proportions. It is the lander relicious paper in the world. Is the leading organ of the Union Movement, and opposes, ritualism, close communion, oxclusiveness and church caste. It is the only paper that publishes Henry Ward Boecher's Sermons, which it does every week, just as they are defivered,—without qualification or correction by him. It advocates universal suffrage; a union of christians at the polis; and the rights of labor. It has 'the best Agricultural Department of lapy paper, in the world; publishes stories for the family, and for the destruction of social evils. Its inditorial management is impersonal; its writers and editors are from every branch of the church, and from every grade of society. It has been apily termed the freest organ of thought in the world.
