

ANNA DICKINSON'S HOME. Stanton writes to the Revolution that the night in Philadelphia, where I met Miss Anthony in the home of Anna Dickinson, a neat, three-story brick house in Locust St. This house of rest where the famous little woman comes ever and anon to recruit her overtaxed energies, is very tastefully furnished, adorned with numerous engravings, books and statuary. Her mother, brother and sister, make up the household—a pleasing, cultivated trio. The brother is a quiet, thoughtful, handsome youth, of good judgment, and given to sage remarks; the sister—witty, intelligent, and inclusive in speech; the mother, dressed in rich Quaker costume, and, though near seventy, still possesses great personal beauty. She is intelligent, dignified, refined; and in manner and appearance reminds one of ANGELINA GRIMKE, as she looked in her younger days. Every thing about the house indicates the abode of genius and cultivation; and although Anna was absent, the hospitable and gracefully disposed by her family. Neatness and Quaker peaceableness, and the fact that Anna's patron saint, working down on all sides from the wall. The mother assisted us with the rare trials her little orator had inflicted on the members of the household by her vagaries in the world of fame.

A Pittsburgh dandy, after persistently following a beautiful young lady, for some time, much to her annoyance, stepped up and asked her permission to accompany her home. She granted it, and his request to enter, when they arrived. She then locked the door and called to her mother that there was a man there who had insulted her. Her mother did not hear, but the intruder did, and hastily proceeded to vacate the premises, but the damsel armed herself with a broom, and hit him several blows on the head with the handle before he arrived at the back door and made his exit into the garden. Here he was caught by the lumbering house-dog, and did not scold the fence without leaving his hat and coat behind. He probably won't do so any more—Exchange.

It is claimed that the effect of Senator Morton's bill for the reconstruction of Georgia, if it becomes a law, will secure the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. It is said, by a careful count, the vote of Georgia will complete the necessary number.

BRAIN WORK AND MANUAL LABOR. Our excellent contemporary, the Harvard Health, this discusses on the continuing of mental and physical force to the relief of both the mind and body. "The worker with his brain would love brain work more if he had a couple of hours of hard work to do every day. If such persons could have their gardens and shops to run in when their heads were tired, they would soon recuperate, and the muscular toil not being in excess would soon be a delight. If, on the other hand, the toiler with the hand could do daily some mental labor, it would not only be a happy thing, but a sharpening of the brain, which would add effectiveness to the culture. The reason for this, is because man is a composite being. His faculties were not made for non-use, more than his brain, and the right use of each is a pleasure and not a pain. After a few generations, we shall have what is now the prayer of thousands—more physical labor for the mind, and more mental labor for the hand. The sharpening of the brain, which will add greatly to the prosperity, happiness, and health of both."

The Bradford county Reporter tells a true story. Hear it: Some eight or ten years ago Mr. C. R. Stanton, one of the most successful and experienced hunters in this section, set a trap for a bear which had been seen near Northampton, and on the 21st of May, 1870, he set his foot in the trap, and in the morning when Mr. S. went to look for him he only found about one half of one of his paws, which the animal undoubtedly thought it better to lose than to run the risk of falling into the hands of his human enemy. Tracks of the maimed bear have been seen every summer since, but every effort to capture it proved unavailing. During the past few weeks, however, Mr. Stanton again made the attempt to rid the neighborhood of Mr. Bruin, and the other day succeeded in killing him by a ball from his trusty rifle. On examination it proved to be the veritable bear which he had entrapped nine years before, as that part of the paw corresponding to the piece found in the trap was missing.

ELIGANCE AND HOME.—I never saw a garment too fine for man or maid; there was never a chair too good for a cobbler or cooper or king too sit in; never a house too fine to shelter the human head. These elements above us, the gorgeous sky, the imperial sun, are not too good for the human race. Elegance fits man. But do we not value these tools of housekeeping a little more than they are worth, and sometimes mortgage a home for the sake of the mahogany we would bring into it? I had rather eat my dinner off the head of a barrel, or dress after the fashion of John the Baptist in the wilderness, or sit on the rock all my life, than consume all myself before I get to a home, and take so much pains with the outside that the inside was as hollow as an empty nut. Beauty is a great thing, but beauty of garments, house and furniture, is a very tawdry ornament compared with domestic love. It is the elegance in the world will not make a home, and I would give more for a spoonful of real hearty love than for whole shiploads of furniture and all the upholsterers of the world could gather to gether.—Theodore Parker.
