The Credit System—its Results.
The credit system and bad results of the credit system in this country are becoming more and more apparent. It is a system intended in its nature to advance the interests of the rich and add poverty to the poor man. In a majority of cases it is practiced from excess rather than from necessity. The hard-working farmer, the mechanic, and the laborer in the country generally, are the ones who are most affected by this cursed system.
The farmer has run over (cut and covered) one hundred acres of land. It is spring time, and inasmuch as he has no money, he is unable to purchase seed, fertilizer, or anything else. He expects to receive the May number of the register, which announces a great change in fashions—consequently he goes to the store to buy a new coat, but without success. His father is not forthcoming. He wishes to gratify his children and supply their wants but he has no money. He is unable to purchase the much needed wearing apparel.
The day arrives. The crops are mostly put in. On entering the store many things greet the eye. The attentive clerk greets them with a smile, and wishes to know if they are to be wanted; and while the young ladies are admiring and being admired the father is at the desk in consultation with the proprietor. A formal salutation, runs something like the following:
"Farmer, I brought my daughters down here to look at some of your new goods."
"Merchandise! Ah! we have just received a new stock, and I think they are very nice. How many do you want?
"F. Where you able to buy cheaper than last year?"
"O, a great deal cheaper. I was surprised to find that the market was changed. I think you will be pleased with the prices of our goods."
"F. Well, I—I want to inquire more particularly about the clothing. How much will you give me for this piece of cloth?"
"As I have no other means of getting the money, I would be glad to pay you, but I would be glad to give you half price for the goods."
"F. Very well, will you give me half price for the goods?"
"O, certainly. I would not expect to get the goods without. That is all right."
In the meantime the young ladies had a pleasant chat with the clerk, and had a good time in making selections of the goods. All that was left to be done, was for the father to place his order, and the clerk to make up the bill. The father, who is an expert, and found the sum total to be just $50.
The clerk walked to the desk with the amount noted, while the young ladies entered into conversation speculating on the appearance, and wondering how the father would be suited with the bill they had made him.
The father only sighed, and made the remark that "it costs something nowadays to live," and attached his name to the note.
The goods were gathered up, and the father and daughters were on their way home. The father, who is an expert, was discussing the pretty shades of their goods, and what dressmaker should be employed in making them.
Time rolls on. The farmer has contracted other debts, with the expectation of paying them when his crops are in the hands of the market.
The harvest season comes. Circumstances uncontrollable surround this hardworking son of toil. His crops are but a shadow of what they were last year. His obligations are more than he can solve. But the merchant is in no hurry to pay. He is secure. His notes are drawing interest, and all is "as easy as marriage bell."
For one, we believe if the credit system were entirely abolished it would be for the benefit of the farmer. He could check the tide of extravagance which is so prevalent among the laboring classes. MCHANNON.

THE GIRLS OF JAPAN AT SCHOOL.
Throughout Japan it is the universal custom for young ladies when arrived at the age of fourteen or fifteen, to be placed in a finishing establishment. This establishment has the following among the duties which are required of the pupil for the privilege of teaching in the school (as in the case with us) being paid for their lessons. This makes the instruction a matter of love, and not of a certain extent. In Japan, again, a lady is allowed considerable freedom as to the selection of her instructors; she generally prefers one of her own finishing establishments for young ladies would not be a little surprised if she could be suddenly transported to Japan, there to witness the peculiarities of Japanese custom.
She would find herself, not in a close room, filled with girls, but in a delightful garden, with a delightful fragrant with tea and flowers. She would find a number of little summer-houses, embowered in the most beautiful flowers, and she would see those daughters, with joyous smiles and modest mien, vying each her way to a summer-house. In each of the summerhouses she would see a master or professor, either waiting the return of one of the refreshment bearing damsels, or back sitting in a chair, and who had already come back. Japanese girls remain in educational seminaries of this kind until marriage, and they make excellent wives.
A wealthy gentleman, who owns a country seat, nearly lost his wife, who fell into a river which flows through his estate. He announced the narrow escape to his friends, expecting their congratulations. One of them, an old bachelor, wrote as follows: "I always told you that rivers were too shallow."
