Election Tuesday October 12. 18 Friends of Republican principles are requested to make all necessary preparations for the meetings advertised in this paper.

The Potter Journal hoists the names of B. B. Strang and S. R. Niles as candidates for Assembly. Mr. Niles's initials, hereabout, are "J. B." There may be an S. R. Niles in this county, but we don't know it.

We are obliged to Hon. S. A. Swailes, of the South Carolina Senate, for copies of Charleston papers. We have also received a letter from Mr. Swailes, in which he speaks of affairs in that State as unsettled though hopeful.

- REGISTER! Young men cannot this year "vote on age" unless they are registered. Unless otherwise legal voters produce two reputable citizens to swear in their votes. Don't put it off. If your name is not on the Registry list for your district have it put on at once. Delays are dangerous.

The enemy is making a desperate efficking in votes. We believe that the customary plea (of all culprits arraigned for trial, without reference to guilf or innocence, is "Not Guilty," Elsewhere, Mr. Donaldson puts in that plea to the charge of having violated his public and voluntary pledges. We shall dispose of the clumsy casuistry of his plea by saying that lis charge of unfairness in the action of the County Committee is not sustained by either his assertion nor the fact. But admit that there was unfair action-which we positively deny-that action was taken on the 11th of June, more than a month before the Convention was held, Yet in the face of the alleged "unfairness" toward him, Mr. Donaldson kept his pledge of unconditional submission to the decision of the Convention standing in this paper. Honestly, Mr. Donaldson, if you at that time deemed the action of the Committee so unfair to you as to release you from your pledges, why did that $10,000—the poor men, rich men, amount of receipts. Until within a few years you not then announce yourselfeas an independent candidate, without reference to the Convention? Plainly, you to the State. But the best reply to Mr. Donaldson's complaint will be found in the followthat Mr. Donaldson is required to keep moneys for the State, must pay over as oath, with payments of all due the Commonwealth at such time. We published the law two weeks ago.

Editors—In your last issue I find near-ly a column of editorial, criticising my conduct as a public officer, upon which with your permission, I desire to make a few comments. You start out with the assertion that I had violated my pledged word. To this I plead not guilty.—
> To what was I pledged? To submit to the decision of the late convention, you alledge. Can ich an inference be fairly drawn? I say not .-When my announcement was made in May last, o become a candidate before the Republican convention, it was with the reasonable expectation that a Republican convention would be held—that it would be held at the usual time and the campaign be conducted in a fair and honorable manner. This was not done—hence I was absolved from any implied pledge. On the contra-ry, the county committee, a majority of whom to fix the time for holding the convention, six weeks earlier than ever before, specially to open ato against and defeat my nomination. Simultaneous with this, all manner of calumnies were

You next assert that the fees of my office had averaged $2000 per year for thirty years—part of the time $3000. Now the fact is, that for the first ten years that I held office, the fees would not have exceeded $1200 a year, all told. Since then, it may have averaged $2000, and possibly a trifle swelled the yearly amount considerably. This sorvices had been performed. I probably have been more indulgent than I should have been got, except that I have never been in the habi of charging for scarches or such other minor sor vices. Am I guilty of wrong in this? I always believed that my time was my own, and that I had a perfect right to accommodate the people, by performing for them such trifling services gratis, and without making myself liable to censure for so doing—but as drowning men will farthing the law would permit me to take, in or-der to swell my receipts sufficiently to entitle the commonwealth to a claim upon me for a trifle, to be given away by her to some Railread menopoly, or other soulless corporation. To sui resent purposes, some may so assert-I think As to the allegation of my indebtedness to the State, all I have to say, is that it has been paid, and if I have as you say, been a defaulter seven against me more than seven times. I have paid since I have been in office into the State Treasury, at least $2000 more than I have received in State taxes; and if I am consurable for being behind sometimes, I should at least have credit for paying up, when I do so. Can anything more bo required of a person when in debt, than to pay do bunch of celery n his indebtedness? It has been currently reported during the whole summer by my enemies, that I have de-frauded the State out of $10,000—sometimes it is put at $20,000, and even more, and that through my connivance with the former sheriff's, the county has been cheated out of at least $18,000.

These allegations must have been known to be from the State during 1869. Send them look, and I believe that the people, by their votes will decree that I shall be so vindicated.

That without such accounts being cept, the auditor appointed to examine and pass his general accounts, and gerify them to the Auditor General, must proceed by the docket area of the convention, that such accounts are all bottoms.

East Charleston, Sept. 23, 1869. H.E. C. REMARKS .- Our friend who writes the foregoing seems not to be aware that the alleged unfairness in the Convention is not sustained by both credentials and instructions by the election board, and were therefore at liberty to voto as they pleased. The Cox men, we say, refused to give the delegates either credentials or instructions, and contested their right to sit in Convention while admitting that they had a majority of the votes cast. Moreover, had every delegate voted instructions, and had the Elkland delegates voted for Cox, the result would not have been changed. Two delegates voted for Roberts on the last ballot when they should have voted for Cameron. And the truth is, good people, Goldsmith, A T James, Job Doane. on the last ballot when they should have voted second choices enough to nominate them. And had the Wellsbore, Delmar, Mansfield, and Richmond delegates voted for Cox, he would still have been beaten by a majority of two. [Ed. Agitator.
