MILES OF PEACH TREES -One of the most singular sights growing out of the war is a continuous line of peach trees of nearly fifty miles in length, around Petersburg, and extending towards Richmond. They are growing from the breastworks thrown up by the 'rebel army, and are the only legacy field by the rebels who were on the advance, Having eaten of the fruit while on and now they appear in one continuous line of forty-five miles of Heautiful trees, which yielded an abundant crop the last year.

The largest farm in Eugland consists of 3,000 acres, and belongs to a man with the Yankee name of Samuel Jones. In its cultivation he follows' the "four course" system, the whole extent of the farm being divided into four great crops-750 acres of wheat, 750 of tarley and oats, 750 to seeds, beans, pous etc., and 750 to roots. His live stock is valued as follows: Sheep, $35,000, horses, $15,000, bullocks, $12,000, pigs, $2,500. The oil cake and corn purchased annually amounts to $20,000, and artificial fertilizers about $8,000. The entire cost of manure, in various forms used, annually costs about $15,000. Sheep are claimed as the most profitable stock he keeps, from which are reglized about $20,000 a year. His income from the whole farm is not stated.

MRS. RICHARDSON'S STATEMENT.

The graphic and appalling account of this unfortunate woman, telling the lamentable story of her married life, was published in the Tribunc the day after McFarland's acquittal. It bears intrinsic evidence of truth, and is corroborated by most of the evidence given on the trial. One rises from a peruwith a world in which such things are but too common, though not so often made public. That she was grossly denial. That she bore, and suffered, and endured, as only a true and heroic wopers which say, as says the Elmira Advertiser: "She had taken him for bet-

The Siecle and L'Accuir were seized for veil was seized for doubting the existence of any plot. The Siecle and L'Archir were seized for day the same offence. From last Thursday to Sanday (the day of the voting) these pupers were seized every day. The provincial newspapers suffered the same fate. Five proscentions were instituted in one day against the Rappel alone, and its editor was sentenced to a veta's imprisonment for printing a single actively by Victor Hago. So much for freedom of the press in frameword provincial pressure by the Profects, which Ollivier was pledged to abandon, was never more energetically or unstrupulously enforced. Still it does not affect the question of whether that relationship should continue or be dissolved. But we have seen nothing in the case to justify such a conclusion. The one impropriety, which both she and Richardson confess, is the sudden growth of tender relations between them. Of course it appears, and was, premature; but why? Because, only, it affords reason for the belief that, before the time arrived, if it ever did. (and we are remarking upon the basis that it did), when it was improper for them to longer continue husband and wife, Mrs. Richardson lavished upon Richardson the attentions or affection which she should have indulged toward her husband alone. Indeed, if she were a true wife, she never could have done so. Marriage is not alone a social, outward relation: it is the blending of two souls in one, and through that one, a upion with the fountain of Truth. Refore she listened to the story of his ove, she had separated from McFarland, and he had consented to it in presence of witnesses. That was the dissolution of this marriage, which is far more effectual in the light of truth and the Divine law, than the divorce which was afterward obtained, merely to complete the forms of human enactments. Not to argue that husband and wife could, with safety to society, be permitted to dissolve the marriage relation at will; but if society demands that this should not be so, neither can the force of human enactments dissolve such bonds, when, before the forms of law shall have been complied with, the higher law, which makes two souls one, shall not have sanctioned their separation. What are the symbols of human law, to the essence of that Divine rule, under and through which all human laws must receive their binding force?

It is the logical result of the position of the Republican party, assumed at the time of its organization: Opposition to slavery and the spirit of caste, by all constitutional means. It was an unselfish position; promising little besides the satisfaction of doing right. And it was this distinctive feature which caused all the reproach cast upon the party, in its infancy.
