We read that no pain can ever smite, The dwellers upon that glorious shore: to dying is there, nor sin's sad blight, And the tears are wiped for evermore.

It is very lonely this side the flood When those we love have meckly died; And in the silence of our abode
We listen for sounds beyond the tide.

We know that their home is a wonderful land, And we stand on the river's stormy side; Oh I say, if upon this earthly strand There may float no sign from beyond the tide?

Where is the angel who rolled the stone From the sepulcher? Is the gulf so wide That they only cross to the Holy One, And never again from beyond the tide?

Hearth and Home.

A Young Man Running in Debt.

A young man running in debt is painful sight. The disposition to do Dry Goods, Groceries, Crockery, this is the forerunner and exponent of Hardware. Boots and Shoes. all evil. "A postolic authority says, "The love of money is the root of all evil." But when a young man loves money so well as to get it while knowing he cannot repay, or be willing to take it before he has honestly earned it, there is, in the most cases, lying behind this, some passion so strong as to thus overbear his moral principles in clamoring for its indulgence. Pleasure, especially unlawful pleasure, is a perilous and exhaustive thing. Lawful, necessary, and healthful pleasure, like the pure mountain air, and the gushing waters of the mountain spring, has been made accessible by our Creator, at comparatively little trouble and expense. Any indulgence may be known as unlawful when it can be reached only by running in debt. The highway of sin is an expensive road to travel. The fare, the chargen are all high. And they have to be paid twice over, not only in currency, but also in something more precious than gold, quarried from the depths and springs of our being. No person ever traveled on that highway, so attractive in prospect, without becoming bankrupt, and pawning his own peace and life long before he got to the end of his journey. Whenever a young man, of moderate salary, is seen always cramped for money, and ready to borrow of his friends, he is surely on the downward grade of virtue and respectability. Willinguess to run in debt is itself a great vice. It is caused by the wish to gratify the unlawful cravings lying behind, as yet perhaps undisclosed to the eyes of the world. Experienced men really judge what this want of money indicares; and, however fair your character may seem in other respects, they will be satisfied, from this alone, that there is some hidden taint and unsoundness. However small your income, always live within your means. There is less nationally the distance of duling without week source the ugs than there is in the consciousness of being in debt. Herodotus says, that among the ancient Persians, "To tell a lie is considered by them the greatest disgrace; next to that, to be in debt; and this, for many reasons, but especially because they think that one who runs in debt must, of necessity, tell lies." Does your experience, your consciousness, tell you this is true? Always keep an unspent and unpawned dime in the bottom of your pocket. Its touch will always be invigorating; and, with talismanic power, send through your soul, an energy making you carry a countenance flushed with honorable frankness. This simple dime is invaluable, as the symbol of manly independence. The conscious ness of debt, in a young man, begets incipient meanness of character, and, when continued, develops this into a confirmed habit, tainting the whole nature. A man yet in his prime, who has accumulated a fortune of two milhas accumulated a fortune of two mil-lions by honest industry, said, "I began with a determination to keep within my wages. When getting only twenty-five cents a day, I always saved some-thing." This principle has carried him, and will carry you, to high clevation of character, to great influence, and to independent fortune. - The Occident.

POPPING THE QUESTION.—Lord Justice Clerk Braxfield was a man of few words and strong business habits. In courting his second wife, his procedure was entirely illustrative of the peculi-arities of his character. Calling for the lady, he said to her without preliminary remarks: . "Lizzie, I am looking out for a wife, and I thought you just the person that would suit me. Let me have your auswer, yes or no, the morn, and nae mairaboot it." She lady the next day replied in the affirmative. Perhaps he repented his precipitancy. for when a butler gave warning, on account of Mrs. Braxfield's scolding propensities, the Judge replied:

"Lord, mon, ye've little to complain
o'; ye may be thankful' ye're no married to her." The late Professor D. was, prior to his appointment to his chair, rector of an academy in Forfarshire. He was particularly reserved in his intercourse with the fair sex; but, in prospect of obtaining a professorship, he ventured to make proposals to a lady. They were walking together, and the important question was not without prelimitant question was put without preliminary sentiment or notes of warning. Of course the lady replied a gentle "No," The subject was immediately dropped; but the parties soon met again.

"Do you remember." at length said the lady, "a question which you put to me when we last met?"

The Professor said that he did remem-" And do you remember my answer,

"G, yes," said the Professor.
"Well, Mr. D.," proceeded the lady,
"I have been led, on consideration, to change my mind."

'And so have I," dryly responded the Professor. He maintained his bachelorhood to the close of life.

CURIOSITIES OF EARTH,—At the city of Medina, in Italy, and about four miles around it, wherever the earth is dug when the workmen arrive at a distance of sixty-three feet, they come to a bed of chalk, which they bore with an auger five feet deep. They then withdraw from the pit before the auger is removed, and upon its extraction the water bursts through the aperture with great violence, and quickly fills the newly-made well, which is affected by neither rains nor draughts. But what is the most remarkable in this operation is the layers of earth as we descend. At the depth of fourteen feet are found the ruins of an ancient city, paved streets, houses, floors ancient city, paved streets, houses, floors and pieces of mason work. Under this is found a soft, oozy earth, made of vegetables, and at twenty-six, large trees entire, such as walnut trees, with walnuts still sticking to the stem, and the leaves and branches in a perfect state preservation. At twenty-eight feet deep a soft chalk is found, mixed with a vast quantity of shells; and the bed is eleven feet thick. Under this vegetables are found again.

FANNY FERN thinks "there is no man who would not rather be shaved by a woman than to have a great lumbering man pawing about his jugular vein, and poking him in the ribs to get up when another man's turn came. I don't say how his wife might like it but I am very sure he would, and as to his wife, why—she could shave some other man, couldn't she?"

"How did you manage to get along in Parls without knowing the French language?" Inquired a gentleman of Mrs. Shoddy. "Oh we had an integrupter with us," complacently replied the old lady.
