THE SUNDAY RAIN .- Rev. A: J. Gorden, of Jamaica Plain, contributes to the Christian Era an article on the singular difference in the influence of the rain on week days and on Sundays.—

He says:—
A week-day rain has no power to keep a single man from attending to his business. The exposure required, the distance to go in the storm, may be twenty times as great, yet it never oc-curs to an active business man that the rain in this case furnishes any reasona ble ground for neglect of duty. Soglaring is the contrast between the effects of the Sunday and the week-day rain, that one might almost suppose that the former contained some peculiarly sub-tle and injurious qualities that were wanting in the latter—that it was laden with some peculiarly deleterious influences, capable of endangering health and constitution. A Sunday rain! what is there of all the phenomena of nature so potent? It need come in-no blaze and furious torrent, with the sound of thunder, and the lurid glare of lightnings. Let it but drop from heaven in the gentlest distillations, and hundreds of people stop in their pur-pose to go up to the House of God; the aisles of worship are empty; the songe of praise are feeble; and instead of the inspiration and power of a great congregation, there is presented the unin spiring spectacle of a meagre band of worshippers struggling to carry on the services, to keep alive the dying devo-tion and the languishing hallelujahs.

WASN'T PUSHING HIM: -Some time ago on the Sabbath, we wended our way to one of the churches, and in-stead of a sermon heard an address upon some missionary or other benevolent subject. After the address was concluded, two brethren were sent round for contributions.—Parson L——was one of the basket bearers, taking the side upon which we sat. Immediately in our front, and upon the next seat negligently, reclined our friend Bil H—, a gentleman of infinite humor and full of dry jokes. Parson L—— extended the basket, and Bill slowly shook his head. 'Come William, give us something,'

said the parson.
'Can't do it,' said Bill. 'Why not? is not the cause of a good

TWAIN'S LAST.—Mark writes from Elmira, N. Y.: "The Wilson trial came to an end yesterday. In some respects this was the most remarkable case that has ever had a place upon the eriminal records of, the country. It excited great interest in this State, and during the last ten days the court room was pretty generally crowded with eager listeners. The facts of the Wilson case were simply these: On the 17th of February last Geo. L. Roderick proor remary last too. I. Roderick provoked a quarrel with Dr. R. Wilson, in trout of the finion fiotel of thus place. Wilson put up with a good deal of almse before he even showed temper. He tried to pacify Roderick, but to no purpose. Roderick called him a thief, a liar, a swindler; Roderick grew more excited, and heaped one opprobious epithet after fanother upon Wilson, and finally called him a member of the New York Legis lature. At this Wilson sprang to his feet, and remarking to Roderick that he would not take that from any man, shot him dead with an axe-handle.-Such was the evidence elicited upon trial. The court acquitted Wilson on the ground that provocation was suf-

A nice old farmer never had a paper in his house till he was fifty years of age. His father left him two hundred acres of choice land which he worked as he kidew how, and made a comfort, able living. One spring the postmaster told him that if he would subscribe for an agricultural paper, read it carefully and work according to instruction, that he would warrant him to clear a thousand dollars that year. On these conditions he paid for the paper, read it, worked faithfully, and at the end of the year, he figured up carefully and found that he had cleared $960. He sted the rascally postmaster for the other forty, but by some dodge of the law the villain cheated him out of it. Ever since then the old gent has been down on postmasters and newspapers.

A beggar woman coming into a house where Nellie was sitting alone, asked for charity. "Charity!" said Nellie. I guess we are most out." 'I have the most effective eye-water here that you ever saw, said a peddler to an old farmer. "No, you ain't," responded the farmer; tain't half so, effective as a woman's tears, an'i I've seen lots of them. They beat all the eye-water you've got in your mack."

Adversity exasperates fools, dejects cowards, draws out the faculties of the wise and ingenious puts the modest to the necessity of trying their skill, owes the opulent, and makes the idle industrious. Much may be said in favor of adversity. But the worst of it is, it has

A thrifty young man got married to a rosy young Irish girl, quite to the horror of his mother and sister, but defended hisself by the following locial. If I ed himself by the following logic: If I married an American girl, I must have an Irish girl to take care of her, and I cannot afford to support both.

When I look upon a party of young people I console myself with the thought that, after all, my skull is as good-looking as any of theirs, and that's what it must resolve itself in at

An old bachelor says: Domestic love may be very sweet, but when I look at my brother's family it strikes me that it also is very dear.

'That's very singular,' said a young lady to a gentleman who had kissed her. 'Oh, well my dear miss, I can make it plural.'

The man who took a walk the other day, brought it back again; but the next day he took a ride, and has not since been heard of.
